GERMANS UNITED TO ELECT HARDING AND BEAT LEAGUE

SEPARATE PEACE ITS GOAL

ALL 5 BOROUGHS COVERED

Several Up-State Counties and Connecticut and Jersey Towns Reported Organized.

The existence of an extensive movement on the part of voters of German birth or descent to support Senator Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for President, was revealed last night by the announcement of John Herring, editor of The Long Island Free Press, the only German newspaper in Queens County, that the Citizens' Alliance of Queens, an organization composed entirely of Germans, intended to support the Republican Presidential nominee on the League of Nations issue on the ground that Senator Harding, besides being opposed to the present covenant of the League of Nations, favors a separate peace with Germany.

The alliance was reported to be an offshoot of the German-American Citizens' League, which indorsed Senator Harding at a meeting in Chicago on Aug. 16 and 17, and in that way is intended to be a part of a national movement among the German-American voters to support the Republican nominee. The movement was said to have progressed rather slowly in this city, outside of Queens, until Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee, came here and declared emphatically in a speech at the Hotel Commodore last Saturday that if he should be elected there would be no separate peace with Germany.

Viereck Believed in Movement.

George Sylvester Viereck, well known as a German propagandist from his connection with the Fatherland, was said by his office to have been in Chicago at the time the German American Citizens' League had its meeting. Newspaper dispatches stated that friends of Mr. Viereck and members of his "Committee of Ninety-six," were present. The league gave its own and Senator Harding's opposition to the League of Nations as the reason for its indorsement of the Senator.

The "Committee of Ninety-six," of which Mr. Viereck and Dr. Edmund von Mach are understood to have been the founders, was created for the following purposes, according to an article in Viereck's American Weekly, as the Fatherland was called after the United States entered the war:

"To arouse all Americans, especially those of German descent, to a realization of their civic rights, to solidify the Americans of German descent, to create voting units irrespective of party affiliations in opposition to 'invisible' government, to elect city, State and national officers in sympathy with the purposes of the committee, to restore free speech, to combat race intolerance, to devise ways and means of co-operating with the Irish-Americans, to save the honor of the United States by revising the Peace Treaty of Versailles, to establish cordial relations between the United States and all other nations, especially Germany, and to rebuke those who would make the United States a 'colony of Great Britain.'"

Miller Indorsement Blocked.

Questioned concerning the plans of the leaders of the organization, Mr. Herring said that the movement was well under way in the other boroughs of the city, Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx, and Richmond, and that organizations had been effected in Albany, Nassau County and Hudson County, New Jersey. According to Mr. Herring, organizers from Manhattan were now working in New Haven and Bridgeport, Conn.

Formal action in support of the Republican nominee already has been taken by the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Alliance of Queens County, and this action has been ratified by its branches. An attempt was reported to have been made at a recent meeting of the Executive Committee to indorse Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for Governor, but a few friends of Governor Alfred E. Smith, who will be a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket, were said to have blocked this, temporarily, at least, and it has been decided to leave indorsement of candidates for State offices until after the primaries.

Carl Gerks of Flushing is President of the Queens Alliance, and Mr. Herring, who is Secretary, gave the following as the leaders in the German movement to support Senator Harding in the other places where organizations have been perfected:

Manhattan, Chris. Rebhan and George Pfiefer; Bronx, George Schonk; Brooklyn, Max B. Ankwitt; Richmond, Joseph Kessler; Albany, Adam Ehrhardt; Nassau County, Frank Rupert of Hempstead; Hudson County, N. J., John Eller of Jersey City.

Rally Planned for Labor Day.

Moore Hints at Millions Collected but Unreported

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Charges that either the statements of the Republican National Committee laid before the Senatorial Investigating Committee were glaringly erroneous or millions of dollars collected for the campaign had not been reported to the Treasurer, were made today by Edmund H. Moore.

Mr. Moore came to Chicago as personal representative of Governor Cox before the committee, which will reconvene next Tuesday to continue its investigation of the charge by the Democratic candidate that a $15,000,000 slush fund was being raised by the Republicans to "buy the Presidency."

"I don't believe the Republicans will be able to raise their fund, now that the people know of it," said Mr. Moore. "Their records show that only a little more than $1,000,000 has been collected. I believe that the only way to get to the bottom of the matter is to call the men who actually collected the money. Evidently the reports submitted are not correct or a lot of money collected has not been reported."

For the first time Mr. Moore gave the name of the Atlanta business man who raised $25,000 in that city.

"C. W. McClure of Atlanta can tell the Investigating Committee that he raised the whole $25,000 quota for Atlanta before the convention," Mr. Moore declared, "although Mr. Upham says only $3,000 was raised in the entire State."

HARDING IN DOUBT AS TO BONUS BONDS

Says Public Must Be Kept in Mind in Considering Legislation.

FAVORS RELIEF FOR NEEDY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Stars and Stripes, a weekly publication devoted to the interest of the ex-service men, will publish tomorrow an interview with Senator Harding obtained at Marion by Joseph L. Heffernan on the subject of bonus legislation.

Mr. Heffernan says that financial stability of the United States, in Senator Harding's opinion, is a condition precedent to adjusted compensation for former service men and any project for monetary aid to soldiers of the great war is futile unless this condition is met first of all.

"Senator Harding," says Mr. Heffernan, "holds the great American family, known as the general public, must be kept in mind and earnest thought given to any plan for soldier legislation which may tend to disturb the financial machinery by which that great family transacts its everyday business. Incidentally Candidate Harding recalled that at present there is a floating indebtedness of more than $3,000,000,000 and emphasized in well considered words the serious problem of assimilating that debt."

After remarking that a cash bonus would cost perhaps $2,000,000,000 Mr. Harding said:

"Now, with our present Liberty bonds below par, what would be the result if we proceeded to issue more bonds? During war, of course, the people of the country laid their all on the altar of their country just as the soldiers laid down their lives. Can we honestly say that conditions are now the same? If we did sell bonds to pay the proposed bonus and, to meet present conditions, offered a higher rate of interest than on our previous Liberty bonds, what would be the effect on those bonds outstanding?

"I feel, however, that we should do everything possible immediately for the wounded and those in urgent need. This is only in line with Republican gratitude to those who have sacrificed for the country. Not a minute should be lost in aiding these men.

"I do not think that Congress can at once make provisions to expedite the care of those wounded and urgently needy, provided we can agree with the spokesmen for them on a plan to effect such relief."

Senator Harding was emphatic in declaring his support of the fourfold plan, which finally passed the lower house in the last week the Congress was in session, providing for "adjusted service pay," adjusted "service certificates," "vocational training aid," "farm or home aid," and "land settlement aid."

When asked if he would vote for this measure if it came up in the Senate while he was a member, the Senator replied:

"In a general way, I cannot say that I would vote for any bill until I see exactly what it contains."

As to the home and land aid feature of soldier relief, the Senator would favor such Government aid, if it could be done in a practical way.

"Of course, I am for a home loan," he replied to a direct question, "if it can be practically worked out. It would be the handsome thing for the soldier on one hand and the handsome thing for the community on the other. I am strongly in favor of such a loan if, for instance, it can be made as a down-payment on a home, backed by the credit of the Government. Frankly, I do not yet see how it will work out, but probably through a branch of the War Risk Bureau. That is practical, I think, for it is within the realms of reason to suppose that the functions of that bureau can be so enlarged as to take care of the details of granting and controlling such loans."

MICHIGAN CROWDS ARE ROUSED BY COX WITH 16 SPEECHES

HITS BARNES'S SUBSCRIBERS

Says They Represent Big Business Here and, of Course, Oppose Progressive Policies.

RAPS HARDING PEACE PLAN

Hague Tribunal Has "Bats in the Belfry," He Says—Charges Perjury in Fund Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 3.—When Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for President, closed his first day of his Western campaign tour here tonight, after delivering sixteen addresses to voters of twelve Ohio and Michigan cities and towns, he left behind scores of Republican leaders who were amazed by what they had seen and heard. If the comment among the crowds which Governor Cox addressed is any criterion of how the wind is blowing, these leaders also may have cause for concern.

It was a day of lively campaigning such as few candidates for any office have experienced, but at its conclusion Governor Cox was apparently fresh and certainly smiling and happy. Events began at 7 o'clock in the morning at Toledo, where, while most of the other members of his party were asleep, Governor Cox was out on the back platform addressing a crowd of railroad workers who cheered him lustily.

From Toledo the Governor went into the Republican strongholds of Michigan. He was surprised at the size of the crowds which turned out to greet him and at the nature of the messages which were brought to him of the support that he might expect. In return he talked long and earnestly on the issues of the campaign, refusing at more than one place to bring his talk to a close, although informed that he might miss his train. At Lansing, where several thousand persons were massed about the Capitol, the Governor refused to listen to the warning of his secretary, Charles E. Morris, and when finally he was induced to leave, there was a mad dash by automobiles at break-neck speed to catch the train.

"I won't leave any such crowd as this," Governor Cox said when he was asked to go. "I won't leave until I have had my say. If I miss my train, then I'll miss my train, that's all there is to it."

Then he returned to his task of seeking to convince the voters as to where their duty lay in the coming election. The crowd enjoyed the scene and cheered Governor Cox when he refused to be taken from them.

"I like that fellow," said one man near the speakers' platform. "I like his cut and the way he goes at it."

And there were other comments of this kind to be heard.

Governor Cox told the voters of the Central and Southern Michigan towns that he would probably be charged with bravado in making a campaign in that territory. But this statement was tossed back at him with cheers, wherever he made it, and with a broad smile and a wealth of emphasis and vigor he returned to the attack.

Makes Much of Newberry Case.

The case of Senator Newberry, who was convicted of illegal use of money in obtaining his seat, was a prominent theme for Cox, who asserted that the Republican Senate group, of which Newberry was one, was endeavoring to do on a larger scale what Newberry was convicted of doing in Michigan, namely buy an election.

The Governor declared that it was the election of Newberry by the wholesale use of money that gave the Republican Senators the one vote needed to control and organize that body and select Lodge as head of the Foreign Relations Committee, with the subsequent defeat of the Treaty as a result.

It was the election of Newberry under such conditions, Cox charged, that put the "Senate oligarchy" in the position to nominate one of their own number for the Presidency. He added that apparently no lesson had been learned by the leaders, who were going ahead now in an effort to "Newberryize" the nation, regardless of what had occurred or what the consequences were to the future welfare of the country.

This argument apparently made a great impression on the crowds, for he held their attention closely during all his addresses. While it is probable that a majority of the men he addressed have voted the Republican ticket in the past, there was generous and frequently enthusiastic applause.

Attacks upon Senator Harding for his attitude in favor of scrapping the present League of Nations and resurrecting the Hague Tribunal, the reading of extracts from the "official bulletin" of the Republican Party to substantiate the charges that Cox has made of the raising of a huge campaign fund, and reference to the Republican campaign book of 1920, written by William Barnes of Albany, which Governor Cox wove into his charge that the Republican Senate group was attempting to "Newberryize" the nation for the purpose of

When Mrs. Charlotte Pope, mother-in-law of Joseph P. Day, real estate expert, was at dinner Thursday evening in Mr. Day's country residence, Pleasant Days, Short Hills, N. J., sneak thieves entered Mrs. Pope's room on the second floor, broke open a jewel box which they found in the drawer of the chiffonier and escaped with jewelry valued at $20,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Day, with their children, were on a holiday trip to New Hampshire and it is believed the thieves availed themselves of Mr. Day's absence to rob his home. From the disturbed condition of the rooms usually occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Day it is believed the robbers went through the entire house in quest of valuables.

Last night detectives in this city and in all the cities and towns adjacent to Short Hills were seeking Frank Gettman, butler at Pleasant Days, and Mr. Day's chauffeur, who gave the name of William Jordan when employed by the real estate expert several months ago. They disappeared from Mr. Day's estate late Thursday evening in one of their employer's high powered automobiles, which was found abandoned in Park Place, Newark, early yesterday morning.

Servants informed the police when the theft was discovered yesterday morning that Jordan, who was wounded in France while serving with the Canadian Army, was overheard planning with the butler to go to Mexico to buy a ranch on the Texas border. It is the opinion of the police that the men boarded a Hudson tube train for this city after they abandoned their employer's car.

The police learned that on several occasions in the last month two of the employes on Mr. Day's estate were found in the upper part of the house, and the real estate expert had issued orders to all his servants never to enter any of the rooms occupied by the family without first informing Mrs. Day or her mother of their intentions.

At the same time Mr. Day advised his wife and his mother-in-law to lock up their valuables whenever they left their rooms. On Thursday Mrs. Pope placed her jewel box, containing an old-fashioned necklace, with twelve pearls in circles of gold, half a dozen diamond rings and other small articles of jewelry in the top drawer of her chiffonier, but she forgot to lock it.

MINE WORKERS WIRE APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

COLLIERIES STILL CLOSED

Leaders and Operators Believe Workers Will Return to Mines After Labor Day.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 3.—Anthracite mine workers through their union officers today appealed to President Wilson to reopen the wage contract signed by the miners and operators yesterday for remedying the "inequalities" of the award recently approved by the President.

"The inequalities of the award," the appeal to the President stated, "are so apparent that voluntary uprisings have taken place in opposition and protest in all of the mining districts despite every effort that has been put forth by the officers of the United Mine Workers of America to prevent those disturbances."

The miners virtually ask that the wages of the men be placed on about the same basis as those in the bituminous fields. The award gave the anthracite men increases ranging from 17 to 25½ per cent., whereas the miners asked for a uniform advance of about 27 per cent.

A long telegram was also sent to W. B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, embodying the appeal sent to the President and urging him to exercise the influence of his office to have a joint wage scale meeting held to insure permanent peace and tranquillity in the antharcite mining industry.

A meeting of the General Scale Committee of the miners today appointed a committee of thirteen from each of the three districts and Philip Murray, International Vice President, as chairman, to decide on a plan of action. It was decided to make a direct appeal to President Wilson.

"Our request that the wage scale be reopened is not only based upon the belief that the award of the commission is inadequate, but also in view of what has transpired recently in the bituminous coal mining industry, wherein you directed that a meeting of the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and the representatives of the various coal operators' associations comprising the central competitive field of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania be held for the purpose of remedying the existing inequalities in the award of the Bituminous Coal Commission."

After detailing the increase received by the bituminous miners under the revision and pointing out the difference in pay in the bituminous and anthracite mines, the telegram continued:

"The custom has been that whenever voluntary increases have been granted during the life of agreements in the bituminous districts similar action has always been taken in the anthracite region."

So far as can be learned, the General Scale Committee took no action today to have the workers return to work. It was said that would be left to local officers in the various mining communities.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. Sept. 3.—The peak of the anthracite coal strike has been reached in the belief of union officials opposed to the miners who have defied them. The factional fight between John T. Dempsey, President of District 1, and Enoch Williams, the insurgent leader, has been one of the chief causes of the so-called vacation. The Executive Board of District 1 decided today to ask Dempsey for his resignation and if he fails to resign before tomorrow he will be ousted. Insurgents have been following Williams because they had no faith in Dempsey.

The number of men idle today is 135,000. 130 collieries are shut down and $850,000 in wages is being lost daily. The insurgents gained two collieries in the Scranton region today and almost completely tied up the Hazleton and Shamokin regions. The independent col-

40,000 NOTIFIED TO MOVE ON OCT. 1

Concerted Action to Extort Higher Rents, Says Realty Association Head.

CALLS IT "BULLDOZING"

Real Estate Board Gives Legislative Committee Recommendations for Housing Laws.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, informed the joint legislative Committee on Housing at its meeting in City Hall yesterday that landlords in New York City had sent 40,000 notices to tenants ordering them to vacate their apartments on Oct. 1. The notices originated from "a central source," he said, and were merely used as a cover by the landlords in the hope of extorting higher rents.

When Elmer G. Sammis, counsel to the committee, asked Mr. Browne to state the source of the notices, Mr. Browne said he did not think it was fair, and added that so far as his organization went he had nothing to do with the proposal.

"Then I understand that there was some concerted action, and your board was invited to participate in such a scheme and send out notices," asked Mr. Sammis.

"There was only a suggestion that they be put out to protect the landlords," replied Mr. Browne. "I considered that it did not protect the landlord—that it was unnecessary and stirred up strife."

Later Mr. Browne said that the object of the notices was to "bulldoze the tenant into paying increased rent."

Representatives of retail merchants, small business men in stores and loft merchants urged the committee to give the storekeepers and loft and office tenants the same protection from profiteering landlords that the tenants in dwellings were afforded under the new rent laws. It was said that storekeepers and loft tenants were being called on to pay increases of from 100 to 300 per cent.

Realty Board Recommendations.

Repeal or amendment of the existing rent laws.

Entirely exempt interest on mortgages on real estate from the State Income tax and memorialize Congress to remove the Federal tax.

Amend the banking law to bring interest upon the debentures and other securities of the land banks clearly within classification of investments that are exempt from the Federal Income tax and to authorize the State Controller to invest public funds in the securities of the banks.

Urge the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant priority of service to shipments of building materials and to coal billed to manufacturers of such materials.

Amend the Tenement House law to permit the transformation of old single-family dwellings into three or four family tenement houses.

Enact a law requiring the licensing of real estate brokers and salesmen and subjecting their business to State regulation.

Provide a form of statutory lease that will satisfactorily adjust relations of landlords and tenants for a year or less.

Mr. McNulty said the board opposed the following proposals:

Fixing of rents based on net income.

State or municipal housing.

Opposed to Short Stays.

Mr. Browne testified that short stays granted in the courts caused most of the present trouble, as a man granted a thirty or sixty days' stay "does not know where he is at." He thought the courts ought not to have jurisdiction where the landlord was not getting more than about 15 per cent. gross rentals.

L. E. Schlechter, a lawyer, made a plea for garment manufacturers and merchants' organizations whose rents, he said, have been increased 200 to 300 per cent.

Walter J. Salmon, a real estate operator, maintained that while the garment industries were paying more rent now

STRIKERS REJECT B.R.T. TERMS; 800 REPORTED BACK

RANKS INTACT, LEADERS SAY

CAR SERVICE IMPROVES

Fridiger Tells Men That the Newspapers Are in a Conspiracy to Suppress Facts.

The battle between the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes and the B. R. T. receivership controlled by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, will go to a finish.

Following the announcement of Judge Mayer that he intended to eliminate that organization from the B. R. T. system, the leaders of the strike yesterday addressed a large meeting at which a unanimous "No" was given to the proposal that they quit the association and return to work without any change in their status except the 8 per cent. offer made before the strike.

B. R. T. officials announced at 8 o'clock yesterday morning that 149 of the strikers had returned to work. The officials' spokesman for the road said during the day that they were returning in small numbers. Last night an official was reported as stating that 800 of the 11,000 strikers had reported for duty. The strike leaders insisted that their ranks were practically intact.

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the strikers, stirred the men at a meeting attended by 4,500 at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum last night, by charging that the New York newspapers were in a conspiracy to suppress the news of accidents caused by inexperienced strikebreakers and to attempt to stampede the men by representing that the strike was broken.

"Conspiracy," as Fridiger Tells It.

After asserting that it was suspicious that three afternoon newspapers had carried almost identical headlines announcing that the strikers were streaming back to work, he continued:

"I am going to make a charge now, which may land me in jail, but I don't think it will, because I have the facts.

"Late last night an organization—I think the name of it was the National Publishers' Association—sent out word to every newspaper in Greater New York to cover up all facts of the situation, except those in favor of the B. R. T., and to make it look as black as possible from the strikers' standpoint and to suppress all facts of accidents caused by green motormen.

"I make another charge—that whoever is big enough to influence the newspapers didn't do it for nothing.

"In 1916, when the brotherhoods in New York fought for twenty-two days, the Interborough Rapid Transit Company had its Ivy Lee, and the B. R. T. probably has its Ivy Lee.

"To me, this is the brightest spot on the horizon since Saturday night. They have worked and schemed unsuccessfully to get you men back and their backs are against the wall. This is a last desperate attempt on their part. It is only a question of a short time now when they will have to change their attitude and the strike will be at an end.

"My only fear is that they have spent so much money in fighting this strike and in paying big wages to strikebreakers that they actually will have little money left in their treasury.

Assails Receiver Garrison.

"They have called you 'Bolsheviki and outlaws. This is from Lindley M. Garrison."

Hisses interrupted him and continued for five minutes.

"This is the first time that I have allowed hisses at these meetings," continued Mr. Fridiger. "I allowed it this time, because I wanted to see what your sentiments were about this proposal to you to go back to work. These names that he has called he has called to many of you who were on the other side and have brought back scars and wounds."

After some more denunciation of Mr. Garrison, he asked:

"Do you want to go back to work?"

There was a great shout of "No!"

He read the letter of Judge Mayer, and concluded in a storm of hisses and groans.

"This proposition will never be put before you for a vote," he continued, "unless it is put to you as members of the Amalgamated Association. I read this because I wanted the news to go out to the world that we had read the proposition, but refused to put it to you.

"Do you want to hear any proposition from Judge Mayer unless it is addressed to the Amalgamated Association?"

The answer was "No," accompanied by shouts of "To hell with Judge Mayer."

"They will not succeed in destroying the Amalgamated Association," Fridiger continued. "It will live here long after Judge Mayer is dead.

"We stand exactly where we did at the beginning. We are ready to place all questions before a fair tribunal or to sit down and seek an agreement among ourselves with any officials of the company or with such men as they choose to represent them."

"Announcement—The time within which the men may return to work and

Soviet Swindles Italy In First Grain Cargo

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Sept. 3.—Soviet Russia has sprung an unwelcome surprise on Italy in its first eagerly awaited consignement of grain. Out of 4,000 tons from Odessa brought to Naples, 2,300 tons of barley were found to be in such an advanced state of putrefacation that the regular hands engaged in unloading refused to discharge the cargo.

The men's arms and faces were pitted and inflamed as though with scarlatina. Sanitary authorities condemned all but 700 tons of four-year-old wheat, and this was discovered to be heavily charged with earth, filthy rags, illustrated postcards and unexploded cartridges and projectiles of French and British patterns.

SEEK OUR VIEWS ON FAR EAST TREATY

NOT TO BE A PARTY TO IT

But Better Understanding Is Aimed At—Gov. Stephens Confers Also with Colby.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The relations between Japan and the United States have assumed new importance in the light of knowledge obtained today that the American, British and Japanese Governments are engaged in informal conversations with respect to the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance which was renewed in July for a period of only one year. The inclusion of the United States in the negotiations indicates a new deal in international affairs which may have a momentous bearing on present world history.

There is no suggestion that the United States will become a third party to the defensive alliance, which has existed for many years between Great Britain and Japan, but it is evident, from what is known of the situation that the suggestion has been put forth that a better understanding between the three powers concerning their interlocking interests and particularly those in the Far East will have a marked effect upon the effort to insure international peace.

Interest over the knowledge that these informal conversations are in progress was increased by a visit paid today by Governor William D. Stephens of California to Mr. Colby, the Secretary of State. They had a long conference on the Japanese situation, both in respect to its international phases and to the State of California. Afterward Governor Stephens and Secretary Colby each spoke cordially of the spirit manifested by the other. Mr. Colby said that Governor Stephens had impressed him as anxious to take a patriotic position, while Governor Stephens said that he believed that Secretary Colby desired to do the right thing.

Referendum in California.

The main interest of the Government in the California situation arises from the fact that in the November election the people of California will cast a referendum vote on proposed State legislation intended to make much more drastic the existing provisions of California law restricting Japanese subjects especially in their land holding. The fear has been expressed that the enactment of this proposed legislation would arouse Japan to such a degree that the relations of that Government with the United States would be strained to a serious degree. Intertwined with this is the general question of American-Japanese relationship, with the problem of the "open door" in China and the occupation of Russian territory by Japanese troops, the acute phases of it.

It is understood that while the British and Japanese Governments were engaged this year in negotiations for a renewal of their alliance, the United States was anxious to have written into the revised treaty a provision which would make clearer the Japanese attitude toward China. This desire on the part of the United States was the outgrowth of the interpretation placed by Japanese on the phrase "special interests" of Japan in the Lansing-Ishii agreement concluded in Washington during the World War between the then Secretary of State and Viscount Ishii, the head of the Japanese War Mission to the United States. The agreement, which was in reality an exchange of identic notes, recognized Japan's special interests in China. In testimony before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, Mr. Lansing explained that while Viscount Ishii desired that this expression should give to Japan the right to apply the principles of the Monroe Doctrine to China, he declined to assent to this interpretation.

Did Not Recognize "Rights."

Although the expression was included in the agreement it was not intended by the United States to recognize that Japan exercised over China the same degree of protection that this Government derived from the Monroe Doctrine's application to the nations of the Western Hemisphere. The Japanese, however, have been inclined to adopt the interpretation which Viscount Ishii suggested. While it is believed that Great Britain was sympathetic with the desire of the United States to have the expression "special interests" more clearly defined, the renewed Anglo-Japanese treaty of alliance did not contain an interpretative clause.

Men in S-5 Cut Through Stern Above Water and Rigged Up a Signal.

Floods Living Compartment and Sets Chlorine Gas Free—Men's Bravery Praised.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The submarine S-5, from which the crew of thirty-seven were rescued this morning, sank on Wednesday afternoon off the Delaware Capes at 2 o'clock because one of the air intake valves refused to close when the craft made "a quick dive for exercise."

That is contained in an official report made to Washington tonight by radio by one of the boats that stood by and helped in the rescue of the men from the S-5, according to a report here tonight.

The radio message of the Navy Department, the report says, was as follows:

"S-5 made quick dive for exercise at 2 P. M. Wednesday. Large valve in air intake failed to close. Admitted large quantity of water to living spaces.

"Boat went to bottom in 160 feet of water. Got valve closed and expelled all water possible, whereupon stern lifted barely out of water, bow on bottom, inclined down 60 degrees.

"Water ran into forward compartments. Storage batteries gave off strong chlorine fumes.

"Forward compartments vacated and sealed. Continued all possible efforts to expel water. No success. Chlorine also forced vacating control room after which the thirty-seven officers and men crowded into two small machinery spaces aft and soon began to suffer from bad air.

"Finding stern just clear of water, Lieutenant Commander Cooke and crew began drilling through with small hand drills. Very slow work. Could only work two minutes at a time; bad air.

"At 3 P. M. Thursday S. S. Alanthus saw submarine, came close, attention attracted by calling and waving through small hole by now through submarine. Made fast and hung to submarine until relieved Friday morning; no tools. Could not enlarge hole, but saved lives whole crew by pumping air in with small water pump.

"Finally got hole large enough at 3 A. M., Friday, and all officers and crew escaped without permanent injury. All suffering from thirty-seven hours bad air. Some temporarily incapacitated. The captain and some others soon revived and began assisting in salvaging submarine.

"Naval vessels that started from Hampton Roads, Philadelphia, New York and New London began arriving early Friday morning. Ohio now attempting to tow S-5 inshore.

"Consider saving personnel was splendid feat. Slightest mistake after accident on part of officers would have resulted loss of some or all."

According to members of the crew of the destroyer Overton, which arrived at the Philadelphia Navy Yard late tonight after having been to the scene of the disaster, the accident was due to the negligence of some member of the crew.

But all commented on the bravery of the officers and crew of S-5 as they were rescued from the ship. The first request of each man was for a cigarette. Every one of them was wan and pale from the thirty-seven hours spent in the darkness of the sunken hull with all oxygen virtually exhausted.

STORY OF THE RESCUE.

The story of the rescue of the four officers and thirty-three men from the partially submerged submarine S-5 after they had been imprisoned under water for 37 hours was graphically described by the Captain, officers and engineers of the Panama liner General George W. Goethals, when she arrived shortly after 6 o'clock last night at Pier 1, Hoboken. The crew were tired, having been up all Thursday night in liberating the crew of the submarine.

Only one of the rescued crew was knocked out by the trying ordeal, O. Savage, a seaman on the S-5, who was nearly unconscious when he was taken out, but he was recovering under medical care on the United States Shipping Board steamship Alanthus, when the Goethals parted company with her at 3 A. M. yesterday.

Captain E. O. Swensen, who was formerly chief officer of the General Goethals and was making his first voyage in command, said that the chief honors in the rescue of the crew of the S-5 were due to William G. Grace, the chief engineer of the General Goethals, who cut and drilled the ⅝-inch plates of the submarine for six and three-quarters hours, until the hole was large enough to be wrenched open with a crowbar so that the thirty-seven prisoners could be taken out.

"At 5:20 P. M. yesterday," said Captain Swensen, "we were forty-five miles east of the Delaware Capes, with a calm sea and clear weather, when the lookout sighted the Alanthus about seven miles away on the port bow, flying signals of distress. I altered our course and when the Goethals was close up we saw through the glasses that she had submarine S-5 lashed to her stern, with two lines on the starboard side, and that her crew had rigged a staging round the craft, which was about forty-five feet out of the water at an angle of 60 degrees.

"A boat was lowered from the Goethals and I sent the chief engineer, the chief officer, the chief radio operator and two doctors, one being the ship's surgeon and the other Lieutenant Alfred N. Champion of Lelong, Texas, who had been serving in the navy around Haiti, to volunteer their services. These men which boarded the Alanthus, then half a mile away to get the particulars from her commander.

Found S-5 in Thirty Fathoms.

"The latter informed the chief officer that he had arrived on the scene three hours earlier and found the S-5 had gone down in thirty fathoms of water with her bow resting on the bottom. His attention was attracted to the submarine by a pole sticking out of an L-shaped small hole near the stern through which the ingenious navy men had rigged a wire with a shirt lashed to it so that they could haul on the wire and wigwag the garment freely.

"After lowering a boat and pulling round the stern of the craft the Captain of the Alanthus had a staging rigged on the starboard side of the stern and while his two engineers were trying to encourage the men imprisoned inside the exposed steel hull the crew got two lines round the submarine and hauled her as close as possible to the side of the wooden steamship so that she should not be totally submerged. The engineers got a small water pump into the hole in the hull of the submarine which had been chiselled by her crew and tried to pump air into her, but it did not do much good according to the Captain of the Alanthus, other than the moral effect on the crew of the S-5. Occasionally a hose was inserted into the hole and drinking water was given to them, which was very refreshing in the stifling atmosphere of the hold.

"A little later our boat returned to our ship, and William G. Grace, the chief engineer, took the tools he required for the job, and with his first assistant, R. McWilliam, set out for the S-5. C. F. Asche, the chief radio operator of the Goethals, had made an examination of the apparatus on the Alanthus, which had no operator, and said that it could only send within a radius of twenty miles.

"The first radio message of the accident from our ship was sent out at 6 P. M. by H. O. Byers, the assistant operator, and was received by the navy yard in Philadelphia, where the officer in charge dispatched the destroyer Breckinridge, which arrived on the scene at 4:45 A. M. today.

"The passengers on the Goethals were very much excited over the rescue of the forty men from the S-5, but they could not see what was going on very well, as we were half a mile away.

Set to Work to Drill Opening.

"At 7 o'clock everything was ready and Chief Engineer Grace started to work with his ratchet drill making holes about an inch away from the one made originally by the crew of the submarine, until he had covered a surface of about 12 inches by 10. Then came the laborious task of cutting away the steel divisions between the holes with a chisel, but the chief engineer never flinched from his long task. It was 1:20 A. M. before the drilling and chiseling were completed and the chief and his first assistant, McWilliam, were able to wrench open the hull of the submarine with a crowbar.

"The first member of the crew was taken out of the hole by Grace and McWilliam at 1:45 A. M. and at 2:45 the last man, Lieut. Com. Charles M. Cocke, the commander, emerged safely from the hole.

"Despite the severe strain he had undergone during the imprisonment the Lieutenant Commander's last act before leaving his craft was to carefully close all the watertight bulkhead doors after him so that no water could enter the submarine when she was being towed to port.

"The crew of the Alanthus rigged a cargo boom over the side with a gun tackle and a bosun's chair at the end in which the rescued men were seated one after another and carefully brought on board.

Men Revived Quickly.

"The crew of the S-5 appeared to be weak and showed signs of the terrible strain they had gone through. They had been unable to get any food during the time of their imprisonment, except some slight emergency rations. They revived immediately they felt the fresh salt air blow on their cheeks, and after some hot coffee and a good meal their condition was very much improved, and the doctor was of the opinion that they would all be quite fit again after a few days rest, with the exception of Seaman O. Savage, who looked pretty bad when they got him out. He will recover, too, but he will take longer than the others.

"It is difficult to say how much longer they would have survived if help had not arrived.

"Lieut. Commander Cooke said that his men behaved like good sports and made no complaint over the predicament they were in, although they were aware that if aid did not come within a certain number of hours they would all be suffocated."

"We did not see any buoy," Captain Swensen added, "neither was there a buzzer anywhere handy to communicate with the imprisoned crew. Their ingenuity in rigging the pole at the stern with the shirt as a flag, a garment which has served the same purpose many times for sailing ships, was the only signal they had to attract passing ships.

Captain Swensen Takes No Credit.

"After the crew had been cared for the destroyer Breckenridge arrived. The Goethals' head was then turned once more toward New York, and here we are."

In speaking of the episode in which his ship and crew had played such an important part the Captain declined to take any credit to himself, and wanted it given to his officers and crew.

William G. Grace, the chief engineer, was even more reluctant to talk than his Captain and said that the crew of the Goethals had done no more than others would have done had they been in their place, "and after all, it's all in a day's work."

He estimated, by the rush of heat which came out of the submarine when the hole was opened out by himself and McWilliam with the crowbar, that the temperature down below must have been fully 150 degree. It was made more stifling, he said, by the carbon-dioxide thrown off from the bodies of the imprisoned crew.

"I understand," the Chief Engineer continued, "that the S-5 was about to submerge, when something went wrong and her bow filled with water, carrying it to the bed of the ocean, and all efforts of the crew to right the craft failed. She finally remained in the position in which we found her, with her stern at an angle of 60 degrees. She was about 230 feet long, I should judge.

"I felt repaid for any trouble that I had taken when I saw the men emerge from what might have proved to be their living tomb. Many of the men had a wild, haggard look, with bloodshot eyes and swollen lips, but they were a manly lot and did no grumbling.

"After they had been supplied with a meal on the Alanthus and had a smoke they were a different lot, I can tell you, and it was difficult to realize the narrow escape they had had.

"It was the sighting of the signal shirt on the pole by the Alanthus that did the trick and saved the crew of the S-5, and not the work of punching the hole in the steel plates, which could have been done by any one if they had been supplied with the proper tools."

Speaking of the work of cutting through the steel plates, he said: "We were cheered in our work, which was long and fatiguing, by shouts from the men underneath us that they were getting fresh air through the holes that had been cut, and we tackled the job again with renewed vigor.

"I wish to say that I received valuable help from my assistant, who relieved me at times, and if we had only had an acetylene torch the work of freeing the 37 men could have been performed in a few minutes instead of taking six and three-quarter hours."

Dr. J. B. Solsberg, the surgeon of the General Goethals, said that the rescue was accomplished just in time and added that in a few days their experience in that craft would only be a terrible memory.

Apart from the army officials there were very few persons on the pier at Hoboken last night when the Goethals was made fast, and the few people who had assembled to greet the crew were kept out by orders of the officer on duty.

Officers of the steamship said that they had heard later in the day that the officers and men rescued from the S-5 had been transferred from the Alanthus to the U. S. Battleship Ohio, which had also taken the partially submerged craft in tow and was making for the Delaware Capes.

BATTLESHIP TAKES S-5 IN TOW.

The Ohio Is On Its Way to Delaware Breakwater With Rescued Men.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—The battleship Ohio with the crew of the S-5 and with the submarine in tow is proceeding to the Delaware Breakwater. A message issued this afternoon by the Navy says:

"All persons who were on the submarine S-5 have been saved. They are now on board the battleship Ohio. The submarine is now in latitude 38.30, longitude 74.02. This places her position approximately seventy-five miles southward from the entrance to the Delaware Bay. The Ohio has not yet started to tow the submarine, but she is preparing to proceed immediately with the submarine in tow for the harbor at the Delaware Breakwater."

How the crew of the S-5, working in total darkness, bored a five-inch hole through the double hull of the submarine and stuck through it a distress signal that brought the steamship Alanthus to its rescue was brought to Philadelphia tonight by Commander H. D. Cook, commanding officer of the Destroyer Billingsby, which was among the first boats to reach the scene.

Commander Cook, who is not to be confused with Commander C. M. Cooke, commanding officer of the S-5, was bringing the Billingsby to League Island after a practice cruise off Newport, R. I.

Captain Johnson of the Alanthus told Commander Cook he was heading north about 54 miles southeast of Henlopen Light when he saw an object sticking up out of the water. The Captain thought it looked like the stern of a submarine and headed his vessel in toward it. When he came within hailing distance, he could see that it actually was a submarine.

When the Captain neared the hull, he saw sticking out of the side of the hull a long pole, to which had been attached a white cloth, a signal of distress. This was being waved frantically to and fro by the men in the hull.

The position of the submarine was such that the forward compartments of the boat had to be abandoned and the officers and enlisted men were huddled together in only a small fraction of the interior of the boat.

The men closed and sealed the airtight and watertight doors leading into the flooded compartments, but even before they could do that the water had reached the batteries and the generation of chlorine gas had begun adding to the torture of imprisonment.

This darkness left the men imprisoned without any instruments to determine the angle at which their craft was standing. For all they knew the entire boat might have been under water.

The hole Lieut. Commander Cooke allowed to be bored through the hull of his ship was evidetly the last desperate chance. If the stern had not been above water the men would have been drowned.

As soon as Commander Gibson, commander of the submarine repair base at League Island, heard of the plight of the S-5 he wired to Washington for plans of the boat. They were sent here by special messenger, arriving at the navy yard at 7 o'clock last night. Commander Gibson immediately set out on the destroyer Biddle to go to the aid of the boats working over the S-5.

DANIELS THANKS RESCUERS.

Calls for Report on the Accident to the Submarine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Secretary Daniels said late this afternoon that while he was very anxious to have a detailed report on the accident to the submarine S-5 he thought the first thing to do was to rescue the men from the submarine, and therefore he had sent no messages that might interfere with that work. This afternoon, however, after he had learned that the officers and crew were safely on board the battleship Ohio, Secretary Daniels sent a telegram to Admiral Huse, commandant of the Fourth Naval District at Philadelphia, to send a detailed report on the accident and rescue to the Navy Department.

Secretary Daniels said that he would make this report public as soon as it was received, but up to a late hour tonight the report had not reached the Navy Department.

Secretary Daniels has sent the following dispatch to Captain E. C. Robert of the steamship Alanthus, who rendered assistance to the disabled S-5:

"The Navy Department wishes to express to you its thanks and deep appreciation for the prompt and efficient assistance which you rendered to the United States submarine S-5. Through your prompt action the lives of the officers and men of the S-5 have been saved and the navy is very grateful to you."

The text of three messages sent by the steamer General Goethals to the commandant of the Fourth Naval District at Philadelphia last night, and relayed to the Navy Department, one of which described the accident as due to the submarine being "partially flooded while making a crash dive," was given out today by the department.

The first message, timed at 1:35 A. M., follows:

At 3:34 A. M. the following message was received:

"All men on submarine are now on board steamship Alanthus. Captain came out last. Men in pretty bad shape, but now recovering. None are injured."

The third message, sent at 5:41 A. M., read:

"Submarine S-5 partially flooded while making crash dive, latitude 38 degrees north, longitude 74 degrees west. Crew and officers all saved. Request press and relatives be notified. S-5 at an inclination of about sixty degrees down by the bow, now secured to steamship Alanthus and being towed to Delaware Breakwater. Boat can be salvaged. Crew and officers still aboard Alanthus."

Naval officers today described a "crash dive" such as was said to have resulted in the partial flooding of the S-5 as simply a rapid submersion. It requires operation of all submersion gear in a minimum of time, but does not throw any more strain on the submarine or its mechanism than a slower submersion.

Secretary Daniels announced that the officers of the S-5 are:

Lieutenant Commander Charles M. Cooke, Jr., Wellesley, Mass.

Ensign J. B. Langstaff, O'Neill, Neb.

Gunner Robert Holt, Indianapolis, Ind.

Bender, William John, C. M. M., West Falls, N. Y.

Lord, Burton James, seaman, Cambridge, Md.

Miller, Samuel J., seaman, Philadelphia.

Nelson, Walter, electrician, Methuen, Mass.

Osavage Joseph, A. S., Elco, Pa.

Otto, Ramon, C. E., Rock, Mass.

Ulrich, George Michael, A. S., Baltimore, Md.

Urban, Anton Joseph, A. S., Parkville, Md.

Wininger, Raymond Jennings, Cox., Luttrell, Tenn.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Judging from yesterday's report of the Federal auditor, Mr. Pride, and the figures tabulated by State authorities, investors in Charles Ponzi's scheme will receive no more than 30 cents on the dollar. The total of Ponzi's unpaid notes reported to Attorney General Allen reached $5,208,661.54 today, including the 50 per cent. profit promised. The total of individuals who have filed unpaid notes is 12,750.

Ponzi, according to the estimate by the auditor, took in $9,814,884.70 in actual cash. On matured notes and in the "run" he paid out $7,824,650.77. The difference between these two figures is $1,990,325.53, which would be sufficient to pay about 50 cents on the dollar of the investments recorded at the State House.

Unofficial figures have credited Ponzi with having about $2,000,000 left. Miss Lucy Meli, former office manager for Ponzi, and other Ponzi employes were before the Suffolk Grand Jury today.

TWO FACE DEATH IN MEXICO.

Bandit Zamora Threatens to Kill American and Britisher.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 3.—Pedro Zamora, the Jalisco bandit, has threatened to execute W. A. (Sandy) Gardiner, an American citizen, and Bertie C. Johnson, a British subject, who were kidnapped by Zamora's band at Cuale on Aug. 20. This information has been given to Government authorities by deserting members of the Zamora force, who say that the threat to kill the two captives may be put into execution if the men are not ransomed immediately, according to dispatches received from military headquarters at Guadalajara.

It is reported that Zamora has refused to answer communications from the Government, presumably relative to the release of the two prisoners, and it is said he has increased the amount of ransom demanded. The Esperanza Mining Company, which employed Gardiner at Cuale, is holding the ransom money ready, upon advice of the United States Consul here, but it is declared that the company has not been able to communicate with the outlaw.

The Government is exerting every effort to obtain the release of the two men without paying ransom. Federal troops are said to be close behind Zamora, who is reported to have sought refuge near the El Panal Mountains in western Jalisco.

MINE WORKERS' WIRE APPEAL TO WILSON

lieries are working with half-sized forces. It is probable that a greater number will be idle tomorrow on account of Saturday.

Many miners believe the purpose of the strike has been served in that they have made known their dissatisfaction but it is not likely that the backbone of the strike will be broken before Wednesday.

The locals are voting to go back and all the miners were impressed today by the news that their scale committee had appealed to President Wilson for a reopening of the award.

Operators today showed optimism and stated their belief that their immediate troubles will be over by the middle of next week. Union officials, with great faith in the public and President Wilson, spent the day in preparing plans for an appeal to the nation's Executive and urging the men to return to work.

Union leaders were optimistic, declaring that by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, the insurgent "vacation" will be at an end. Much of the success of the missionary work by loyal unionists depends on a favorable answer from President Wilson to the telegram asking for a re-opening of the negotiations.

The strike has caused a serious business depression in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Pottsville, Shamokin and surrounding towns. Hundreds of men are leaving the hard coal region daily. Some are going to farms, some to Western cities and a large number into the soft coal fields.

There was some disorder at Dupont today, and Sheriff John MacLuskie was called. Federal agents were seeking the distributors of inflammatory literature, calling on miners to refuse to help countries which are fighting Russia and urging workers to "overthrow their Government and adopt the Soviet protelariat system."

Washington Calls Conciliators.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Labor Department took steps today toward preparing for possible conciliatory intervention by the Government in the anthracite "vacation." Three officials of the Bureau of Conciliation, J. J. S. Rogers, Charles J. Furry and J. Purcell were ordered here for conference. They will discuss the situation and be held for assignment to the anthracite field.

BOY 'INDIAN' KILLS BEANSHOOTER FOE

ALL FLEE AFTER TRAGEDY

Wounded Youngster Found by Neighbor Dies Two Hours Later in Yonkers Hospital.

Frank Otrofsky, 12 years old, of 423 Walnut Street, Yonkers, with his sister Helen, 3, and their cousins, John and Raymond Dynnicki, 12 and 10, respectively, of 20 Centre Street, were performing an Indian war dance around a bonfire yesterday afternoon in the woods at Yonkers Avenue, near Rumsey Road, Yonkers, when half a dozen other boys came along and began to shoot pebbles at them with beanshooters.

Frank had brought along a .32-calibre pistol and a belt of cartridges with which to make any stray Indian "bite the dust." So when he and his party were bombarded with pebbles he started to shoot.

The little fellow's aim was poor. When he had emptied the pistol his opponents returned to the attack. As he was reloading the weapon a pebble struck him in the centre of the forehead, raising a large lump.

Enraged, he ran toward his tormentors, and as one of them, William Barrigan, 12 years old of 279 Nepperhan Avenue, jumped from behind a tree with his bean shooter Frank pulled the trigger of the pistol. "Willie" fell in a heap.

Frank became frightened when he saw blood gushing from a wound in "Willie's" forehead, and grabbing his sister in his arms he and his cousins fled from the woods, throwing the pistol and the cartridges aside in their flight. "Willie" Barrigan's companions also ran away.

Fifteen minutes later a neighbor found the unconscious boy and notified the police. "Willie" died in St. John's Hospital two hours later.

All the boys were taken before Coroner Engle at an inquest last night and revealed the details of the shooting. Frank was arrested as a juvenile delinquent, and will be arraigned in the Police Court this morning.

The police are endeavoring to learn where he got the pistol.

SEE ANTI-FRENCH SPIRIT GROWING IN GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Dr. Mayer, who has been German Chargé d'Affaires in Paris since the ratification of the Peace Treaty, was to have presented his credentials to President Deschanel today at the President's country seat at Rambouillet, on his appointment as first German Ambassador since the war, but a hitch has occurred which has delayed the little ceremony.

It was due to the late receipt by the French Foreign Office of the news that Germany had accepted all the demands for reparation made on account of the recent incidents at Breslau. Dr. Mayer was informed this morning that until official notice that these demands had been accepted had been received he could not present his credentials, and when such a communication did arrive at noon today it was too late to alter the arrangements.

The incident serves to show how acute the feeling still is between the two countries. Even in Germany, the French say, the demands they made were recognized as moderate, and here there are many critics who loudly declare that they erred in asking too little.

This feeling gains strength in view of the anti-French movement in Hamburg of which information has been received. The walls of that city are said to be plastered with anti-French posters, and the local newspapers filled with anti-French propaganda. The result, the French fear, will be an outbreak sooner or later with incidents similar to those at Breslau, for which the German Government, in not taking immediate action to control the movement, is held to have incurred serious responsibility.

Trouble in Hamburg means to the French trouble in the Ruhr.

How easy it is in Germany just now to stir up anti-French feeling to the rioting point has been made very apparent at Breslau and at Kattowitz. At the latter place a movement primarily directed against the Poles quickly became anti-French at the leaking out of the news that French metallurgical concerns had purchased interests in local workshops.

In accepting the demand for reparations made by the French Government for the Breslau outrages, Germany has not in any way reassured the French as to her good faith. They regard it as her duty to take measures to prevent the occurrence of any more such incidents, and they see no signs that she is doing so.

Another incident has developed in connection with the crossing of the German frontier by Russian troops under Polish pressure. Victor Kopp, the Soviet agent in Berlin, has sent a protest to the German Government against these men being disarmed, and the Germans seem disposed to let them return to Russia instead of interning them. Such action would be considered an infringement of the neutrality Germany proclaimed at the time of the Bolshevist advance on Warsaw, and the French are closely watching what action the German Government will take in reply to Kopp's demand.

QUEEN GREETS PILGRIMS.

Wilhelmina Receives Americans After Holland Celebration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 3.—Queen Wilhelmina, at her Summer palace, Het Loo, today received Mr. Phillips, the American Minister, together with the commanding officer, Captain Pitt Scott, and six other officers of the United States cruiser Frederick, which arrived here from Antwerp for the Pilgrim celebrations.

Mr. Phillips and the officers were invited to luncheon by the Queen, who was most gracious, and talked cordially lady in waiting. After luncheon the officers were shown through the palace grounds.

The final Pilgrim celebration in Rotterdam Harbor was remarkable for other woman present was the Queen's with each of the officers. The only the deep sentiment shown by the modern "Pilgrims." On reaching the actual spot on Delfshaven Quay, where the Pilgrims embarked in the Speedwell, a short prayer was said, whereupon the delegates fell on their knees. A large crowd soon collected, and the prayers and speeches were translated into Dutch for the benefit of the crowd.

The only woman speaker in the Dutch celebration was Mrs. Cort Vanlandenin, formerly Mary Hazell, of New York, representing the members of the Daughters of Holland Dames, who made an address at the farewell dinner, in which she suggested the idea of "canonization" of Pastor Robinson and proposed the celebration of yearly pilgrimages.

TWO B. R. T. STRIKERS SENT TO WORKHOUSE

BOTTLES HURLED AT CAR

Detective Cut in Battle to Prevent Rescue of Prisoner—Police Harsh, Fridiger Complains.

Sporadic disorders, started by strikers and their sympathizers, occurred in several parts of Brooklyn yesterday, although the situation generally was reported by the police as "quiet." Two strikers received workhouse sentences, two were fined and several others were held under bail on charges of disorderly conduct.

Magistrate Folwell in sentencing two strikers to the workhouse, declared: "The public, I believe, is against this strike. The men who operate the cars are to be commended. Their safety must be protected for the sake of the public."

The prisoners were Tony Ricucci, 33 years old, a guard, of 9 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, and Hayden Payne, 35, a motorman, of 121 Bay Twenty-sixth Street. Ricucci was accused of having had a verbal encounter with a strikebreaking guard of the Fourth Avenue subway at the Thirty-third Street Station and with threatening to "get" the guard. He will spend ten days in the workhouse. Payne was charged with placing ash cans on the Third Avenue surface car tracks at Fifty-fifth Street and Third Avenue. He received a five-day sentence.

Richard W. Butler, 108 Utica Avenue, and Joseph Dooner, striking motormen, were fined $10 each in the Adams Street Court. It was charged that Butler shouted to passengers on cars near Borough Hall: "Remember the Malbone Street wreck. You are riding with scabs." Dooner refused to leave the platform of the elevated station at Myrtle Avenue and Bridge Street.

Bottles Hurled at Open Car.

The most serious disturbance yesterday occurred at De Kalb and Sumner Avenues when two strikers hurled milk bottles at an open car in which fifteen passengers were riding. The policeman on the car blew his whistle and the men who had thrown the bottles started to run, but plumped into three detectives of the Vernon Avenue Station. The strikers set up a cry of "Scab!" and about 200 persons, most of them strikers and strike sympathizers, surrounded the detectives and their prisoners. The detectives drew their revolvers and scattered the crowd, then took their prisoners to the station. The prisoners said they were Lep Fink, 19, of 927 De Kalb Avenue, and Charles E. Cahn, 19, of 925 De Kalb Avenue. They were held in $2,000 bail for examination Tuesday on a charge of felonious assault. In the struggle following their arrest one of the detectives, Abt, received a cut on one of his wrists that required two stitches.

Isaac Berkman, 87 Hart Street, a striker, was held in $500 bail for examination Tuesday on a charge of throwing a bench through a window of a De Kalb Avenue car at Vanderbilt Avenue. Berkman was riding in a motor bus at the time.

Edward Feeney, 45, of 444 St. Marks Avenue, who said that he was not a striker, was arrested for climbing a pole at Bergen and Classon Avenue in an attempt, it was believed, to throw out a switch and cut off the current feeding the Bergen Street trolley.

Jacob Goldstein, 446 Alabama Avenue, a striker, and Jacob Markoff, 398 Watkins Avenue, a strike sympathizer, were held in $200 bail on charges of disorderly conduct. They were accused by Patrolman Sulzbach of the Brownsville Station of hitting passengers with newspapers and knocking their hats off at the Sutter Avenue station of the Broadway-Canarsie elevated line.

Anthony Dudley, a striking motorman, of 335 Fifty-eighth Street, was held in $300 bail for examination Tuesday in the Fifth Avenue Court. He is alleged to have refused to move from in front of the car barns at Fifty-ninth Street and Third Avenue.

Strikebreaker Is Held.

Joseph Di Marzo, a strikebreaker, of 1,589 Seventy-ninth Street, was held for Special Sessions on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Di Marzo was taking out a Vanderbilt Avenue car when strikers complained to the police that he was carrying a billy made from a baseball bat. Di Marzo declared that he had been kicked in the leg by a striker and that he was carrying the weapon to protect himself against further attacks.

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the amalgamated, announced yesterday that he had offered $100 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any policeman assaulting a member of the union.

"I have always had the utmost regard for the members of the New York Police Department," said Mr. Fridiger, "and their actions of the last few days came as a severe blow. It is outrageous for the police officers to beat men because they take advantage of the privilege which is rightfully theirs, that of striking when differences between themselves and employers cannot be settled otherwise. Men who are out on strike have a right to picket if they care to do so just so long as they do it in an orderly manner and peacefully. It is the duty of the police officers to arrest the men who create disturbances to the annoyance of others, but they have no right to beat them as they have been clubbed."

TRAFFIC JAM IS LESSENED.

Improvement in Manhattan Noted as B. R. T. Service Increases.

Traffic congestion in Manhattan, due to the B. R. T. strike, was lessened to a great extent yesterday, indicating an improvement in the B. R. T. service and also an extension of the emergency transportation facilities started by the city and transportation agencies unaffected by the strike. Cross-town cars on the Thirty-fourth and Twenty-third Street lines were handling normal crowds to and from the East River for the first time during the strike. Vehicular traffic over the Brooklyn and Williamsburg Bridges showed a marked decrease, and there was less congestion on the Interborough lines running to Brooklyn.

A sixteen-year-old girl, Jennie Smith of 2,775 Eighth Avenue, Manhattan, was badly crushed in a subway rush at the Queensboro subway station at the Grand Central yesterday afternoon. She was taken to Long Island Hospital, suffering from injuries to her right leg and probably internal injuries.

At the Times Square Station, B. R. T. trains were running last night on a twenty-minute schedule over the West End line from Times Square to Bay Parkway, Brooklyn, and over the Brighton Beach Line. No trains were run on the Sea Beach line. At 8 o'clock and 11 o'clock there was an increase in service to accommodate the theatre crowds.

NO END OF THE LINE FOR THIS B. R. T. CAR

New Crew Keeps on Going Out Long Island Until Overhauled by Official in Auto.

A field Inspector of the Public Service Commission reported to the commission yesterday that one of the surface cars manned by strike breakers, had got lost, had many adventures on strange tracks and was finally overtaken by company officials in a txicab, when it was speeding east at no great distance from a westbound car on the same track.

The motorman was from up-State and the conductor was a Bronx man who had never seen any reason for making a visit to Brooklyn previous to the strike. They started on a crowded Richmond Hill car for the Jamaica Avenue terminal, where they were scheduled to switch and return.

Instead of stopping at the Jamaica terminal, however, the motorman contrived to go straight ahead. The starter ran shouting after him but could not halt him. The crew brought the car to a stop at Canal Street, Queens, where the bewildered passengers alighted. Evidently aware that some thing was wrong, the motorman and conductor held a short consultation, and then the conductor cried:

The green conductor pulled the bell, and the skipper let go the brakes and set out to try some new lines. They paid no attention to the cries of the marooned passengers and were soon on their way out over Long Island.

Passengers who had been deposited a few miles from their destinations and B. R. T. men who had observed the course of the tramp car, began to telephone to headquarters and the searching party was sent out in a taxicab. When they got on its trail the green motorman was laying a course towards Mineola along a railroad which does not belong to the B. R. T. system. Overhealing it and speeding abreast of it, the B. R. T. official shouted from the auto:

"Hey, you fellows, you are on the wrong road. Start back quick. A car is due any minute coming from the other direction."

The motorman halted the car. He thought at first that he was being tricked by a striker, but was finally convinced that the man was actually one of his superiors on the B. R. T. system. He learned then that he was headed the wrong way on a one-track road of the Long Island Traction Company. He then consented to backtrack and weave his way to the Richmond Hill line again.

BUSINESS BUILDING DEALS.

The New York Life Insurance and Trust Company and Harry de B. Parsons sold to the Manville Securities Corporation, representing clients of Wing & Russell, attorneys, the four-story building at 294 Madison Avenue, on a lot 24 by 96.7, for $170,000. The parcel adjoins the twelve-story Johns-Manville Building at the southwest corner of Forty-first Street. The purchase is understood to have been made in behalf of the Johns-Manville Company.

Charles F. Noyes Company sold for the Samuel D. Babcock estate to Dr. Alexander Kahanowicz the five-story store and office building, 24 Barclay Street, southwest corner of Church, covering lot 25 by 61. The property was held at $100,000. Dr. Alexander Kahanowicz for many years was Secretary to Count Paderewski, recent President of the Polish Republic, and he will occupy the premises for the sale of manuscripts, books and religious publications.

George J. Hecht, dealer in hides, bought for $25,000 from Abraham L. Newman the five-story building at 29 Ferry Street, on a lot 25.7 by 118.1.

The Central Union Trust Company sold to James S. and Daniel L. Reardon the four-story buildings at 402 to 406 Cherry Street, on a plot 64.1 by 97.8

Norvin H. Green, who recently bought 144 East Fifty-seventh Street, has purchased the adjoining three-story building at 142, 18.9 by 100.5, from Henry B. Anderson. He now controls a frontage of 37.6 feet at this point.

Annie Widder sold to the Homat Realty Company the four-story stable at 335 West 49th Street, 25 by 100.5.

Vito G. Viverito has bought from an estate for $31,000 the five-story building at 371 Pearl Street, on a lot 20 by 75.6 by irregular, adjoining the northwest corner of Hague Street.

Michael Kaufman resold to Abraham and Isidor Shapiro the five-story building at 77 Fifth Avenue, on a lot 30 by 100, located between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets.

CAPTURE TRAIN STEALERS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Seven men, believed to be "outlaw" switchmen and members of the gang who ran off with a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul freight train early today, after beating the crew and throwing them from the train at West, North and Narragansett Avenues, were captured by detectives and police from the Cragin station today, after they had abandoned the train in the Grand Avenue yards.

The men were partly identified by Joseph Smith, a switchman, as members of the gang which had slugged him previous to the theft of the train and had taken his automobile and $12.

The capture of the train followed a series of fights between outlaw strikers and employes of the road early last night. Two hours later the police received a call that the outlaws had broken out again and this time had flagged a loaded freight train bound for Savannah, Ill., had beaten the crew and ridden away with the train.

$24,000,000 Company Brings $2,200.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 2.—The entire capital stock of the Rhode Island Company, which originally cost the New Haven Railroad $24,000,000 when the company was formed to operate that road's trolley interests in this State, was sold today at public auction for $2,200.

BURRELL RESIGNS; DENIES WRONGDOING

State Treasurer Quits as Bank Officials Testify State Deposits Followed Advertising.

AMOUNTS WITHIN THE LAW

But Institution Felt It Was "Held Up" for Patronage of State Official's Agency.

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell announced his resignation tonight. In a statement he said time would demonstrate that his conduct of the office was without reproach. He asked his "friends and well-wishers" not to vote for his renomination at the State primaries next Tuesday.

William H. Stickney, Vice President and Treasurer of the Metropolitan Trust Company, testified at a public hearing today that his bank had placed about $8,000 worth of advertising with the agency conducted by Fred U. Burrell, State Treasurer. After the advertising had started in April last, he said, the deposit of State money in the bank was increased from $100,000 to $200,000, but three withdrawals in July and August reduced it to $100,000 again.

Mr. Stickney was the first bank official to testify at the opening hearing by the special legislative committee appointed by Governor Coolidge to investigate the conduct of the State Treasurer.

Robert E. Fay, one of the Vice Presidents of the Exchange Trust Company, said his bank began advertising through the Burrell agency in February last and had placed advertising costing $11,632. The $145,000 of State money on deposit at the bank in January was increased through successive deposits, with only one withdrawal, to $300,000 in June, but in August had been reduced to $189,061.

Both bank officials testified that the amount of State money on deposit at their banks at no time this year had exceeded the 40 per cent. of their paid-up capital which the law stipultes as the maximum to be placed in any institution; they told also of the receipt by their banks of circular letters from Burrell after his election announcing his intention of continuing in the advertising business while holding office.

Questioned by members of the committee as to why Surles, the head of the bank's advertising department, had recommended using the Burrell Agency, Mr. Stickney said:

"I think it was Surles's idea that we would do far better and keep what deposits of State money we had."

He was asked if the deposit of $100,000 with the Metropolitan Trust Company on May 12 resulted from the placing of the bank's advertising with the Burrell Agency.

"No, I will not say that," he replied, "but it does seem to have been pretty closely connected with it."

Mr. Surles testified that Burrell's circular letter was turned over to him, but that he took no action on it for several weeks. In April he had an interview with Burrell, after the State Treasurer had withdrawn $100,000 from the Metropolitan Trust Company.

"I made up my mind," he testified, "that it was a hold up game and that it would be good business for me to let him have part of the company's advertising."

MORE COAL FROM GERMANY.

Deliveries to France Last Month Exceeded 1,600,000 Tons.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The French Government made known today that the Germans had delivered 1,500,000 tons of coal up to Aug. 28 and said it was estimated that the total deliveries for the month exceeded 1,600,000 tons.

This would be 400,000 tons below the deliveries promised by the Germans at Spa, but the Government statement said the rate of increase in production indicated that the Germans might in September and October make up the deficiency and reach the required 6,000,000 tons for the quarter.

British, French, Italian and German delegates have arrived at Stresa, Italy, for a conference at which will be arranged the conditions of payments and advances to be made to Germany for the delivery of coal to the Allies.

be accorded full seniority and other privileges, in accordance with Judge Mayer's offer, expires at noon on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 1920.

"Receiver."

Service was considerably improved yesterday on subway, elevated and surface lines. The crowds suffered still less hardship, though tens of thousands had to walk considerable distances. Miscellaneous vehicles did a smaller business. Not quite as many vans, motor trucks and taxicabs were mobilized yesterday, because of the shrinkage of business.

Though feeling ran high after the threat to break the union, there was no great amount of violence and disorder. Several accidents, in which passengers were injured through the mistakes of strikebreakers who were not thoroughly familiar with the mechanism of the cars, were reported during the day.

The police were energetic and kept groups of strikers scattering. The strike leaders complained vehemently that peaceful pickets were being clubbed, and company officials praised police efficiency—a striking contrast with the situation last year, when the company heads charged that the police remained indifferent while crowds collected, and were not overzealous when they saw acts of violence and intimidation.

The police policy this year was to drive off men as they started to collect, while last year it was not to intervene until overt acts of violence were committed, the result last year being that the police did not interfere while crowds collected, and, when collected, they frequently overcome the police.

With the police acting energetically and Brooklyn's hardships lessened, the struggle became fundamentally a matching of the finances of the company with the finances of the strikers.

The men have no strike fund and the individuals are left almost entirely on their own resources to maintain themselves during the progress of the strike. With its depleted treasury the company is facing heavy bills for the hiring of strikebreakers, while its income from fares has been reduced to a very low point.

The cost to the B. R. T. for the first week of the strike, which ends tonight, is about $600,000, estimating the fares at one-fourth the usual number. The normal weekly gross income of the company is $800,000. The company saves about $350,000 a week, which would normally be paid to the men on strike, but most of this is probably eaten up in double pay to the men who stick to their jobs and large wages to strikebreakers furnished by strikebreaking agencies.

While the strike leaders assert that the money being spent on the strike would have met their demands, if paid for the purpose, the expenditure for breaking the strike is regarded by representatives of the company as a capital outlay. They calculate that it will more than pay for itself in the future by averting further strikes and the losses attendant on them, while paying it in concessions to the demands of the union would result in fresh demands and probably fresh strikes from year to year.

Judge Mayer refused to say anything yesterday by way of amplifying his letter of the day before. Among his visitors were Amy Wren, President of the Brooklyn organization of women, and Mrs. Mary A. Murray, President of the Women's Association of the B. R. T., who offered to assist him in any way in fighting the strike, alleging that the Amalgamated Association was attempting to drive out all women employed by the road, in spite of the fact that many women had helped them win the strike a year ago.

Switch Tampered With.

A switch at Broadway and Ralph Avenues, Brooklyn, which automatically directs traffic on the Broadway and Lexington Avenue elevated lines, was tampered with last night. The vandalism was discovered when a Broadway train, traveling at a faster rate than do the Lexington Avenue trains, taking the curve, was shot onto the Lexington Avenue tracks. Investigation showed that a stone had been wedged in the switch. The quick application of airbrakes to the Broadway train, before it had completely made the turn is believed to have saved it from plunging to the street.

The first call to the police to settle a fight between strikebreakers was received last night when they were summoned to the East New York barns. Fifty strikebreakers had engaged in a free-for-all fight following a dispute about a pool game, on which many bets had been placed. The strikebreakers wielded billiard cues, but were soon subdued by the free use of the policemen's clubs. One man was attended for a lacerated scalp.

In Flatbush strikers "burned out" a trolley feed wire by placing a long pipe from the overhead wire to the tracks below, destroying the wire for two blocks in the neighborhood of Malbone Street and Kingston Avenue.

Three women were slightly injured in a crash between two Fulton Street trolley cars, manned by strikebreakers, at Fulton and St. Felix Streets last night while the cars were on their last trip. A car in charge of Ralph O'Brien rammed a trolley operated by John Bliss.

Miss Jessie Johnson, 26, of 176 James Street, Hackensack, N. J., suffered a fracture of the right arm and was taken to the Brooklyn Hospital. Miss Bertha Wilson, 23, of 116 West 129th Street, Manhattan, received contusions of the right eye, and Miss Mary Murray, 18, of 88 Wolcott Street, was cut on the cheek. They were attended by Dr. Gibbs of the Brooklyn Hospital and continued their journey.

Mayor Hylan was not heard from officially yesterday. He transmitted the letter of Judge Mayer to the strike leaders, but issued no statement of his own, and made no further effort to advise or conciliate. He made a tour of the part of Brooklyn adjacent to his home to observe strike conditions.

SAYS UNION IS B. R. T. ISSUE.

Strikers' Counsel Charges That Real Fight Is Against the Amalgamated.

"From Judge Mayer's statement it is now apparent to everyone that the only real reason for the strike was the desire of Judge Mayer and Judge Garrison to destroy the organization of the employes of the B. R. T. I personally have felt all along that the only real issue was one of unionism.

"Judge Mayer's charge that he will not deal with employes who are members of the Amalgamated Association because they violated their contract is absolutely untrue. He does not see fit to notify the public in or through his communication with the Mayor as to the manner in which he claims the contract was violated. His failure in this respect is undoubtedly caused by reason of the fact that there is not even a suggestion of evidence upon which he could possibly base such a charge.

"The thinking public, I hope, will not believe it simply because he said so. On the other hand, if any agreement has been violated such violation has been committed by Judge Mayer and Judge Garrison. On Aug. 19, 1919, both of these gentlemen personally signed an agreement to arbitrate without limitation or qualification all differences that might thereafter arise between them and the employes, and further that they would abide by the decision of the Board of Arbitration. When the present difficulties arose last month I exhausted every human effort to induce them to arbitrate. I appealed to the Mayor and the Board of Estimate and they attempted to induce them to arbitrate, but all of no avail. They would arbitrate, but only in their own way, and that was they wanted to be one of the parties and wanted to be the judge at the same time.

"The men were willing to abide by the decision, be it in their favor or against them, but Judge Mayer insisted that as far as wages were concerned he should have the right to reduce or modify the award if, in his judgment and in the light of the financial ability of the company, this should be done.

"So the question of what should be paid to the men would eventually have to be left to him. This, as far as we are concerned, is the sole and only cause of the strike.

"From what has transpired and from the cold, bare facts themselves, it appears that no arbitration is wanted, no negotiations desired, and no settlement permitted, because with them, or any of them, the men would necessarily retain their union. When all other propositions and situations were met by the men, when counter-proposals by the men were eminently fair, when the last prop was cut from under the false contention made by the other side, we at last found out that Judge Mayer cannot give consideration to any proposal originating with the Amalgamated, even though transmitted through me by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and 'I will not deal with them, either directly or indirectly.'

"This, to my mind, was always the true state of affairs. The union was never wanted on the Brooklyn property, and, being there, it must be gotten rid of.

"We did not bring about this situation. We tried to avoid it. We did not want this fight. We did our best to stay out of this; but as long as we have been forced into it we are not going to run away from it. We have not the prestige of a Federal Judge in back of us. We have not the influence created because of so dignified a position. We have not the machinery of the Federal Court at our disposal; but, tremendous elements though they be, we have with us factors even greater, more powerful and more convincing. They are right, truth and justice. We have all three of these elements on our side, and with them we will fight back in defense of our rights, and we will win."

GAIN IN B. R. T. SURFACE CARS.

Maximum Is 409 on 21 Lines—More Promised for Today.

There was great improvement in the B. R. T. surface car service yesterday, and from 4 to 7 P. M. 409 cars were running on twenty-one lines, as compared with 170 on eight lines the day before. The hourly figures given out by the B. R. T. headquarters were as follows:

The companies expect to operate today 517 cars on twenty-seven lines, the six additional branches to be reopened being those on Fifth Avenue, Avenue C, Smith Street, St. John's Place, Union Avenue and Graham Avenue. The cars promised represent about one-third of the number operated in normal times, and the lines 35 per cent. of those usually in service.

BRITISH LABOR ASKS M'SWINEY'S RELEASE

STAIN ON BRITAIN, THEY SAY

Declare Death of Cork Mayor Would Bring "Terrible Exolosion"—Prisoner Sinking Fast.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—British labor leaders and members of Parliament today addressed an appeal to Premier Lloyd George, asking the release of Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, who is in a critical condition in Brixton Prison, following his hunger strike, which began Aug. 12.

The labor leaders' message said in part:

"We are convinced that the Government's treatment of the Lord Mayor has already seriously jeopardized the hope of an early settlement of the Irish question on a basis of conciliation and appeasement, and has stained the name of Great Britain with dishonor in the eyes of the civilized world.

"By its persecution in prison of the Lord Mayor of Cork, the Government has outraged public sentiment everywhere, and his death will bring about a terrible explosion of anger, which can only lead to further bloodshed in Ireland."

Among the signers of the appeal were William Adamson, Labor Member of Parliament; U. Bromley, Secretary of the Society of Firemen and Engineers; Robert Smillie, President of the Miners' Federation; Robert Williams of the Transport Workers' Union; George Lansbury, editor of The Daily Herald, organ of labor; John Robertson, Member of Parliament; Edwin Bevin of the Bristol Dockworkers' Union and Benjamin Turner of the British labor delegation which visited Russia.

Reported Sinking During Day.

MacSwiney was reported several times today to be showing signs of sinking rapidly and to be much weaker. The first statement of his condition during the day was made by his brother, Sean MacSwiney, after he left the prison this forenoon.

A report made on Mayor MacSwiney's condition shortly after noon said he was rapidly approaching unconsciousness. He was too weak during the morning to carry on a conversation, it was said.

Tonight the condition of the Mayor showed no radical change, although the patient was still said gradually to be growing weaker. His brother remained at the prison tonight.

At the Lord Mayor's request, members of his family had visited him this morning, and later they expressed fear that the end was not far away.

Those who went to his cell included MacSwiney's wife, his brother, Sean MacSwiney, and his sisters, Annie and Mary MacSwiney. They arrived at 8:30 o'clock and remained for forty-five minutes.

Captain Holds Special Mass.

Father Dominic, private chaplain to MacSwiney, celebrated a special mass in the prison this morning.

Miss Annie MacSwiney, on leaving the prison, said the Mayor's cheeks and eyes were sunken and that he spoke in a whisper.

"As to his condition," she added, "that changes from hour to hour. Sometimes one would think he would die in a few hours, and then he rallies. The prison doctor cannot decide how long he will last, as the doctor has no criterion by which to judge."

The Gaelic League announced tonight that for the first time during his hunger strike the Lord Mayor had complained to his wife of feeling very tired. The prisoner was unable to converse with his relatives. He was still quite conscious, however, and "his mind was as clear and his will as strong as ever," according to The Gaelic League's report.

FRENCH EXPEL IRISH ENVOY.

Give Him 24 Hours to Leave, Says Official London Report.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—George Gavan Duffy, so-called Ambassador of the Irish Republic to France, has been notified by the French Government to leave France within twenty-four hours, it was officially stated here today.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The Minister of the Interior refused today to confirm or deny that an order of expulsion had been issued by the French Government against George Gavan Duffy, Minister Plenipotentiary to France of "the Irish Republic."

Police headquarters professed ignorance of any such order.

At the Grand Hotel, where Mr. Duffy has occupied a suite of rooms during the past two years with a Secretary of Legation and the attachés of a complete diplomatic mission, inquirers were told today that Mr. Duffy was "traveling at present."

It was added that he had not given up his rooms and was "expected to return at the end of the week."

ULSTER LOYALISTS ACT.

Unanimously Adopt Urgent Steps to Save Lives and Keep Order.

BELFAST, Sept. 3.—The most urgent and important business, says an official report, was transacted at the meeting of the Ulster Unionist Council today in connection with the grave situation facing the loyalists of the province.

The proceedings of the meeting were strictly secret, and the decisions arrived at were provisional.

There is no foundation for the rumor that the Government contemplates recognizing the Ulster volunteers. It was pointed out that such recognition would be regarded by the Catholics throughout the country as tantamount to a declaration of civil war.

The quesion of enrolling armed special constables was discussed at the conference, but it is declared that, as the peril of sectarian trouble again was involved, no decision was reached on that point.

Certain proposals were adopted unanimously with a view to meeting the demand for full and immediate protection of those whose lives are imperiled by the present disturbances, the report adds.

Meanwhile the council earnestly appeals to all loyal subjects of the King to assist the authorities in maintaining law and order.

A light cruiser and the torpedo boat destroyer Nyven have arrived in Belfast harbor to protect the shipyards from possible damage in the event of a recurrence of rioting.

Another battalion of troops reached Belfast this morning from England.

The city was quiet throughout this morning. Another man died during the day, making the death roll as a result of the rioting twenty-one.

REPORT APPEAL TO WILSON.

Mrs. MacSwiney's Plea to President Unconfirmed in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Reports from London that Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, wife of Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, who has been on a hunger strike in Brixton Prison, London, had sent a personal appeal to President Wilson in behalf of her husband, lacked confirmation in Washington tonight.

Joseph P. Tumulty, Private Secretary to the President, when informed that such a report had been received from London, said he had seen no such message.

State Department officials also said that they were unaware of such appeal.

The active leaders of the American women pickets, who have for some months been picketing in Washington, making an appeal last Saturday to Secretary Colby in behalf of Mayor MacSwiney, and who have also sent a message of sympathy to Mrs. MacSwiney, could not be reached tonight.

At the Lafayette Hotel, where the Irish pickets have been making their headquarters, the statement was made tonight that the pickets had closed their headquarters there last night. Whether they have abandoned their activity in Washington or will open new headquarters could not be ascertained.

HYLAN ASKS PREMIER TO FREE MACSWINEY

Cables to Lloyd George It Would "Disgrace War Aims" to Hold the Dying Mayor Longer.

Mayor Hylan, who said he spoke for the citizens of New York, sent a cable dispatch yesterday to Premier Lloyd George, at Lucerne, asking for the release of Terence McSwiney, Mayor of Cork, who is said to be dying of starvation in Brixton Prison, London, as the result of a hunger strike. The Mayor said it would be "to disgrace our war aims" to longer keep McSwiney a prisoner. His message read:

"As Mayor of New York, the largest city of the United States, and speaking for its citizens, I respectfully urge you not to disgrace our war aims by further imprisonment of Lord Mayor McSwiney of Cork, whose heroic fortitude in representing, even unto death, the opinions of the citizens who elected him, has won the admiration of all who believe in rule of the people by the people."

Mail Driver Is Fined.

Filipo Gateo, 36 years old, of 230 Mulberry Street, driver of an automobile mail truck that was in collision with a hose truck of Engine Company No. 55 at Watts and Varick Streets, on August 27, was fined $35 by Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso in Traffic Court yesterday. Gateo, who was charged with reckless driving, contended that the mail truck had the right of way, but the Magistrate held that fire apparatus had the right of way over all other vehicles.

DENY PIER WALKOUT HOLDS BRITISH SHIPS

Officials Say There Is No Strike in Brooklyn — Cargoes Handled as Usual.

C. F. U. PROTESTS TO COLBY

Calls on the Government to Urge the Immediate Release of Lord Mayor MacSwiney.

Steamship officials in Brooklyn denied yesterday reports that 3,000 longshoremen and pier workers employed in loading and unloading British ships had gone out on strike as a protest against England's attitude toward the Irish cause. It was asserted that there had been no strike at all in that borough and that the handling of the steamers was not being interfered with in the least.

This information was in line with word received by the International Longshoremen's Association at the headquarters of the New York District Council, 164 Eleventh Avenue, though it was admitted that in the entire port between 2,000 and 3,000 longshoremen of Irish birth had refused to handle cargoes for British ships. It was added, however, that the places of the men who had quit as individuals and not as members of the union, had been taken by others and the work of handling the cargoes of the ships was apparently going ahead as usual with few exceptions.

It was announced in Hoboken last night that about 2,000 longshoremen there were ready to join with the longshoremen on this side of the river in their strike against the loading of English ships or handling English goods until MacSwiney is freed. Delegates from three Hoboken locals came to Manhattan to confer with the leaders here, it was said. It is understood they will ask that women pickets be sent over there to do duty similar to that in Manhattan. Steamers of the Wilson Line and the Lamport & Holt Line dock in Hoboken.

P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, announced that the incoming cargo of the Baltic had been discharged and that the steamer would be loaded in time to sail today for Liverpool. The Zeeland, also a British ship, expects to sail today for Southampton. It was said by steamship officials that the "vacation" of the longshoremen, who have quit their jobs, would be an extended one, as these men would not be taken back. It was pointed out that the men had quit their jobs against the advice of their International officials and on the eve of negotiations for a new agreement to become effective Oct. 1.

While not being able to give any figures, it was claimed last night by women pickets that a large number of longshoremen quit work in Brooklyn yesterday following a demonstration at Piers 5 and 6, South Brooklyn, where speeches were made by Miss Leonora O'Reilly and Mrs. Gertrude Corless. It was also claimed that the grain elevator men in Manhattan, Brooklyn and Staten Island had quit work. Spokesmen for the pickets said that they hoped to have the British steamers in Brooklyn badly crippled by Monday.

C. F. U. Appeals to Colby.

Union warehousemen will join in the strike and refuse to handle any British goods until Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork has been released, according to an announcement on the floor of the Central Federated Union last night. The warehouse workers will meet in Bryant Hall tonight, a delegate from the union announced, to protest against the imprisonment of the Lord Mayor. He was heartily cheered when he said that it was the intention of the group to refuse to handle all British goods until the Lord Mayor was released.

Secretary of State Bainbridge Colby was called upon by the Central Federated Union, in a resolution, to ask the release of MacSwiney from the Brixton Prison. There was much enthusiasm and cheering when the vote was taken. The resolution follows:

"Whereas, Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, is suffering in an English prison for his conviction that Ireland should be free and the republic recognized, be it

"Resolved, That the Central Federated Union hereby protests against this outrageous proceeding in this twentieth century of civilization and progress and demands that the United States Government urge the English Government to immediately release Terence MacSwiney as an act of humanity."

A copy of the resolution was telegraphed to Secretary Colby last night by Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the union. The resolution was introduced by Thomas Rock.

Plan "MacSwiney Week."

Under the direction of the American Women Pickets next week is to be observed throughout the country as "MacSwiney Week." Plans for the observance of the week were made last night at a meeting at the home of Dr. Gertrude B. Kelly, 507 Madison Avenue. An appeal is to be made to all Irish and Irish sympathizers to make some sacrifice during this week and to contribute at least $5 for the benefit of the longshoremen who have refused to work British ships.

According to all accounts the longshoremen were working in Brooklyn up to noon yesterday, when the pickets said that as a result of their demonstration a large number of the men quit work. The crowd sang "London Bridge is Falling Down," and the "Soldier's Song."

Denial was made by Furness-Withy & Co., Ltd., and Lamport & Holt, the two chief British lines having piers in Brooklyn, that they had been affected by the strike of longshoremen in sympathy with Ireland and the Lord Mayor of Cork. The Furness-Withy Line said four ships were being loaded, about 100 men being employed to each ship, and Lamport & Holt were unloading seven ships, with about 700 men working.

A representative of the pickets said last night that the efforts of the pickets would be concentrated for the present on the Prince Line at Pier 4 and the Funch, Edye & Co. Line at Pier 3. There was no interruption of work reported at the Luckenbach Line at the foot of Twenty-third Street.

It was said at headquarters of Local 963, International Longshoremen's Association, in Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, that the strike was an "outlaw" movement, and it was denied that it had proved effective. It was said that the fact that about 3,000 men attended the meeting in St. Veronica's Hall, Manhattan, Thursday night, did not indicate that 3,000 Brooklyn longshoremen actually had quit work. Union men said that about 1,000 Brooklyn longshoremen were out. Union officials said they were not interested except to condemn the strike.

BOSTON PIER STRIKE GROWS

Women Pickets Collect Fund to Aid Longshoremen.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 3.—The disaffection among the ranks of the longshoremen of Boston continues to spread and today thirty more freight handlers on the docks here left their work as a protest against England's treatment of Ireland and the Irish citizens. A determined effort was made today by the shipping companies to continue the work of loading ships of British registry with non-union strikebreakers, but only in a small way did this effort succeed.

Four women pickets, together with one man, made their appearance on the wharves today, carrying large signs calling on "Labor to awake. Ireland asks you for a square deal." Miss Maura Quinn, one of the women who burned the British flag in Washington several months ago, was one of the pickets, and collected a fund of $250 for the strikers before she was stopped by the police.

Flushing Fishing Club's Home Burns

LONG BEACH, L. I., Sept. 3—Fire destroyed the quarters of the Flushing Fishing Club, on Hicks Beach, near Beb's Inlet, West End, today. The origin of the fire was not determined.

1 KILLED, 20 INJURED IS DAY'S AUTO TOLL

FIVE-YEAR-OLD BOY VICTIM

Michael Whalen, Known as Hoboken's Wealthiest Public Official, Is Seriously Hurt.

One person was killed and twenty injured, five of them seriously, in automobile accidents in and near New York City yesterday. Because of the unusually large number of such accidents the preceding day, the police in New York City were on their guard and no case was reported of the driver of an automobile escaping after an accident.

George Lanzer, 5 years old, of 45 East 138th Street, the Bronx, was the one fatality. He was run down by a motor truck driven by Joseph Weinger of 171 East 101st Street, and died soon after his removal to Lincoln Hospital. Weinger received a summons to appear in court.

John Ryan, 19 years old, Ernest Healy, 20 years old, and Douglas Kirby, 18 years old, all of Freeport, L. I., were hurt in an accident in that village last night. A large Winton touring car, driven by Ryan, struck a small Chevrolet roadster, driven by Healy, at Randall Avenue and Bergen Place. Healy and Kirby were seriously injured, the former suffering a broken arm and a fractured skull and the latter internal injuries. They were taken to the Nassau Hospital at Mineola. Ryan escaped with slight cuts and bruises.

Michael Whalen, truant officer of the Hoboken, N. J., public schools, known as the wealthiest public official of that city, was struck by an automobile at Fourth and Clinton Streets and taken to St. Mary's Hospital in a serious condition. Whalen recently inherited property valued at $500,000 from an uncle in Australia.

Clara Sherwin, 24 years old, of 73 East 180th Street, was struck at Southern Boulevard and Elsmere Place, the Bronx, by an automobile driven by Arthur Gaita of 2,028 Southern Boulevard. She was taken to Fordham Hospital with a fractured skull. Gaita was placed under arrest.

John Tucker, 85 years old of 675 Dawson Street, the Bronx, was hit at Dawson Street and Prospect Avenue by an automobile driven by Max Duk of 878 Longwood Avenue. He suffered three fractured ribs and internal injuries and is not expected to live.

Other minor accidents which took place were:

Seymour Stielholz, 12 years old, of 1,742 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, struck while roller skating at Bathgate and Tremont Avenues. Went home with lacerated right leg.

Jacob Tourin, 4 years old, of 14 East 181st Street, run down in front of his home and slightly bruised about legs and body.

John Swenson, 62 years old, of 355 Beekman Avenue, the Bronx, hit at Ryder Avenue and East 138th Street. He received scalp wound.

Anthony Caroline, 50 years old, of 2,457 Belmont Avenue, struck at 176th Street and Anthony Avenue and received scalp wound.

William Imar, 3 years old, of 716 East 136th Street, hit by a motor truck at 138th Street and St. Ann's Avenue. He was taken to Lincoln Hospital with a scalp wound.

Michael Katz, 6 years old, of 3,999 Third Avenue, run over at 176th Street and Third Avenue and taken to Lincoln Hospital. Suffered with injuries to the skull.

SEES KEMAL NEAR THE END.

Constantinople Doubts He Can Hold Out Until Winter Brings Respite.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 1 (Associated Press).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalist forces, is reported to be feeling that his efforts to hold out until the November rains block the roads and give him a respite during the Winter are becoming impossible. He is said to have lost hope of receiving immediate Bolshevist aid and lacks artillery with which to fight the Greeks, his troops being dispirited. It is anticipated here that he will flee rather than surrender.

At the same time, it is forecast that the new Cabinet to be named here will lean toward the Nationalists, so that the Sultan's Government may be accepted throughout Turkey. Overtures to the Nationalists are going on to this end.

Prince Omar Selmi, son of the late Sultan Mohamed V., has gone to Angora, the Nationalist headquarters, ostensibly to join the followers of Mustapha Kemal, but it is thought here that possibly he is an emissary of the Sultan. Mustapha Kemal Pasha, who has been bedridden since the recent attempt to assassinate him, has been temporarily replaced in command by Colonel Ismet Bey.

MYSTERY IN MURDER OF GIRL IN AUTO

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—Police and detectives of this city and East Providence were baffled tonight in their efforts to solve the mysterious murder on the Barrington Parkway late last night of Miss Rose V. McKenna of 100 Elm Street, this city, and the probably fatal wounding of her fiance, William J. Deignan of 78 Elm Street.

Deignan and Miss McKenna had been to Barrington Beach and were driving through the Parkway on their way back, according to Deignan's ante-mortem statement to Coroner Russell W. Richmond, when a man, whose face was masked by a handkerchief, stepped from behind a clump of bushes and shouted "Hold up your hands!" The man followed the order with a shot and then fired three more. Deignan described this man as tall and thin. He told the coroner that Miss McKenna fell against him, gasping "We're shot," and he, although struck by a bullet, started to drive toward the city.

Miss McKenna, who was employed as a bookkeeper by the American Railway Express Company, was struck in the left arm, the bullet entering her lungs and lodging in her stomach. Deignan was shot just over the heart, the bullet glancing upward and entering his neck. He was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital, where it is said he has a bare chance of recovery.

Despite the seriousness of his wound, Deignan made a desperate effort to get his companion medical aid and drove his car nearly to Watchemoket Square, and hailed the first passing machine for aid. Hugh Stubbs of East Providence jumped into the machine and drove to the office of Dr. George F. Allison on Warren Avenue, where it was found that Miss McKenna was dead.

The wounded man was taken to the hospital, where it was found that besides the wound in his chest, the index finger of his left hand was shot off. The authorities believe he put up his hand to shield his companion.

Deignan is a member of the firm of Deignan Brothers, grocers. Miss McKenna lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. McKenna, and leaves one brother and two sisters. She was a member of the Cathedral parish.

East Providence police went to the scene of the shooting this morning and found wheel marks, broken glass and a door catch that had been wrenched from Deignan's machine.

While theories of mistaken identity and robbery have been advanced, neither is regarded as fitting the case, and it is believed possible that Deignan has not told all. The police believe there is significance in the fact that there was a decided interval between the first shot and the other shots. They think it possible that the assassin, having killed the girl, told Deignan why before shooting him. Jealousy and revenge are the motives advanced, though the police admit they have little to support such a theory.

NICARAGUA FLOATS LOAN.

Plans to Buy British Obligations and Pacific Railway.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Sept. 3.—Official advices from Nicaragua say the Government of that country, through its Secretary of the Treasury, who is at present in the United States, has completed arrangements to float a new loan. The money will be used for public works.

The Nicaraguan Government plans to buy British obligations to the amount of $1,500,000, realizing a profit through the difference in the rate of exchange. With part of the loan issue the Government also plans to purchase the Pacific Railroad, paying for it half in cash and the other half with 9 per cent. bonds. The railroad will remain under the management of the present holding company until the bonds are redeemed, but the Government will have a certain measure of control.

CATCH AUTO THIEF WHO KILLED 1, HURT 6

Soldier Says He Stole to Obtain Fare to Texas Before Furlough Expired.

ESCAPED AFTER CRASH

But Insignia Betray His Identity to Police Hours After Tragedy Near Hippodrome.

The desire of a soldier on furlough to obtain enough money from the sale of a stolen automobile to carry him back to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, was the indirect cause of the automobile accident near the Hippodrome Thursday, which killed Louis Murphy of Hagerstown, Md., and injured six other persons. Zola Goldfarb, 20 years old, of 69 West 115th Street, a private in the Sixteenth Cavalry, gave this explanation yesterday to the police. Goldfarb was arraigned in Yorkville Court and held without bail on charges of manslaughter and stealing an automobile, an Essex town car, the property of F. G. C. Lyon of Great Neck, L. I.

He was arrested on suspicion early in the morning by Sergeant John J. Martin, of the East Fifty-first Street station. Sergeant Martin, who was familiar with all details, noticed that Goldfarm answered the description of the driver of the stolen automobile, even to the canvas leggings and the yellow cord indicating that he belonged to the cavalry, and arrested him. At the station house Goldfarb was said to have broken down and confessed.

According to Sergeant Bernard Ditsch, Goldfarb said he saw a girl early in the evening and then went to the theatre. He was waiting for a Fifth Avenue 'bus to take him to his home, he said, when he was arrested. The fact that Goldfarb went within two blocks of the station house handling the case was explained by his assertion that he knew nothing of police arrangements and believed he was far enough from the scene of the accident to avoid recognition. Goldfarb said he had been in the army for about a year. During the war, he said, he served in the navy and was stationed on the battleship Rhode Island.

The prisoner's statement that he was on furlough was confirmed by an official paper. The furlough expired at 3:45 P. M. yesterday. Goldfarb explained that he had several days yet to get back before being declared a deserter.

DANSEY CASE UP AGAIN.

Application for Release of Prisoners Accused of Killing Boy to be Made.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 3.—After nearly a year of inactivity the Dansey case will finally be brought to a head at the October term of court, it was learned today. Just what disposition will be made of the charges against Charles S. White and Mrs. Edith L. Jones, charged with the murder of Billy Dansey, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hercules Dansey of Hammonton, is problematical.

The present Grand Jury will pass out of office at that time and so far the evidence against White and Mrs. Jones has not been presented to them. Hercules Dansey and his wife sold their home in Hammonton and are living in Pittsburgh and have not been called to testify.

It is believed that an application for the release of the accused from bail will be made to Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Black when he opens the court here next month.

MICHIGAN CROWDS ARE ROUSED BY COX

Comments on Barnes Subscribers.

In connection with the Barnes campaign book, Governor Cox read the names of some of the corporations and individuals who promised "moral and financial" support, and asserted that everyone knew it was a violation of the Corrupt Practices act for corporations to contribute to a political campaign.

This attack was first made by Governor Cox at Lansing, where a great crowd gave demonstration of their approval by applause.

"Now let's see who some of the subscribers to this book of boss Barnes are," he exclaimed. Several in the crowd laughed and Governor Cox added, "Yes, you remember Bill Barnes. He's that friend of Teddy's." Then he went on:

"Here you have some of them. First comes the American Tobacco Company, vouched for by Percy W. Hill, its Vice President. Then you have the Standard Oil Company, John D. Rockefeller; yes old John, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., also. Starr J. Murphy says he signs his name to the document for Rockefeller, senior, and Rockefeller, junior.

"Then we have the name of Sabin, head of one of the largest banking institutions in the country, and you have the executives of most of the big business interests in New York."

Governor Cox referred to J. Leonard Replogle and John A. Topping as representatives of the steel industry and the Berwind, White and Hudson Coal Companies as supporters of Barnes's publicity plans.

"I want to admit that these men are not under my banner," he said. "They are not making subscriptions to my campaign. And why? Well, they haven't been asked to do so. Second, they would not be permitted to subscribe if they wanted to, and third, they wouldn't subscribe if they were permitted, because they don't approve of my policies of progressive government."

At this juncture Governor Cox brought into play one of the most effective bits of campaigning which he has yet produced. He had his hearers keenly interested as he read the names of the corporations and individuals supporting the "Barnes idea" in government. Then he said:

"Now I want to tell you about the only contribution I have received personally to my campaign," and he produced a letter which he held up for all to see. He went on: "It's a letter from a man named Dan Compton, a laborer in a garage at Reynoldsburg, Ohio. I'm going to read it to you, and I'll tell you that I'd rather have the golden-hearted Dan Compton with me—and there are millions of them in America—than all the minions of big business in America. Here's the letter; now listen closely to it:

Reynoldsburg, Ohio, Sept. 1, 1920.

My Dear Governor Cox: I see by the papers that special interests are trying to buy a stranglehold on our Government, and I feel it my duty to try and prevent it. Inclosed find my check for $3.50, which represents one day's labor for me. Every liberty-loving man and woman in the country who believes in a square deal for all and special privilege for none should do likewise. Sincerely,

DANIEL COMPTON,
Garage Laborer.

Early Morning Talk at Toledo.

Governor Cox made his first address at Toledo on his way to Michigan. There had been no arrangements for an address, but the Governor was up early in the morning and he found railroad men awaiting him. They gathered around the rear platform of the train and called out messages of support. One man told him that an organised movement among the railroad men for him had been started, but that they had found it was not necessary, that the railroad workers were for him almost to a man. By the time Governor Cox began to speak a crowd of considerable size was on hand to hear him. He made his first attack here upon the proposal of Senator Harding to revive The Hague tribunal idea.

"It is proposed to substitute the old Hague tribunal for the League of Nations," said Governor Cox, "that old institution closed up before the war. I imagine that there are bats in the belfry, that there are spider webs everywhere. Certainly it was closed as a distinct failure, having been unable to prevent the war of 1914, and now the opposition candidate says that we will go back, open up this old institution, try and keep house in it there.

"Men, that is the same advice that you received from the same source out here in Ohio in 1912 when I came to you with a new constitution and asked you to adopt it, a constitution which would give us mother's pensions, a constitution which would give us the workmen's compensation law, a constitution in short, which would enable Government to provide for the needs of the people.

"When I proposed it, my good friend, Harding, said No, let us continue as we are. Now he says that instead of adopting the League of Nations, which is the modern idea in the matter of bringing the nearest possible guarantee of peace. Let us go back to the old way, let us sweep out the old Hague Tribunal.' The reactionary spirit again.

"In opposition to that, we propose the progressive spirit. I want wars to be only a thing of the past and the memory of the days we would like to forget about. I want peace in the world. I want prosperity in America and I want the Government to play absolutely fair with labor and capital."

Governor Cox spoke briefly at Lenawee, Blissfield, Tecumseh and Manchester, all in Michigan. He spent thirty minutes at Jackson, making an address to a big crowd which gathered about a motor truck. One political leader said it was the biggest political meeting that a Democrat ever addressed there.

After Jackson came Leslie, a small town which turned out a crowd with a band. Two veterans of the civil war were there with a fife and drum. They were old-time Republicans, they said, but were ready to vote for Cox.

Leslie also furnished another surprise. The Reception Committee, it was announced, was composed of Republicans who were working for the Governor.

Governor Cox talked progressive doctrine to this crowd. He asked who it was who swept Michigan at the Republican primaries and then named Senator Johnson. Johnson, he said, was a progressive, so the Senate oligarchy never let him have a chance to win the nomination.

Referring briefly to the League of Nations Governor Cox quoted McKinley's statement that the period of our isolation was past. He also referred to Theodore Roosevelt, saying no one could charge him with having been willing to surrender the sovereignty of the nation, and then quoted from Roosevelt's statement of October, 1914, in favor of a combination of nations with force as the weapon to end wars.

There was a brief stop at Mason, where Governor Cox protested against being taken away from the crowd and talked with them until the train was far from the crowd. Then he waved a farewell message with his arms and received a cheer.

At Lansing, the next stop, Governor Cox spoke first at a luncheon of the Rotary Club and then to a good roads convention. From there he went to the meeting at the Capitol. Here he made one remark which brought applause.

"There has been much talk," he said, "about the conservation of our natural resources. I believe that there also should be a conservation of our spiritual resources."

Takes Up Article X.

In one of his Battle Creek addresses he made the mention of Article X. of the League covenant for the first time since his speech of acceptance. He said that Article X. reduced to simple words constituted a "Keep Off the Grass" sign to nations who had a desire for conquest.

The Governor read Article X. to his audience and then said:

"Now in the past what has made war? The lust for territory, and Article X. says that the boundary line is the boundary line for weak nations and strong nations alike and that the powers of the earth must keep off the grass. That is the meaning of that article and that is the whole meaning. very imperialist in Europe is against the League, but there are not as many in Europe now as there were once, thank God.

"People have, in fact, ceased to take seriously the criticism which has been made against Article X."

A rather elderly man, with the appearance of a farmer, was no match for Governor Cox, whom he heckled on the League issue. The heckler declared that he was opposed to "this whole Wilson League of Nations." Governor Cox rejoined that Henry Cabot Lodge and others were opposed to it simply because it was a "Wilson League."

"Let's leave out the personal prejudice," the Governor added. "What is there in the League you do not like?"

"I am opposed to the whole thing."

"Are you opposed to those provisions which provide that if one nation is swept by typhus, cholera or some other dread epidemic all the other nations shall work in union to check it?" inquired the candidate.

"No."

"But I thought you said you were opposed to all of the League. Have you ever read the covenant?"

"I've read enough of it to be opposed to it. Have you ever read it?"

"Over a hundred times," Governor Cox replied. "Are you opposed to the nations of the world getting together to reduce armaments?"

"That would depend on the circumstances," the heckler countered.

"No, my good friend, the trouble with you is that your prejudice is so great that if you were to die and go to heaven and find a Democrat on guard at the gate, you would ask to be sent to the other place. When you enter the election booth in November you will be guided by prejudice, not intelligence. You and your kind, Henry Cabot Lodge and his kind, are all alike. You are so deep in your prejudice, you have glorified in the illness of the President, you have discussed it flippantly just as they have in the Republican cloakrooms in the Senate, when the fact is that the President was a victim of this war just as surely as the soldiers who were wounded in battle."

Talks of Harding's "Latest Plan."

In one of his attacks upon Senator Harding for his attitude toward the League of Nations and progressive legislation, Governor Cox won applause by this statement:

"I want to address myself to Senator Harding's latest international plan. I say his latest plan because I have not seen the morning papers and do not know whether another one was announced yesterday. So far as I know, his latest proposal was to re-establish the old Hague tribunal. Its doors were closed because it was a failure. It is now suggested that we open it up, chase the bats out of its corridors, sweep down the cobwebs and turn it to modern uses. This is simply reactionarism applied to international affairs. We have grown used to its manifestations in domestic matters. Somehow the reactionary standpatter loves to browse about in the pastures of the past."

"Speaking in the Senate on Aug. 11, 1916, Senator Harding said: 'I do not knew just what a standpatter is in public life. I do in some places, but if one, who sometimes elects to go back to an old and efficient method and retain it is a standpatter, then I am going to choose to be one. I sometimes wonder if our American life is not just a little disturbed by this everlasting seeking after something different.'

"These words, spoken with all sincerity, explain the most recently expressed attitude on international questions. With a view to making a better day for the world, Senator Harding, the standpatter, turns backward to see what can be found in the storehouse of the past and he discovers what to him is a useful agency in the old Hague Tribunal. I wonder what the people of Michigan think of the more or less flippant observation of those who are 'everlastingly seeking after something different.'

"You have been transformed into a great industrial State and it was all made possible by those who were 'everlastingly seeking after something different.' The truth is that if the Almighty had not implanted in humanity a something which continues its attack daily on the mysteries of nature we would still be cutting grain by hand and living in log houses.

"I can see nothing disquieting in the persisting disposition to seek for something different. And in the matter of shaping policies for the concerted use of moral forces worldwide, we certainly need something different and need it badly. Under the old order ten millions of men died in war in four years' time. If the world reflects upon this tragedy and does not seek 'something different,' then there is no future for civilization."

Charges Perjury at Senate Inquiry.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Sept. 3 (Associated Press).—Suggestion of perjury by witnesses before the Senate Committee investigating campaign funds was made here tonight by Governor Cox, Democratic Presidential candidate, in a speech closing the first day of his Western campaign.

Referring to denials by Republican leaders of his Pittsburgh charges that a Republican quota list of $8,145,000 was made for fifty-one cities, Governor Cox said to his audience:

"You know that when denial was made at Chicago of the existence of a quota, men were deliberately telling an untruth and telling it under oath."

The question of Republican contributions was discussed at length.

"It was first denied by Mr. Hays that there was a quota," said Governor Cox, again presenting the "official bulletin" of the Republican Treasurer with its statements regarding reports of "full quotas" and oversubscriptions.

"If the leaders who have taken possession of the Republican organization will tell an untruth under oath, I ask you if that organization is entitled to the support of the rank and file this Fall?

"We have established, I think, the existence of a quota. Is there any one who denies that they're trying to put something over, and don't want anybody to know about it?

"Mr. Hays and his associates may think they can fool the men of America by that kind of twaddle," the Governor continued, referring to statements in the Republican "Bulletin" regarding plans to press the effort for contributions, "but they can't fool the women."

Governor Cox also reiterated his charges of an "enormous" Republican fund and of important business interests trying to buy a governmental underhold.

"Regardless of denials," the candidate declared, "I repeat the charge and will continue to press that charge until the second of November."

Asking why business interests should seek an advantage, the Democratic candidate declared that banking interests were seeking to change the Federal Reserve act, industrial interest trying to "buy the use of the bayonet in strikes" and that the meat packing interests were opposing Government regulation of cold storage.

The League issue predominated in the Governor's address here to a large street corner gathering, and for the first time since his notification he discussed Article X.

Governor Cox said that an economic boycott was one resort, but he insisted that Congress alone had the power to send American soldiers overseas.

"A soldier cannot leave this country," he continued, "under any treaty or group of treaties, unless Congress declares war. People have ceased to take seriously this objection to the League."

The Governor then turned to Senator Harding's recent League speech and the Republican nominee's assertion that treaties, if made, must be kept or this nation would be "a welcher."

"That means," said the Governor, "that he does not want us to undertake any obligation. He says he is going to put teeth in The Hague tribunal. We want to know what kind of teeth, bicuspids or molars. We want specifications and he says none will be given, but that Earl Grey approves the specifications. This is not to be an English league, but a worldwide league."

The Governor also took another fling at the Harding front porch campaign.

"I do not set up any throne on my front porch and ask you to come to me," said the candidate, declaring that the people's front porches were the thrones of American sovereignty.

Governor Cox said in his speeches that he emphasized the Newberry case "because there is today a conspiracy as criminal, an attempt as bold, a plot as well laid as that which brought shame to Michigan.

"A Newberry plot with Newberry methods, brazenly and unblushingly, has sought to spread the virus from which you are only now recovering into the political veins of every State," he declared.

"Mothers will tell you," the Governor said to a station crowd at Leslie "that there are 81,000 reasons why they are for the League—81,000 American patriots who sleep in France. You can't stop war unless the nations agree to stop it and agree to stop buying cannon and the waste of armament."

At Charlotte, where he spoke five minutes to a crowd at the station, Governor Cox again referred to the League of Nations. He said that wounded soldiers with whom he spent two hours last Sunday in New York told him that "if the league were submitted to the wounded soldiers there would not be a single vote against it."

GERMANS UNITED TO ELECT HARDING

Vice President—Adam Beyer, Long Island City; Fifth Vice President—Otto Loibl, Woodside; Treasurer—Julius Stein, Long Island City.

Information was received by THE TIMES which indicated that the officers and representatives named in most instances were not the real leaders of the organization. It was hinted that the organization had its inspiration from some central source and that sufficient financial assistance was assured to make certain that the political activities of the alliance would not suffer from lack of money.

The Flushing branch of the alliance is to have a big rally at Kissena Park on Labor Day. It was said that a general attendance of representatives from other boroughs and cities was expected and that an effort would be made to have the Germans in the other parts of the city come out openly for Senator Harding.

Carried Queens for Hughes.

The Queens Civic Alliance has figured in politics before and always with effect. It made its first appearance, informally, but none the less effectively, in 1916, with the result that Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for President, carried the usually strongly Democratic county of Queens by 3,320. The result at the time was attributed to the German vote. Mr. Herring admitted this last night, and said that nearly all the Alliance members voted for Hughes, although the alliance took no formal action.

It is generally estimated that the German vote controlled by the German organizations in Queens numbers at least 10,000, with the likelihood that this number is now increased through the increasing number of women voting. The Germans in Queens supported John F. Hylan for Mayor in 1917, and Queens went for him by nearly 14,000. The German vote is particularly large in the Astoria and Steinway sections of Long Island City and in the Woodhaven and Ridgewood districts outside.

There are very strong German sections in both Brooklyn and the Bronx. There is a large German vote in Manhattan, although most of the distinctively German districts have passed out of existence.

Oppose League of Nations.

Mr. Herring was asked if Senator Harding's assertion that, if elected President, he would effect a separate peace with Germany had had anything to do with the decision of the Queens' Citizens' Alliance to support him. Mr. Herring replied that he had read Senator Harding's statement and was much interested, but said it was not discussed at the meeting of the Executive Committee.

"We favor Senator Harding because we are opposed to the League of Nations," said Mr. Herring. "The Executive Committee has indorsed Senator Harding for President and this action has been approved by the members of the alliance throughout the borough.

"The branches of the alliance have met and have decided to enter actively into the local campaign. We have postponed indorsement of State and local candidates until after the primaries. Then we will know who the candidates are to be. The Long Island City branch has already met and the Flushing branch is to have a big rally at Kissena Park on Labor Day. We are going to inaugurate a most vigorous campaign."

The Citizens' Alliance of Queens has generally taken the German point of view whenever it went on record on public matters. On May 24, 1919, it addressed a letter to President Wilson asking settlement with Germany on the basis of the President's "fourteen points," which the letter asserted he had said would be a safeguard against a future war of conquest and revenge. The letter also asked the President to cause the blockade then existing against Germany to be lifted, and deprecated any attempt to bear down too hard on the German people. Similar letters were sent by the alliance to the members of Congress.

German Opera Incident an Issue.

That the alliance regards party principles or ties of little consequence in comparison with matters in which its membership is particularly interested is shown by its opposition to Ira G. Barrin, former District Attorney of Queens County, who is running for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Second District.

Mr. Barrin, at the head of a number of the members of the Astoria Post of the American Legion, went to Hettiger's Hall in Astoria last Thanksgiving evening and stopped a performance of German opera which was to have been given there. Mr. Barrin announced his candidacy for Congress more than a month ago. Soon afterward an editorial appeared in the Long Island Free Press attacking him and calling upon the Germans to remember the German opera incident.

Rudolph Hantusch of Edgewood then appeared as a candidate for the Republican nomination against Mr. Barrin. The members of the alliance are supporting Mr. Hantusch, and Mr. Barrin said he found it practically impossible to get any German name on his designating petitions.

HARDING CREDITS SENATE FOR PEACE

WANTS TO OUTLAW FIGHTING

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio., Sept. 3.—This country would be again at war had not the Senate refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles without reservations, Senator Harding said this afternoon in a short speech at an American Legion carnival at Mount Gilead.

Motoring through a swirl of dust across the country from Marion to the seat of Morrow County, the county of his birth, Senator Harding warmed at the sight of his former neighbors and spoke with more vigor than has been noted in previous speeches since his nomination. The R. D. Johnson American Legion Post of Mount Gilead persuaded the Senator at the last moment to attend their carnival for the benefit of a club house building fund, and the occasion furnished an opportunity for him to strike back indirectly at Governor Cox's repeated assertions that the Republican candidate had made no mention of the sacrifices of American fighting men in the World War.

"I believe every one in America should do all he can for the young men of the country who went out in the World War," the Senator said. "It is unfair to turn to universal service, although I voted for it and am still of the belief that it was the fairest method for raising our armies, without at the same time showing our gratitude to the men who were called away from their homes to fight for their country.

"I have never said that this country should remain aloof from other nations, and if our enterprise is successful I promise you that I shall help America to do its part in the world by seeing to it that neither you young men, nor your sons, nor your sons' sons, shall be called to the battlefield.

Would Outlaw War.

"We would lead the world to outlaw war. Nations are no longer isolated. Out of their common relationship comes a newer understanding which ought to be turned to fellowship and peace. I promise you that everything possible will be done to develop this understanding without surrendering the nationality of this country.

"If it had not been for the Senate of the United States exercising its constitutional authority without regard to party lines, America would again be at war instead of being at the peace which we enjoy at present.

"I can't see how any one for one moment could propose that the sons of this Republic go to war at the behest of a council of foreign powers. I warn you now that if you ever accept the League of Nations as it stands written at present we are in honor bound to answer the call of European nations to come to their defense. I promise you that if I am ever called to authority none but Congress shall ever summon you to war."

Having interviewed Governor Cox yesterday, a delegation of representatives of the National Board of Farm Organizations called upon Senator Harding at his front porch this afternoon to ask from him a promise to give farmers a greater representation on such boards as the Interstate Commerce, Federal Trade and Tariff Commissions.

"We are not satisfied to be mere producers," one of their spokesmen said, "but we wish to take a greater part in our economic life."

Objects to Class Appeal.

The Senator told the delegation that he would entertain no class appeal, and the delegation, at first taken somewhat aback by his frankness, applauded the candidate's declaration for Government encouragement of co-operative selling of farm products.

"With your assent," Senator Harding said, "I will not welcome you as representatives of farmers' organizations, and I shall make no appeal either now or later to the people of the country which may be labeled an appeal in behalf of farmers. Permit me, therefore, to welcome you as producers whose Americanism is so sound that I consider that you represent here today the consumers of the United States, and I address you not as farmers, but as citizens of the United States.

"I deplore the use in political campaigns or in public administration of special appeals and of special interests. I deplore any foreign policy which tends to group together those of foreign blood in groups of their nativity. I deplore undue meddling in the affairs of other nations, which may, some day, in a future election result in a hyphenated vote controlling the balance of power which may be delivered to that candidate who is most supine in the face of un-American pressure. I deplore class appeals at home. I abhor the Soviet idea and the compromises and encouragements whicm we have seen extended to it.

"I desire with all my heart to speak for the consumer when I speak of American agriculture. I desire to put aside platitudes about the worth and merits and all the poetic tradition about the honest farmer. Honesty is not peculiar to any occupation. I desire to awake the country to the menaces to its future unless American agriculture is preserved, and, above all, I desire that I may have a hand in stopping bungling and economic nonsense, and false promises, and prodigal waste, and dictatorial powers, all of which have smothered the farmer, as they have smothered us all for eight years, in taxes and interference.

Wants to Restore Will of the People.

"Instead of unworkable words and overworked executive powers, I desire in this great agricultural problem, as in all our national problems, to go back to the functions of our Republic and of our representative system. I want to restore the will of the people and stop the will of the willful."

Land hunger bred anarchy and decay, the Senator went on, adding that the day of land hunger was over.

"The day when we see before us the spectacle of the land owning farmer being displaced by capitalistic speculation in land and soil exhausting and landlord exploiting has come," said the Senator. "The day when the share of the American farmer in whatever is left of prosperity has been overtopped by the share taken by our industrial production has come. The day when industry outbids agriculture for labor has come. The day when the profit of the farmer has been cut down and the price of the consumer has been lifted up has come. The day of bad or wasteful distribution between producer and consumer, and the day of too much unrighteous profiteering by too many unnecessary middlemen has come. The day when the condition of our soil must be protected against the soil products of countries of low standards of living has come in."

These conditions, Senator Harding declared, "call for the presence of the American farmer in our Government offices, administrative and representative."

The Senator said he believed the farm loan principle should be extended, and that ways should be found to recruit the ranks of farm labor and lift the burden from women and girl substitutes. Co-operative buying, distribution and selling also should be encouraged by the Government, he declared.

"If these two, producers and consumers of food," Senator Harding concluded, "are not brought closer together by organization, by better railroad service, by the auxiliary of motor truck facilities, by better roads, by the removal of legal obstructions to organized efforts, I know that organized profiteering will squeeze in somewhere between the producer and consumer.

"I do not speak in a sentimental generality when I say this. I hope I am saying something to point the way, not only to a fair and just prosperity to American agriculture which will tend to stop land speculation and the increase of the tenant farmer, but will be one big, practical step taken against the high cost of living. It will be taken in the name of no class, but in the name of the people of America."

Senators Townsend of Michigan and Spencer of Missouri heard Senator Harding speak to the farmers and accompanied him to Mount Gilead, where all three Senators spoke.

While the candidate was shaking hands with the farmers' delegation, one enthusiast from the delegation drew Senator Townsend over to a group and introduced him as "Senator Knox." Senator Knox left Marion last night. Senators Townsend and Spencer are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harding tonight.

ANTIS LOSE QUICK APPEAL.

One More Chance in October to Put Suffrage Up to Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Opponents of woman suffrage received a temporary setback today in their efforts to expedite appeal from the decision of Justice Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, refusing an injunction to prevent Secretary of State Colby from promulgating the suffrage amendment.

Chief Justice Smyth of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals denied the petition of suffrage opponents as represented in the American Constitutional League for certification of the case to the United States Supreme Court without waiting for a decision by the Appellate tribunal.

The Chief Justice held that he lacked authority to certify, under a decision of the United States Supreme Court which held that such certification could be made only where the decision of the local Appellate tribunal was final. As there is a constitutional question involved in the suffrage case, there would be a right of appeal from a decision of the Court of Appeals to the United States Supreme Court.

Counsel for the anti-suffragists, however, said they had not abandoned hope of getting the case into the highest court in the land before Election Day, and that, when the Court of Appeals convenes, Oct. 4, they will make a motion to advance the case on the calendar and probably request that their contention be overruled in order that they appeal at once to the United States Supreme Court.

TENNESSEE RECORD SENT.

"Anti" Vote Forwarded to Colby Will Figure in Washington Suit.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 3.—At the request of the House of Representatives, Governor Roberts late tonight forwarded to Secretary of State Colby a certified copy of the journal of that body of last Tuesday, when the attempt was made to rescind its previous action in ratifying the Federal suffrage amendment.

In transmitting the papers the Governor merely added a statement that "the attached paper is a full, true and correct copy of transcript of all entries appearing on the journal of Tuesday," and that the Clerk had authority to make and certify to the correctness of the transcript which was sent.

Transmission of the journal to Washington was not regarded tonight by suffragists as affecting the validity of the proclamation previously made by Secretary Colby of the ratification of the Nineteenth Amendment.

The suffragists pointed out that Governor Roberts did not certify as to what action the House had taken or as to its legality or effect, but merely that the papers attached to the certification were a correct copy of the journal on the day mentioned.

The anti-ratificationists, however, were jubilant because they interpreted the sending of the statement of the House action to Secretary Colby as meaning that this record would become a part of the evidence that is to be used in the courts in an attempt to overthrow the validity of the suffrage amendment's ratification by Tennessee.

LEAGUE ISSUE WINS WOMEN.

Letters Promise to Support Cox in Hope of Ending War.

The stand Senator Harding has taken on the League of Nations will bring about his defeat, according to the view of many women voters who have written to Chairman White of the Democratic National Committee. Women as a rule favor the League and in as a result, the opinion of the Democratic leaders, they will, regardless of party, vote for Governor Cox.

One such letter was received at headquarters of the Democratic National Committee yesterday from Mrs. George H. Childs of Bronxville. Mrs. Childs is President of the Women's Democratic Club of New York. She wrote in part:

"The intelligent voters want the League of Nations issue kept to the front. The Democrats have the right side of the issue, which is their greatest asset in the campaign. I have talked to a great many women in various parts of New York State and every indication is that the women will vote for Governor Cox because of his stand with regard to the League. We want to put an end to wars for all time and we must enter the League. Prominent women in all parts of the State who never before took an active part in politics are now doing so. They are more enthusiastic than ever."

Women will have their first opportunity to show how they stand in Maine a week from Monday, when that State will elect its State ticket, Congressmen and legislators.

SAYS RATIFICATION IS SAFE.

Tennessee's Attorney General Assures Suffragists Here.

A telegram from Attorney General Frank M. Thompson of Tennessee, stating as his official opinion that there was no danger of the invalidation of the ratification of the woman suffrage amendment by the action of the House of Representatives of that State rescinding its ratification, was received yesterday by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. The telegram read:

"Nothing done in either branch of the General Assembly has amended the ratification and certification by the Governor to the Secretary of State of the Nineteenth Amendment upon which his proclamation was issued, nor can either branch of the Assembly, the Governor or Secretary affect it."

NAME WOMAN FOR SENATE.

Warren County Republicans Nominate Miss Caroline Brookfield.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Sept. 3.—Miss Caroline Brookfield has been named by the Republican County Committee as candidate for State Senator. The Democratic candidate is the present incumbent, Dr. Thomas Barber. Miss Brookfield declared today that she would win. She is a music teacher and organist of the First Presbyterian Church.

She was the first suffrage organizer in Warren County, and was County Chairman of the New Jersey Woman's Suffrage Association. Her father, John B. Brookfield, was for a number of years Vice President and cashier of the Belvidere National Bank. Miss Brookfield is about 50 years old.

MRS. BOOLE TO SPEAK.

Opponent of Senator Wadsworth Will Visit Every County.

Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator against Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., will begin an active campaign up-State today. It was announced at her headquarters, 156 Fifth Avenue, that she intended to visit every county fair held before Sept. 14, primary day, and will also speak at the State Fair at Syracuse during the week of Sept. 13.

Mrs. Boole will be a candidate on the prohibition ticket at the election, regardless of the result of the Republican primary. An organization of 50,000 women was said to have already been perfected to aid her in her campaign.

ROOSEVELT ASSAILS CONGRESS NEGLECT

He Tells Augusta Audience of His Challenge to Economy Which Was Not Accepted.

WOULD BETTER SERVICE

Democrats Not Afraid of League Issue, He Declares in Skowhegan Speech.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 3.—Winding up his second day of speaking in Maine, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, made speeches tonight in Hallowell, Gardiner and this city.

In his address here Mr. Roosevelt urged a definite program for Government employes, to develop an efficient and well-paid personnel in all departments.

Mr. Roosevelt charged that the last Republican Congress was derelict in failing to take action on a report of a Congressional commission providing for reclassification of Government workers. He told of his experiences as a department executive with Congress in an effort to improve the service.

"I had for over a year," Mr. Roosevelt said, "a standing offer with the Committee on Appropriations of Congress that I would save 7½ per cent. of the total of all navy salaries if they would give me authority to fix the pay of these employes.

"I would have done this by discharging many of the least efficient employes and by using part of their pay to increase the efficiency of those who were left. If this same purpose is carried out, it will save the taxpayers several hundred millions of dollars in the course of every succeeding year. However, in line with its well and long established custom, Congress paid no attention to my request."

Mr. Roosevelt said at another point: "An amusing but at the same time pathetic incident occurred in the Maine campaign the other day. A young man, touring the State in behalf of the Republican National Committee, is quoted as saying that the cost of living is being kept up by the retaining in Washington of 60,000 unnecessary and useless Democratic Government clerks and that they should be discharged and compelled to do productive work.

"A few minutes later, in the same speech, evidently forgetting what he had said before, he wound up by declaring that if the Republicans are victorious in the coming election they will see to it that after the fourth of March next the 60,000 Democratic clerks in Washington will be replaced by 60,000 tried and true Republicans.

"I use this story as a very good example of the way the Republican campaign is being run in Maine. In its essentials it is a campaign of pure criticism and a mere appeal to put Republicans in office.

"But the young man was right in one respect. There are too many Government employes for the work which has to be done. Last year, in some of the important branches of the Government doing research and scientific work, the turnover among the skilled employes ran to over 60 per cent. The reason for this was that the Government did not give adequate compensation.

"The Democratic candidates in this election propose a definite program in regard to Government employes. We believe that the Government of the United States should not be one of the worst employers in the whole country, but should be the model employer. We believe that Government clerks, Government scientists and other highly trained individuals should be paid what they would normally get in private employ. We believe, of course, in the enforcement of the Civil Service law and the leaving out of party lines in selecting the great body of workers for the United States."

Mr. Roosevelt told an audience at Waterville early in the day that in traveling across the country he found "a great number of people" belonging to other parties who are grasping the real issues of this campaign.

"I hope the big issues will remain uppermost," he continued, "and that the people will decide between them. That is why Governor Cox and I consider it our duty to go before the people and present the issues as we see them. We believe in getting away from the old-fashioned oratory stuff and in presenting the issues on their merits. We are asking you to compare the two conventions of the great parties, to compare their candidates and records, and to compare their platforms, and then make your decision on election day."

The assemblage at the State Fair here greeted Mr. Roosevelt in his first stop of the day, and later a band escorted him to City Hall, where he spoke on campaign issues.

In an address at Skowhegan in the afternoon Mr. Roosevelt renewed his charge that the Republican Party, as at present constituted, was the party of reaction and asserted that the Democratic Party was the party of progress.

"What single constructive measure has Harding ever stood for in the United States Senate?" he asked. "I have been asking that question now for three weeks and have not had an answer."

Discussing a program of national development, "which we propose to treat in a progressive way if the Democratic Party is returned to power," he said that the times called for increased production on the farms and in industry, a more economical method of distribution from producer to consumer and the proper development of the merchant marine. He said that the Democratic Party would continue to regard foreign policies from a progressive standpoint.

"We do not want to go back to the conditions of 1914 in world relations," he said, "and notwithstanding all the misrepresentation we are not afraid of it.

"The Government service," he said, "can be increased in efficiency by giving adequate salaries and at the same time demanding vastly better work. In doing this the total cost to the Government can be very materially reduced."

GERARD TO FILL COX PURSE.

Will Not Limit Individual Contributions, Says New Financial Chairman

James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany, whose appointment as Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee was announced yesterday, will not impose any limitation on amounts to be subscribed by individuals to the Democratic campaign fund. The Republicans say they have established at $1,000 limit.

"We Democrats are poor people for the most part," said Mr. Gerard. "We hardly dare think about totals. We have established no limit on contributions. I dare say we can afford to collect all we can get and call the total our minimum."

Mr. Gerard said that the sources of contributions would be carefully scrutinized, so as to leave no room for such criticism as is being leveled against the Republican National Committee and its methods of raising a campaign fund.

Mr. Gerard has had a great deal of experience in raising money for campaign expenses. Beginning in the old Croker days and up to the time when he became a Justice of the Supreme Court, he was Treasurer of Tammany Hall in many campaigns.

IN DEFENSE OF WADSWORTH.

Senator Frelinghuysen, in Reply to Anderson, Urges His Election.

The renomination of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., is strongly urged in a letter sent by United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Secretary of the Republican Senatorial Committee, to William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, which was made public yesterday.

Superintendent Anderson is bitterly opposed to Senator Wadsworth as a result of the stand taken by him when the Eighteenth Amendment was before the United States Senate, and recently in a letter took Senator Frelinghuysen to task for advocating Senator Wadsworth's election for a second term, characterizing this as a breach of political propriety, especially as Senator Frelinghuysen himself voted in favor of both prohibition and national woman suffrage, both of which were opposed by Mr. Wadsworth. In his letter denouncing the New Jersey Senator Mr. Anderson also spoke of an agreement with Senator Miles Poindexter of Washington under which the Republican Senatorial Committee, he insisted, was pledged not to interfere in primary contests.

The letter from Senator Frelinghuysen, made public yesterday at the headquarters of the committee, was in response to Superintendent Anderson's epistolatory denunciation. In it he declared that he was not aware of any agreement with Senator Poindexter, adding that he had advocated the election of Senator Wadsworth for a second term in his private capacity and not as an officer of the Senatorial committee. He defended the votes of Senator Wadsworth against prohibition and woman suffrage.

WARNS NEBRASKA LABOR.

Gompers Asks Them to Defeat Plan for State Industrial Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3. — Samuel Gompers made public tonight a letter written to Frank M. Coffey, Secretary of the Nebraska Federation of Labor, appealing to labor unions and all affiliated organizations to defeat the Nebraska proposal for a constitutional amendment to create an industrial commission to administer laws relative to labor disputes.

Mr. Gompers contends that such an amendment would permit legislation "as inimical to the interests of the workers and farmers as the Court of Industrial Relations act of Kansas, upon which it was patterned, and would result in compulsory labor for the workers." The proposal to create the Nebraska commission will be voted on at a special election on Sept. 21.

"The matter is of such importance," says Mr. Gompers in his letter, "that the Executive Council of the Federation of Labor has decided it should be made a leading issue in the non-partisan political campaign in Nebraska. It will not only hamper the normal activities of labor, but of the farmers. In fact it will react on the whole people. Such a provision in the Constitution would not be in the interest of the people, but for the aggrandizement of a few. They hide behind the expression 'the public welfare.'"

LABOR TO HEAR ROOSEVELT.

Democratic Candidate to Speak at Demonstration in Brooklyn.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Vice President, will be the principal speaker at a big Labor Day demonstration to be held in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, on Monday. The demonstration is being arranged by the Central Labor Union.

Mr. Roosevelt will be presented with a huge loving cup, the gift of employes of the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The presentation speech will be made by James O'Connell, President of the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor.

After delivering his speech from the bandstand in the park, Mr. Roosevelt will lay a wreath at the foot of the statue of Lafayette in another part of the park. The French Embassy at Washington has notified the Democratic National Committee that M. Casenave, Director General des Services aux Etats-Unis, will attend this ceremony as the representative of the French Government.

ANTI-SOVIET STAND ASKED.

National Civic Federation Calls for Cox and Harding Declaration.

A movement to place Governor James M. Cox and Senator Warren G. Harding, Democratic and Republican Presidential candidates, and all candidates for the House of Representatives and the United States Senate on record against recognition of Soviet Russia or any temporizing with its agents and propaganda in America was inaugurated yesterday by the National Civic Federation, through Condé B. Pallen, Chairman of its Department on Study of Revolutionary Movements.

Mr. Pallen urged all signers of the recent declaration against the recognition of Soviet Russia to join in writing the Presidential candidates, emphasizing their conviction that there must be no neutrality in thought or action on the Bolshevist problem at this time.

Mr. Pallen declared that the first step toward the eradication of Bolshevist propaganda in this country must be the deportation of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled Ambassador of the Bolshevist Government.

"This issue can neither be evaded nor compromised," said Mr. Pallen. "Whatever political changes may occur, the stand taken against Bolshevism by our Government must be maintained. In order that those who will have power and authority may not be influenced by Bolshevist sympathizers and that they may heed the great voice of representative Americans on this great matter, it is urged that the signers of the previous petition now call for a declaration from their Congressmen, Senators and from their Presidential candidates against any recognition of the Bolshevist régime in Russia and against any temporizing with its agents and propaganda in America."

WHERE CANDIDATES STAND.

Cox and Harding Answer Queries of Association of Engineers.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Opinions of Governor James M. Cox and Senator Warren G. Harding regarding a national department of public works, a budget system of appropriations, development of public resources and several other questions of public interest are given in letters from the two Presidential candidates made public today by The American Association of Engineers in answer to a questionnaire recently sent by the association.

Governor Cox wrote that "my reply to every one of the questions you ask is unequivocally 'yes'," while Senator Harding outlined his views more fully.

Among the questions asked were whether the Presidential nominees favor a national department of public works to reduce and co-ordinate many bureaus and commissions; the appointment of an engineer as a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission; a progressive program of conservation and development of public resources; a budget system of appropriations, and the reclamation of waste lands with a special financial system to aid the settler.

Senator Harding said he did not wish to enter into a categorical reply to questionnaires, but preferred to express his views as a candidate through formal and public utterances. He said he had been considering the question of a department of public works, and added:

"I should be unworthy of public confidence if I ventured to decide so important and far reaching a question without the very fullest study. You may say, in a general way, that I think very well of the appointment of an engineer on the Interstate Commerce Commission, and I have always spoken heartily in favor of a progressive and constructive policy of conservation. I am sure you know that I favor the budget system and a very forward policy relating to reclamation and irrigation."

MAY ASK POLAND TO RESTATE AIMS

WILL WAIVE FRONTIER ISSUE

No Serious Objection Offered to Crossing Ethnographical Lines for Strategic Purposes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Diplomatic Washington is by no means satisfied with the Polish reply to the American note soliciting a declaration of policy in consonance with the principle of integrity of Russian territory.

It had been hoped by high American officials that Poland would go squarely on record in declaring that she had no ambitions beyond the ethnographical frontier, as tentatively favored by the Allies, and it is considered probable that there will be a further exchange of views between Washington and Warsaw in the hope that a satisfactory understanding will be arrived at between the United States and Poland. The mere crossing of the ethnographical frontier from sheer military necessity and without aggressive purpose against Russia's integrity was not particularly objected to in the American Government's exchange of views with the Polish Government. What this Government has uppermost in mind is the preservation of the integrity of the Russian national territory, and in its negotiations with Poland and its warning against crossing the frontier the American Government has been endeavoring to obtain definite assurances from Poland that after the exigencies of military necessity have passed Poland will be satisfied to live behind her ethnographical frontier and will not seek to acquire or dominate purely Russian territory east of the frontier tentatively fixed at Paris.

It is pointed out today, after a study of Poland's reply, that the records reveal an inconsistency in Poland's policy as defined to this Government. The Warsaw Foreign Office asserts that Poland is fighting Bolshevism and not Russia, but it is recalled that the military campaign carried on against Kiev was connected with a definite scheme of creating an independent Ukraine out of Russian territory and without the consent of the Russian people.

It is also recalled that after the formulation of plans for the seizure of Kiev, but before the Kiev defensive was opened, in their peace demands upon the Bolsheviki, presented in March, 1920, which were rejected by the Bolsheviki, the Poles insisted that Russia should renounce her sovereignty in all the territories situated to the east of the old Polish boundaries of 1772 and allow Poland to decide the fate of these territories in agreement with the local population. This action was considered by democratic and liberal Russians, as well as by the Bolsheviki and the American Government, as an act hostile not only to the Bolsheviki, but to Russia as well.

It is believed that the State Department now, acting on instructions from President Wilson, will ask for an open repudiation by the Polish Government of the principle and policy condemned by the President, which are held to threaten the integrity of Russia and to tend to prolong the Russo-Polish war—a repudiation that is not found in the Polish note. In Russian circles here it is declared that the Polish reply is not satisfactory because it avoids answering directly the question put to Warsaw by the State Department.

BUDENNY STILL RETREATING.

American Airmen Reported to Have Aided Largely in Russians' Defeat.

WARSAW, Sept. 3 (Associated Press).—General Joseph Haller, Commander-in-Chief of the Polish armies, has addressed an order of the day to the French officers who were attached to his forces, expressing his gratitude for their collaboration. General Haller adds:

"It was doubly valuable to know the French officers were with us when in the immortal battle of Warsaw the fate of all the civilized nations of the world was at stake."

Polish troops have entered the city of Suwalki, nineteen miles north of Augustowo, and have had an enthusiastic welcome, according to yesterday's official statement.

General Budenny, the Russian Bolshevist commander, who has been attempting to break the Polish lines in Galicia, and who has suffered what appears to be a decisive defeat, is rapidly retreating, it is said. Along the line from Sokolka to Brest-Litovsk, on the northeastern Polish front, the situation is quiet.

General Budenny's withdrawal is in a northeasterly direction, the communiqué shows. It followed his defeat in the battles at Zamosco and in the Wolice-Sniatycka region, and was made necessary by the Polish advance, which threatened his remaining detachments with destruction.

The Kosciusko Squadron, the noted aerial force, comprised largely of Americans, played a prominent part in the defeat of General Budenny.

Farther south the Russians several times attacked the town of Busk, east of Lemberg, but were repulsed.

In the north, adds the statement, the Poles are continuing to advance into Poland proper.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Russian Bolshevist forces have occupied a number of villages from fourteen to twenty-seven miles north of Brest-Litovsk, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless. Further south Soviet forces have advanced up to the town of Brest-Litovsk, the statement says.

Further south, the Bolsheviki occupied Zamoso, forty-five miles southeast of Lublin, on Aug. 29, and in the Lemberg region are said to be holding up attacks by the Poles, who, it is admitted, have "started to advance." In the neighborhood of Puczacz, Eastern Galicia, the Bolsheviki have flung Polish troops back to the right bank of the Dniester River, the statement says.

Formal denial of the reports that the forces of General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevist commander in South Russia, had captured Ekaterinodar and Novorossisk was made by Leon Trotzky, the Soviet Minister of War, on his return from the Caucasus, says a Moscow wireless dispatch today. The War Minister admits, however, adds the message, that the Don and Kuban Cossacks have joined General Wrangel's troops and that the Soviet forces have evacuated Baku, on the Caspian Sea.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Advices to the Foreign Office today stated that the Poles, continuing their advance in Lithuania, had reached a point twenty miles north of Suwalki.

The Lithuanian Government has been deeply moved by the occupation of Seyny, to the east of Suwalki, according to these reports.

JOFFE NOW REDS' CHIEF FOR PEACE PARLEYS

WARSAW, Sept. 2 (Associated Press).—M. Danishevsky has resigned as head of the Russian Bolshevist delegation to negotiate an armistice agreement and a peace treaty with Poland and has been replaced by Adolph Abramowicz Joffe, former Soviet Ambassador to Germany and Chairman of the Russian peace delegation at Brest-Litovsk, according to Moscow advices received here. M. Danishevsky resigned because the Soviet Government agreed to carry on further negotiations with Poland at Riga. The personnel of the new Soviet delegation is not at present known, but will be communicated to Polish Government officials later.

Prince Sapieha, Polish Foreign Minister, received a wireless message from George Tchitcherin, Bolshevist Minister of Foreign Affairs, stating that the essential condition as to the Riga conference was a guarantee of the immunity of the Russian and Ukrainian delegates, the right to free and uninterrupted communication in code by telegraph and wireless and by courier carrying diplomatic sealed pouches. Upon receiving such a guarantee, M. Tchitcherin said, the Soviet delegation would start for Riga with full power to agree to an armistice preliminary to peace and to negotiate a final peace treaty.

Prine Sapieha has wired the Polish Minister in Riga to obtain the demanded guarantee from the Latvian Government and to communicate the result directly to the Bolshevist Minister in that city.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The attitude of the newly appointed head of the Russian peace delegation, Joffe, toward Poland and the Baltic provinces is set forth in a confidential statement made by him to a Lithuanian official last month and received here today in official circles.

"Russia," he declared in the announcement of his policy, "is willing to negotiate on reasonable terms with Poland and to treat her in the same manner as the other States bordering on Russia."

At the time at which the statement was made by Joffe, Aug. 10, his terms included the demand for a corridor to Germany through Poland, and unrestricted passage through the Danzig corridor. Demobilization of the Polish troops was "the one thing," he said "which is specifically desired."

Concerning the Baltic provinces, whose independence the United States has consistently refused to recognize, Joffe stated that "it is not the purpose of Soviet Russia to issue to the Baltic provinces an ultimatum demanding that they should become a part of Russia."

"On the contrary," he said, "Russia is insisting that these provinces remain independent. In this way it will be possible for Russia to avoid a complete blockade and the starvation which would follow."

FRENCH COUPLE SOLD TWIN BOYS FOR $14

OFFENDERS NOW IN PRISON

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—The high cost of living in France is the reason given by M. and Mme. Cornet for selling their twin boys for $14. Cornet, who is a gardener, and his wife had already three children before the birth of the twins and disposed of the newcomers because they could not feed so many mouths.

Unfortunately for them, the disappearance of the twins caused a good deal of gossip in Montlignon, where they lived, and the inquiry which was opened by the Mayor has revealed a complicated story of how a woman bought the babies and tried to pass them off as her own in order to obtain a bigger separation allowance from her husband, from whom she was about to be divorced.

The twins were born in a maternity hospital in Paris and baptized Albert Etinne and Raymond René in anuary, 1918. As an addition to the family which the gardener had to support—his mother-in-law, his wife and three children, of whom the eldest was scarcely 5, they were from the first unwelcome. On the way home in the train with her charges the mother met a woman who in exchange for her confidences about her troubles told her that she knew a rich woman who loved children and would be glad to bring the twins up. She promised that the mother should have news of them every month, and that their education should be the best that money could provide. The mother was tempted, but wished first to consult her husband. For weeks there were family councils on the subject. A month later, when the pinch of poverty was making itself felt, the Cornets received a telegram saying:

"If the children are not provided for a charitable woman will take charge of them and assure them a good future. Reply Mme. De Leris, 42 Rue Des Tournelles, Paris."

The offer was too good, and the mother telegraphed her acceptance. Two days later she received a second telegram asking hr to bring the babies to the railway station the same day at 3 o'clock. She and her mother kept the appointment with the twins in their arms and handed them over to two heavily veiled women who promised a glorious future for Albert Etienne and Raymond René. Then with mixed feelings of joy and sorrow they tramped home twinless.

Twice, they say, they had news of the babies. Once they had a letter saying that they had been taken to Nice and were growing fast. The second letter said that Albert Etienne had been sent to Brittany. After that the mother had no news of them, and meanwhile village gossip grew fast and bitter. What had become of the babies?

The notes which had been slipped into the mother's hand by the veiled women at the station had been spent in a way that aroused gossip to the edge of scandal, and the life of the gardener and his family was not made pleasant. Even worse for them was the absence of news of their twins.

When the Mayor began to make inquiries as to what the gossip was all about they made full confession and the police took the matter up and began looking for Mme. de Leris, the charitable woman who had so providentially taken the children. They looked in vain at the address given in the telegram. They set to work, however, and recently established the identity of the two veiled women as Mme. Dorel, a midwife of St. Germain, with whom lived a certain Berthe Cance, or de Donker, who was already known to them in connection with some swindling case in 1917.

Why the second woman wanted two children is not quite obvious, but two served her purpose better than one, for one, Albert Etienne, who was supposed to have gone to Brittany, died, and she still had one left. This one she declared was a child of herself and her husband, M. de Donker, who was at the time trying to divorce her, and by the help of her friend, the midwife, who testified that the infant had been born in a train on the hour's journey from Paris to St. Germain, she succeeded in getting the court to declare that the child was Robert de Donker, the legitimate heir of his father's home and property.

At the same time she persuaded her lover, whom she hoped to marry after the divorce, that the child was his, and in this way succeeded in getting money out of both men. As the lover was a rich man, little Raymond René, who had been renamed Robert de Donker, and is a fine, sturdy infant, seemed likely to realize all the hopes of his real mother and fall into a fortune; but his luck didn't hold, and practically all his relatives, real and adoptive, are now in prison awaiting trial of various charges of abandoning him and of having passed him off as some one he was not.

SOVIETS TOLERATE PRIESTS

Contemptuously Magnanimous Toward Them, Says Marcel Cachin.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—Contemptuous toleration marks the attitude of the Bolsheviki toward religion, says their archapologist, Marcel Cachin, the Socialist leader, who has just returned from Moscow, in today's Humanité.

Of course, the Soviets have confiscated all church property, in accordance with the best Bolshevist theories. From the vast estates of the Episcopal palaces and immense convents and monasteries down to the sacred vessels and vestments, everything has been ruthlessly seized. The jewels with which the best known sacred images were richly decked doubtless serve to maintain Soviet propaganda abroad.

But neither priests nor worshippers are actually molested, although the former have been disfranchised. M. Cachin says the Bolsheviki allow some famous shrines to retain candles and some churches are supplied with wine and bread for Holy Communion. This the Socialist writer appears to consider the height of magnanimity on the part of the Reds, in view of the fact that the priests of the despoiled churches have tried to turn their followers against the Bolshevist doctrines.

All birth registration and education of children has been transferred from religious to civil control, and the only "marriages" recognized in Russia are those performed under the Bolshevist system by which the ceremony takes five minutes and costs one ruble—less than a tenth of a cent. A divorce takes ten minutes and costs two rubles.

But the Bolshevist attitude is typified by the cynical inscription on the shrine of the Virgin at the Kremlin Gate in Moscow, which for centuries has been the goal of Pilgrims from all over Russia. Deep-graven in the stone are the words: "Religion is the opium of the people."

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 3.—The Bolshevist delegate, Maxim Litvinoff, who has been staying in Copenhagen since the beginning of the year, last night started for Christiania, where he is apparently expecting to reside for some time.

It is not known whether he will return here, but his departure at any rate means a material decrease in the work of the State police.

Knights of Columbus Reach Nice.

NICE, France, Sept. 3.—The American Knights of Columbus, who are touring Europe, arrived in Nice today. They were received by Prefect Delbarre and the Mayor. The city was beflagged with French and American banners.

LITHUANIANS DRIVE POLISH TROOPS BACK

Berlin Hears They Have Forced Thirty-three-Mile Retirement on Grodno-Suwalki Front.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—A Kovno dispatch issued by the Lithuanian Telegraph Agency, says Lithuanian detachments have attacked Polish troops and driven them back from twenty-five to fifty versts [16⅔ to 33 miles] over the entire Grodno-Suwalki front, they also took prisoners and captured war materials.

The Lithuanians are reported to have recaptured Lipskigiby, Seiny, Krasnapol, Kolepminki and Tscherwonke yesterday. Lithuanian airplanes did reconnoitering work during the advance, which is reported to be still continuing.

Information received in Berlin from other sources is to the effect that the seat of the Lithuanian Government is soon to be transferred to Vilna.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Lithuanian mission today received from London an official cablegram instructing it, by direction of Dr. Puryckis, the Lithuanian Minister of Foreign Affairs, to communicate to the United States the charge that Poland seeks to occupy Lithuanian territory and that Lithuania will be compelled to defend herself against a "fresh invasion of her territory."

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Reports that fighting has occurred between Polish and Lithuanian troops near Augustowo are denied in a telegram received in this city from Warsaw, says The London Times. It is also stated that Lithuaian troops in that vicinity are withdrawing without fighting against the Poles.

2,000 Nominate Woman Judge.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Miss Florence Allen, Assistant County Prosecutor, became the first woman candidate for a local public office today when petitions were filed nominating her for a place on the bench of the Common Pleas Court. There were 2,000 signatures to her petition.

Killed by Train in Tube Station.

A man believed to be Robert Goetz of 118 East Thirty-second Street, Brooklyn, was killed by a train in the Interborough subway, near Astor Place Station, in the rush period yesterday morning. The police are trying to learn why he was on the express tracks in a station where express trains do not stop. Traffic was suspended fifteen minutes.

Police Games Will Net $400,000.

With $390,000 already counted, according to Fourth Deputy Commissioner John Daly, the receipts for the Police Fund of the Police Field Games this year already have made a new record. Commissioner Daly said he was sure the receipts would total at least $400,000. In 1919 the receipts from the games were $828,000, and in 1918 they were $377,000.

stood to be that, while it is not likely to be actively operative, it gives better insurance of peace in the Far East and to a considerable extent is more advantageous to Great Britain than to Japan in that it gives a measure of moral protection to Great Britain's interest in Asia.

Great Britain's sympathies in the present situation are believed to be rather with America than with Japan in the adjustment of questions affecting the Far East. That both Great Britain and Japan would welcome some understanding with the United States which would look to a virtual guarantee of common action to prevent a disturbance of the international equilibrium is the opinion held in some quarters. One of the problems that confront the British and Japanese statesmen in the terms of a renewed aliance is to have it consistent with the covenant of the League of Nations, which provides for publicity of all treaties and admits as proper only those alliances designed to preserve peace.

The feeling exists here that Japan is not so much interested in preventing the enactment of drastic anti-Japanese legislation by the State of California as she is in obtaining from the United States a recognition of her claim to superior rights in dealing with China. Some of those who are particularly interested in the matter are of the opinion that Japan would willingly forego making a major issue of such legislation if the United States would grant concessions applicable to China.

Secretary Colby recently received from Governor Stephens a communication reviewing the Japanese situation as it exists in California. The letter was accompanied by the report of the State Board of Control, which made an investigation of all phases of the Japanese problem. Although Secretary Colby, as it was explained today, has not answered this letter, he and Governor Stephens have been in close touch, and their conference enabled them to exchange at first hand their views as to the manner in which the problem should be handled.

Governor Stephens said after his interview with Secretary Colby that he could not discuss the details of the interview, but he praised Secretary Colby for his understanding of the situation and his desire to do the right thing. The Governor said that there was no way in which the electorate of the State could be prevented from voting on the anti-Japanese referendum, as the referendum was ordered by petitions signed by the requisite number of citizens, whose right to demand a referendum was sanctioned by a State law.

He said also that he had ascertained from Secretary Colby that there was no truth in a report that the United States Government contemplated a solution of the California problem by proposing to Congress that all Japanese now in this country should be given the right of citizenship and the admission of Japanese prohibited thereafter.

Exchanges now in progress between Secretary Colby and Mr. Shidehara, the Japanese Ambassador, are understood to be designed to effect a permanent understanding that will remove the question of Japanese immigration from the field of misunderstanding between the two Governments.

CONGRESSIONAL PARTY WELCOMED IN TOKIO

Mayor Greets Them and Extensive Program of Receptions Arranged —Some Koreans Arrested.

TOKIO, Sept. 2 (Associated Press).—The American Congressional party visiting Japan was welcomed at the railway station upon its arrival at the capital today by Viscount Inajiro Tajiri, Mayor of Tokio, who is a graduate of Yale in the class of '79, and a delegation from the Japanese Diet, and Edward Bell, the Chargé d'Affaires, and the staff of the American Embassy.

The crowd outside the station, which was kept within fixed limits by the police, made no demonstration either for or against the Americans as the party entered special automobiles and proceeded to the Imperial Hotel. A large force of detectives and supplementary police scrutinized closely all Orientals in the throng, supposedly because of allegations that the Koreans and Chinese were likely to attempt anti-Japanese manifestations on this occasion.

An extensive program of luncheons, receptions and dinners has been arranged for the entertainment of the visitors. Seven Japanese girls, proficient in English, will act as guides to the ladies of the Congressional party.

It developed later that a score of Koreans were arrested at the time of the Congressmen's arrival, but the men detained were subsequently released. They were carrying Korean and American flags.

At Numadzu, as the party was en route to Tokio, the widely known Korean student Pak boarded the train and told Baron Kanda, the delegate of the Diet, who was on board, that he was going to Tokio to learn the truth about the alleged plot to assault the American Congressmen in Seoul. He declared the Japanese should be kinder to the Koreans if they wished to establish a closer kinship. He complained that the Koreans in Tokio were treated by the police as criminals and constantly shadowed.

The press, in its comment on the arrival of the Americans, adopts a tone of cordial welcome, but demands that the spokesmen of Japan seize the opportunity to discuss American relations with the visitors in the frankest spirit.

Representative Hugh S. Hersman of California, who was reported yesterday in Kyoto dispatches as detained there by the illness of his mother, will remain at Nara, near Kyoto, for the time being, it was stated today.

The duty of Japan and the United States to promote friendly relations between East and West was emphasized in speeches delivered tonight at a luncheon held in the Imperial Hotel in honor of the American Congressmen. President Oku of the House of Representatives said:

"We, the members of the popular branch of the Japanese Legislature, feel particular warmth in welcoming you, because despite the difference between our respective Governments we can claim kinship with you as elected Representatives of the people, and because in our efforts for parliamentary progress we look for inspiration to the advanced nations of the West, particularly the Anglo-Saxon peoples."

The speaker continued that he was firmly convinced Japan's progress in developing constitutional government meant so much ground gained toward the community of feeling so essential for peace and good-will among nations.

"The progress we have achieved," added President Oku, "and the promise of further achievement make me feel sure that in this important respect East is destined to understand West and West to understand East."

Upon looking at the map of the world, the speaker declared, he found it difficult to believe that it was for nothing that in the course of history Japan and the United States had come to face each other across the ocean as neighbors, each embodying conspicuously the respective civilization of the East and of the West. He was convinced, he added, that in this he perceived plainly the hand of destiny warning that Japan and America are particularly charged with the duty of bringing the East and the West into harmony.

"If both sides do their utmost," he continued, "with this fundamental truth in view and with due regard for the principles of justice and fair play, I have not the slightest doubt that all the troubles actually existing and all the troubles that may possibly arise between the two nations can be solved to the entire satisfaction of both. I have profound confidence in the everlasting friendship and understanding between Japan and America."

President Tokugawa of the House of Peers in the course of his address told the Congressmen: "I know you come in a private capacity, but I want to say that in expressing our most cordial and warm-hearted sentiments of friendship to you we are also conveying them, through you, to the people of the great republic which you represent, to which we are under an historic obligation of friendship and civilization, and with which we ardently desire to live in peace and harmony for all time to come."

DANGER OF BUILDING STRIKE IS AVERTED

Following a meeting of the United Labor Council at 208 East Twelfth Streeet last night it was announced by delegates to the seven building trades unions affiliated through the United Labor Council with the unions on strike that it had been decided to defer all strike action indefinitely.

D. D. Glenday, General Secretary of the International Carpenters' Union, said:

"In my opinion it will not be necessary for any more men to go out. The painters and plumbers are getting what they wanted, and a settlement of the strike is only a matter of a few days. Seventy-five per cent. of the employers have already agreed to the demands."

Robert Vetter, delegate for the United Electrical Workers of America, said the members of his organization were all set to go on strike in sympathy with the plumbers, but that he was certain there would be no necessity for such action.

Joseph Anootin, deleagte from Plumbers Local No. 82, said that 350 employers had acceded to his organization's demands by 8 o'clock last night.

None of the unions which met at the United Labor Council's Hall is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Courts Believe Movers.

Reports reached the Van Owners' Association yesterday that Municipal Court Justices were permitting tenants to remain in their apartments pending the outcome of the van workers' strike. The strike appeared yesterday to be settling down to a test of strength between the Van Workers' Union and the employers.

Among yesterday's victims of the strike was Magistrate Frederick B. House, part of whose furniture was left on the sidewalk in front of his former home at 412 West 140th Street because of the strike. The men loading the van stopped work after some of the Magistrate's effects had been loaded into the moving van on Thursday when the strike was called.

The men were engaged to take the furniture to Magistrate House's new apartment on West 153d Street. A pile of law books and some of Mr. House's furniture remained on the sidewalk Thursday night. The Magistrate spent the night in a hotel. Yesterday patrolmen from the West 152d Street station and Police Headquarters, placed the property on a motor truck and conveyed it to its destination.

Union officials yesterday expressed confidence and said that they had the strike well in hand. The Van Owners' Association announced that its membership was increasing rapidly because of the strike, as many firms hitherto not members were seeking admission in order to present a united front to the union men.

Before the strike the organization is said to have had 174 members, doing about 80 per cent. of the city's high-class moving. Twenty van owners applied for membership since Thursday, said Charles Morris, President of the organization, and yesterday between fifty and sixty Brooklyn van owners made application.

Moving vans all over the city were halted yesterday by 1,000 union pickets and in some instances strike breakers driving the vehicles were handled roughly. A moving van loaded with furniture for Rosedale, L. I., was stopped at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street and Charles Hartman, the driver, was beaten in an attack by about fifty pickets. He escaped by running into Central Park.

Union representatives announced that more than 100 vans were deserted yesterday while their drivers went to Beethoven Hall, strike headquarters, and joined the union.

Master Painters Stand Firm.

B. Russell Herts, spokesman for the Society of Interior Decorators and the Master Painters' Association, said last night that the two organizations, employing about 7,500 painters and decorators, were standing firm against granting the demand of the Brotherhood of Painters for an increase of $1 a day.

"We base our action on public spirited motives," he said. "We could afford to pay the increase, but it would have to be passed on to the public, and we feel that building costs are already high enough.

"We understand that in a short time the Building Trades Employers' Association will recognize a new union which is now being formed. The Brotherhood of Painters is not a member of the Building Trades Council and is not recognized by the American Federation of Labor. It is our information that the new union will be so recognized.

"The painters do not tell the public all their demands on the employers. They are keeping dark several of their demands because of their unreasonableness. For instance, if we send a painter to Boston, we pay his regular wages and pay his expenses. If we put the man on a sleeper and he travels all night, the union wants us to pay the man double time for every hour the man is asleep.

"The two organizations for which I speak have 500 non-union men at work and will have by Tuesday between 2,000 and 3,000 who are coming from other parts of the country, attracted by the present wages and conditions.

How Painters Increased Demands.

"The painters do not tell the public that, although they were paid $6 a day in August, 1919, and were granted $8 a day in September, 1919, agreeing to work at that wage for a year, they received from us an additional dollar in May of this year. Even though they agreed to work for $8 a day until Sept. 1, 1920, they demanded $10 in May and compromised on $9. They do not say they would tie up the employer to a contract for $10 a day for a year, but that they refuse to bind themselves to work for $10 a day for a year and reserve for themselves the right to demand more money at any time. They may even decide to go on strike in a month and demand $12.50 a day."

The Brotherhood of Painters announced yesterday that of the 15,000 members of the union all but 4,000 were back at work. It was said at union headquarters that 800 employers of the 1,200 for whom the union men work have granted the demands.

Philip Zausner, Secretary of the brotherhood, denied that the painters' strike will involve a general strike in the building trades, as reported. It was announced at the union headquarters that reports were received yesterday of the walkout of 5,000 painters in other cities working on jobs controlled by the New York contractors in response to orders issued by the brotherhood. It was an[illegible]ed that men left their work in [illegible]al, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleve[illegible] Philadelphia, Troy and Schenec-

ITALIAN WORKERS SEIZE AN ARSENAL

More Factories Also Occupied—Minister of Labor Seeks a Truce.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The striking metal workers in Venice have taken possession of the military arsenal, says a dispatch to the Central News from Rome. There were no untoward incidents.

The Daily Mail says important establishments in Liguria and Piedmont also have been occupied, while The Herald, the labor organ, adds to the list of factories seized plants in Spezia, Sestri Ponente and Sampiedarena.

ROME, Sept. 3.—The Corriere d'Italia says Minister of Labor Labriola, with a view of ending the agitation on the part of the metal workers, has proposed the appointment of a committee composed of representatives from the owners, the workmen and the Government, to ascertain the true situation in the metal industry.

In several towns the workers are occupying factories and gathering in supplies as though preparing for a siege. The Milanese metal workers assert they have received a cablegram of congratulations from their American colleagues, wishing them victory.

MORRIS YACHT CLUB BURNS.

City Island Fire Causes a Loss of $25,000 to Members.

City Island residents saw a lively blaze yesterday morning destroy the two-story frame building occupied by the Morris Yacht Club, Rodman's Neck and Pelham Bay Park. Only a small part of the paraphernalia of the members was salvaged. The damage aggregated about $25,000.

The fire was caused by an explosion of an oil stove tank on the ground floor, near where Mrs. Ludwig Phen, wife of the club steward, was working at breakfast time. The fringe of her dress caught fire and she ran screaming to the street. Foreman Joseph Dowling of the Park Department, which officially owns the building, and his wife threw a horse blanket about Mrs. Phen and quickly extinguished the fire of her dress. She received only slight burns.

STATEN ISLAND ASKS CARS.

Pupils Will Suffer from Lack of Transportation, Say Residents.

Fifty residents of Staten Island yesterday asked Federal Judge Chatfield, in Brooklyn, to direct Receiver Jacob Brenner of the Midland Railroad Company to purchase new cars and obtain power for resuming operation on the lines. The delegation, headed by Mathew J. Cahill, called attention to the opening of the public schools next week and said the children were without transportation facilities. Staten Island has suffered more from inadequate transit service than any other borough, it was asserted.

FIRE SWEEPS "TENT CITY."

Fifty Canvas Homes Burned at Edgemere—750 Families Flee.

Fire caused by an oil stove explosion destroyed fifty canvas homes and one cottage in "Tent City," Edgemere, L. I., yesterday.

The blaze put to flight 750 families living in tents and bungalows, and threatened to sweep over the bungalow section. The wind, however, veered to the southwest, and the firemen from Hammels, Seaside and Far Rockaway were able to save the bungalows. The section burned was between Fifty-second and Fifty-fourth Streets, Edgemere. Coast Guardsmen helped the tenters to safety. Many escaped while their flimsy shelters were bursting into flames, and had no opportunity to save clothing or furnishings.

SHIP MEN PREPARE FIGHT.

Steps Taken to Contest Government's Suits Under Sherman Law.

At a meeting of the Steamship Freight Brokers' Association yesterday, Louis Hess, counsel for the association, was authorized to fight the Government's suits against the association and its members under the Sherman Anti-Trust law. Two suits are now pending, one to dissolve the association known as the Steamship Freight Brokers' Association, and the other against fifty-nine freight forwarders, members of the association, and steamship companies.

Five freight forwarders, recently indicted, have pleaded not guilty and were released in $5,000 bail.

COAL DEALERS HERE CHEER THE PUBLIC

Situation Serious Because of "Strike," but No Reason for Alarm, They Say.

HAVE A FEW WEEKS' SUPPLY

City Has Reached "Hand-to-Mouth" Condition—No Advance in Prices Expected.

With the "vacation" strike of 175,000 anthracite miners under way, this city has again to face the problem of how to meet another shortage and how to fill the remainder of Winter orders so there will be no hardship. Dealers in the retail trade said yesterday that there was no reason for alarm, but that the city is down to a hand-to-mouth condition, and whether affairs become worse depends entirely upon the length of time the miners elect to remain away from the mines. Heretofore the only problems facing the coal industry were the shortage of bituminous coal and the car shortage, but these did not affect the householder.

"Will I get my Winter supply of coal?" was the question that probably 5,000 householders have asked the retail dealers, large and small, ever since the strike loomed above the horizon. In nearly every case the answer was the same: "All orders will be taken care of, for there is still enough coal on hand, if used economically, to keep orders going out until the supply again begins to come into the market." Beyond that the dealers are themselves uncertain. The trade is optimistic, however, though the supply has been cut off for the present.

"The situation may be called precarious, in that it holds the elements of the greatest danger, but up to the present time there is no cause for a panic," said Thomas F. Farrell, President of William Farrell & Son. "While no coal is being shipped in, we have enough on hand to last several weeks. Probably one-third of next Winter's orders have been filled, and I believe all the dealers will take steps to see that all will have anthracite in their bins by the time cold weather comes.

The Middle Lehigh Company of Brooklyn, which has more than 3,000 orders on its books, has not yet reached 1,150 on its list. It was said yesterday that the work of filling orders was going ahead slowly, but it was expected that every householder on the list would have some coal by the time it was necessary to start the furnace going.

All the dealers expressed belief that the strike would not force a further advance in prices. F. W. Saward, editor of Saward's Journal, pointed out that if there was any attempt to make extortionate profits out of the present situation it would be done by a small group of speculators and not by legitimate members of the industry.

A representative of Burns Brothers was optimistic that anthracite would soon be flowing again from the mines to tidewater. There was no reason for panic talk, he said, but there was reason for conservation.

These prices were quoted yesterday: Burns Brothers, Manhattan—Egg, $13.75 a ton; stove and nut, $13.75; pea, $11.80.

Middle Lehigh Company, Brooklyn—Egg, $14.35; stove and nut, $14.60; pea, $12.

It was announced by the Interstate Commerce Commission that bituminous coal from Central Pennsylvania and West Virginia would be utilized to supply the fuel needs of this city and other places along the seaboard if the "vacation" strike continued.

G. X. Mathews, a Brooklyn builder of multi-family houses, said he was willing to start building on a large scale if the money to finance the operations were forthcoming. Obtaining the money was the great difficulty he found.

I. Pennamacoor, Secretary of the Retail Delicatessen Dealers' Association, asserted that retail storekeepers were greatly in need of relief, that their rent has been increased out of all reasonable proportion and that they necessarily had to "pass the buck" to their customers.

The committee probably will have one or two more public hearings and next week will begin the preparation of the bills to be presented to the Legislature at the special session on Sept. 20.

Assemblyman William C. Amos issued a statement last night applauding Governor Smith for favoring a grant to the city of power to deal with the housing emergency by building dwellings.

SAYS WILLIAMS ENDED LIFE.

Newark Prosecutor Convinced Engineer Took Cyanide of Potassium.

Franklin B. Williams, chief engineer of the Whitehead and Hoag Company of Newark committed suicide, in the opinion of Prosecutor Harrison. Mr. Williams was found dead in his home from cyanide of potassium poisoning on last Tuesday. For a time it seemed that he might have been murdered.

"We learned Williams more than a year ago attempted his life by taking another poison," said the Prosecutor yesterday. "He had been morose over the death of his first wife and told friends after his unsuccessful attempt to end his life that he would try again."

If some one else had sought to administer the poison, the Prosecutor said, Mr. Williams would have detected the poison by the odor and would not have taken the potion. He believes Williams had the poison in capsule form.

BUYS HISTORIC MANSION.

Special to The New York Times.

SUFFERN, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Macgrane Coxe, a New York lawyer, has purchased the historical mansion at Hohokus, Bergen County, N. J., where in the early days such men as Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, Aaron Burr and Generals of the army spent many days and the soldiers camped on the surrounding grounds. The mansion is 200 years old, and in later days was the headquarters of many sportsmen who attended the race track in Hohokus.

Mr. Coxe is making extensive improvements on the place and will make it his country home. The property was formerly owned by James Keegan of Suffern.

Tenement Children Have Outing.

Three hundred children cared for by the New York Tuberculosis Association spent a happy open-air day in Central Park yesterday. They rode the merry-go-around, danced, sang, played games and ate ice cream and cake. "The sale of nineteen Christmas seals pays the expense of the day's healthy fun for a tenement child," said the announcement of the affair. "Is it not worth while?"

RED SCARE AT PARTY TO RUSSIAN CHILDREN

EXERCISES ARE CUT SHORT

The excitment was caused when the 125 Red Cross women, wearing the insignia of their society, who were the hostesses, found that a great crowd of Russians, both men and women, had also come to the garden to welcome their guests and were giving them Russian papers, literature and packages.

"Bolsheviki!" shuddered the Red Cross women in horror and they gave their guests lunch at the earliest possible moment and packed them into the big sightseeing wagons in which they had arrived and sent them off without waiting for exercises which had been scheduled for 3 P. M. in the Administration Building, at which Girl Scout leaders were to present the little Russian Scout leader with the "Thanks Badge" of their order and a troop flag.

The Bolshevist horror was made certain in the minds of one of the hostesses when she discovered a child guest carrying a red flag. Not knowing that this was now the Russian National flag she attempted to grab it and a patriotic small Russian boy spat at her.

At the close of the party the Red Cross hostesses were exhausted but greatly relieved that their guests were safely off with none of them lost or kidnapped, while the party itself, as a whole, had had a good time, had seen the animals, had enjoyed a good lunch and was happily unconscious of the Bolsheviki and did not know that it had been sent off earlier than planned.

The exercises were not wholly abandoned, for a troop of forty American Girl Scouts had arrived early to welcome the Russian Scouts, which they did with songs, to which the Russian girls responded. There were more songs at the pavilion where the refreshments were served and Miss Kate Fulop, leader of the American Girl Scouts, purloined a Thanks Badge, worn by pretty little Miss Belle Alexander, who had won it for unusual service, and it was presented, by Mrs. Helen E. Martin, Captain of Girl Scout Troop 4, in the Bronx, to the Russian Girl leader with a little impromptu speech about the beauty of international friendship.

When Miss Esther Eaton, Assistant Director of the National Girl Scouts, arrived with a brand-new Thanks pin and the Scout flag that was to have been presented, accompanied by Miss Grace Phelps, nothing remained of the party but scattered fragments of what had been rye-bread sandwiches and the wilted Red Cross workers. Little Miss Alexander will now get the new pin to replace her own, and the flag will be presented to the Russian Girl Scouts on Monday at Fort Wadsworth.

The interpreters told some of the women that the literature given to the children was of a radical character. No one else knew, because they could not read it. Crowds of the Russian residents of the city took advantage of the opportunity to see the little refugees. They had candy, paper dolls and toys for the children, as well as Russian papers.

The American Girl Scouts were delighted with their Russian sisters. "There was nothing they did not do quite as well as our American troops," said Miss Fulop. "They were obedient and snappy, drilled well and had beautiful voices."

As a compliment to the visitors' nationality, a Russian bun was made a part of the refreshment, and an American treat was an ice cream cone for each, just as they were getting into the busses on their return.

Jamaica Waist Factory Robbed.

The factory of the Allen Waist Company, at 117 Rockaway Road, Jamaica, was entered by burglars early Thursday morning, it became known last night, and goods valued at $7,000 were carried off, including 300 waists, a quantity of women's cloaks and suits, and rolls of cloth.

"The People's Choice"

YOU have probably read innumerable tales about the various presidential candidates, but here is an inside story about the next President himself.

218

TALES OF RICORO

It was after his "Banquet Speech" at Blankville, and the candidate's advisers had gone up to his room to talk things over.

"Now—about this 'National Economy issue,'" he began, as he passed around some cigars, "Can we strengthen its wording a bit before we give it out to the newspapers?"

"The wording is all right," replied one of the Committee, as he inhaled the rare cigar the next President had given him. "But for goodness' sake, Mr. Candidate, why don't you practice what you preach? If the opposition finds out about these expensive cigars of yours, your 'National Economy' talk will become a laughing stock!"

"Expensive cigars?" repeated the next President. "Why, it was these fifteen cent Ricoros of 'United' which first put the 'National Economy' idea in my mind!"

"Fifteen Cents! Why, with you and Ricoro, victory is assured!" declared the astounded committeeman, as he lighted another one. "United we stand!"

ACTORS' EQUITY MAY FORCE 'EQUITY SHOP'

VOTE FOR A REFERENDUM

Order, If Adopted, Would Apply Now Only to Managers Who Are Not In Producing Managers' Body.

The institution of the so-called "Equity shop," the enforcement of which would prohibit any Equity actor from appearing on the same stage with a non-Equity actor, was discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Actors' Equity Association called for that purpose at Aeolian Hall. The Equity shop, if adopted, will apply for the present only to managers who are not members of the Producing Managers' Association, since the Equity's agreement with that organization, made a year ago, still has four years to run.

The meeting yesterday voted for a referendum to be submitted to Equity members on the question, and if a majority of members favor it there appears to be small doubt that it will be put into effect. The decision, however, rests solely with the Equity Council. It will take three or four weeks, it was said, to obtain an expression of opinion from the scattered members of the Equity.

Although such a decision would affect mainly one-night stand producers, stock and repertoire producers and others whose productions do not reach the first-class theatres, it would have a keen interest for New York because of the fact that there are a number of producers here do not belong to the Producing Managers' Association. Among these are George M. Cohan, Henry Miller and John D. Williams.

Mr. Cohan resigned from the Managers' Association when he bcame head of the Actors' Fidelity League, during the strike of a year ago, and Mr. Miller resigned a month ago when he succeeded Mr. Cohan as President of the Fidelity. John D. Williams is known to be favorably disposed toward the Equity, but the position in which Mr. Cohan and Mr. Miller would find themselves is arousing considerable speculation. It was pointed out that they could remove themselves from the list of those affected by rejoining the Producing Managers' Association.

John Emerson, President of the Actors' Equity Association, said yesterday that if the Equity shop is declared against non-members of the Producing Managers' Association, and in the event that it proves successful, it would undoubtedly be declared against all managers when the present agreement expires, four years from now. Mr. Emerson said that the "Equity shop" differed from the "closed shop" in that it did not mean that managers would not be permitted to engage non-Equity actors. Casts composed entirely of non-Equity members could be engaged, he said, but members and non-members could not be engaged to act together.

The reason for the contemplated action, Mr. Emerson said, lay in the fact that non-Equity members are now deriving all the benefits for which the Equity actors are paying in the form of dues to their organization. It is in an endeavor to make all pay alike for benefits which they received, he said, that the Equity shop probably will be declared.

"MIDNIGHT FROLIC" LAVISH.

Ziegfeld's Latest Production Has Teddy Gerard from London.

Another in the series of Ziegfeld after-theatre entertainments—making it just about a dozen since Mr. Ziegfeld set the "Midnight Frolic" fashion some five years ago—was revealed on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre in the early hours of yesterday morning. The quality of the Ziegfeldian midnight shows is now too well known to the patrons thereof to require detailed description. The current entertainment, like all its predecessors, is a lavish and handsome production, staged with the profligate hand which is Ziegfeld.

It is, of course, pre-eminently as a show place for feminine pulchritude that the Ziegfeld roof has made its name, and the new show relies very largely upon this not uncertain appeal. The girls are there, gorgeously gowned as ever—wearing somewhat fewer clothes than usual this time, particularly in the Ben Ali Haggin tableau—and attired as Summer sports, as different forms of light and in the dozen and one disguises which song writers and revue producers somehow dig up for chorus girls.

As for the personnel of the company, it includes the names of a number of people well known to the roof devotees and of a few newcomers. Prominent among the latter is Teddy Gerard from London—a hearty favorite over there and quite likely to become one over here, although she is not given a great deal to do on the roof. There is a circus performer, Ruth Budd, and a juggler, Jack Hanley, both of whose work is well suited to the peculiar environment of the roof show.

The Rath brothers are there, performing their truly marvelous acrobatic feats, and William and Gordon Dooley, back from their London triumphs, have added a hilarious burlesque thereof to their customary didoes. From the "Follies" downstairs come the very young Fairbanks twins to do a single dance and John Steele to sing one number in his best manner.

The background for all of this is provided by the aforesaid girls and several sets of Mr. Urban's scenery. It is Ballard MacDonald's lyrics which are being sung this time instead of Gene Buck's and the music is by Harry Carroll. Edward Royce has attended to the staging and has done his customary workmanlike job.

ACTRESS DIES MAKING REEL.

Rescued After Boat Upsets, but Succumbs to Pneumonia.

Pneumonia following an accident last Tuesday in which she was thrown out of a dory towed by a motorboat off Mamaroneck, while making moving pictures, caused the death in the Hotel Albemarle yesterday of Miss Elizabeth McKentry, an actress.

Miss Anna Madley, Miss McKentry's room mate, said Miss McKentry was rescued by Miss Marjorie Clemmons, moving picture actress and expert diver. She was taken to the home of Rose McTammany of the film corporation which bears her name, and by whom she was employed. After a day in bed she returned to the Albemarle. Her physician said that Miss Madley telephoned to him on Thursday that Miss McKentry's condition had improved. Shortly after midnight Miss Madley went on an errand. When she returned later Miss McKentry was dead.

Miss McKentry was 21. She was the daughter of a grain merchant of Kansas City and was a member of the revival of "Florodora" which closed two weeks ago.

HIS MARITAL LIMIT 7 YEARS.

Charge Against Head of Dye Firm in Separation Suit.

Allegations that Martin Pollock, President of a dyeing and finishing corporation, has stated publicly that he could live with one wife only seven years, were made in the Supreme Court yesterday by Bernard Sander, attorney for Mrs. Augusta Pollock, the third wife, who is suing for a separation and asks $80 a week alimony.

"If that is the case," said Justice Guy, who heard the case, "he has been thrice punished."

Pollock's wife said he has an income of $30,000, but his attorney said he sleeps on a cot in his office. The court reserved decision.

THE SCREEN

Anna Moore, the wronged heroine of "Way Down East," was turned out into the snowstorm again last evening, but it was such a blizzard as she had never been turned out into in all the days since Lottie Blair Parker first told her woes nearly twenty-five years ago. For this was the screen version of that prime old New England romance, and the audience that sat in rapture at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre to watch its first unfolding here realized finally why it was that D. W. Griffith had selected it for a picture. It was not for its fame. Nor for its heroine. Nor for the wrong done her. It was for the snowstorm.

And not the snowstorm alone, but the peril-fraught river with its rush of swirling ice cakes. For in the "Way Down East" of the movies Anna Moore goes not merely forth into the snowy night. She also takes a leaf from the book called "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and is borne down the river as the ice jam breaks, borne swiftly toward the falls where she will be dashed to pieces unless the gallant Dave, who is making an Eliza-like pursuit, can get to her in time. It is at once an exciting race and an amazing spectacle, Griffith at his best in the climax of a picture which set its first New York audience whistling and stamping with unfeigned approval.

True, here and there comes a suggestion of papier-maché danger, of studio ice, of dummy figures and all that, but for the most part it is uncommonly well done, and the effect is breath-taking. No doubt a large part of last night's audience was made up of intimate well-wishers of the parties concerned, spectators who would have died gladly rather than find a single fault in the new Griffith picture. But no such explanation is needed of the hubbub which followed the ice-jam scene at the end. Any audience would have cheered it, and all audiences will.

For the rest, the old Fireside Companion tale is worked out with that same story-telling art, that imagination, sense of beauty and ingenuity of craftsmanship which, with the additional aid of a considerable propaganda, have made Griffith's name a great one in motion pictures. To be sure he has used only the familiar tricks and puppets of rural life as it is understood by our theatre, but then he was not making a screen version of New England life. He was making a screen version of a New England play.

Then think what a menagerie of innocent little animals such a play permits him to have, what close-ups of birds and apple-blossoms, what fade-aways of chickens, what cut-backs of heifers—all running along to an orchestral accompaniment that includes every old tune from "Little Brown Jug" to "Jingle Bells."

Anna is played by Lillian Gish, whose exceptional mobility of countenance makes her an interesting being to watch in the throes of such emotion, even when her face, all dissolved and rearranged with woe, is put close to the camera and held there interminably. As usual, this delicate and lovely face of hers goes so far in expressing that she knows no wrong that sometimes it conveys the suggestion that she knows nothing at all. David is capitally played by Richard Barthelmess, the extraordinary player of "Broken Blossoms," and "that city chap" is done by one of our best stage villains, Lowell Sherman.

After all the best possible description of "Way Down East" was furnished by Mr. Griffith himself in his advance notice to the public, the one in which he let it be known that this was just "a plain, old-fashioned story for plain, every day human beings," but "most expensive." He could have added that the snowstorm and the scenes on the ice-jammed river would appeal also to fancy, every-other-day human beings—to every one in fact.

INDICT 12 POSTAL EMPLOYES

Woman Among Those Accused of Pilfering from Mails Here.

Twelve persons employed by the Post Office Department in this city were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury of pilfering from the mails. The arrests were the result of weeks of work by inspectors following numerous complaints that packages deposited in the mails had not been delivered. The failure to deliver was charged to carelessness, and the postal authorities in Washington were asked to investigate.

The articles stolen consisted mostly of such things as slippers, mens' clothing, trinkets and sums of money ranging from 51 cents to $36.

Those indicted were Felix Short, Alice Lewis, Fritz F. Pryne, Wayne J. Houston, Barney E. Humbert, William Merchant, Joseph Golub, Benjamin Schwartz, Jerome P. Cohen, Morris Becker, William Schmidt and Harold Bauman.

Assistant United States Attorney Ben A. Matthews, who has charge of the prosecution of the defendants, obtained bench warrants for those who had not been arrested up to nightfall yesterday.

INDICTS NINE AT SARATOGA.

Grand Jury Is Said to Have Asked Arrest of "Men Higher Up."

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Nine indictments were returned today by the Extraordinary Grand Jury, which during the last four weeks has been conducting an investigation into alleged gambling here. The conditions under which the indictments were presented to Justice Charles O. Van Kirk indicated that great importance is attached to the presentment by Wyman S. Bascom, who has been representing the Attorney General in the proceedings. Arraignment was set for Tuesday morning.

Until arrests are made the identity of the persons indicted will be kept secret, said Mr. Bascom. He also declined to discuss the action of the jurymen, but there was plenty of speculation elsewhere regarding the contents of the indictments. A rumor was in circulation that they involved the "men higher up."

Previously, the Grand Jury had taken the evidence of several score witnesses, and including its action today has returned more than a score indictments.

BANKERS HIRE JAIL KEEPERS

Sing Sing Attendants to Watch for Criminals in Financial District.

Crooks who venture below the police "dead line" and invade the financial district in lower Manhattan will run greater risk of being detected hereafter, for it was announced yesterday that Martin J. Deeley and Frederick Dorner, two veteran attendants of Sing Sing, are to work in that area hereafter. A dozen bankers and brokers bid for the services of Principal Keeper Deeley and Assistant Principal Keeper Dorner because of their wide acquaintance with all kinds of criminals. Both men met about 20,000 criminals in the twenty-eight years they worked at Sing Sing. Deeley is already pensioned and Charles F. Rattigan, Superintendent of Prisons, will allow Dorner to retire on a pension in two weeks.

MUSIC NOTES.

Michel Piastro, a Russian violinist arriving via the Philippines and Australia, is to make his debut here on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 3, at Carnegie Hall.

Alfred Mirovitch, pianist, said to be a distant kinsman of Gabrilowitsch, is announced to appear Oct. 20 in Carnegie Hall and later with the Detroit Orchestra.

Issay Mitnitzky, violinist, now playing in Norway, will be a newcomer here late in September. Returning from a Scandinavian tour is another fiddler, Mischa Violin.

Ernest Dohnanyi, the Hungarian pianist and composer, will return to America for a concert tour, including appearances with several orchestras here.

CHAIN OF THEATRES ENDS IN FRAUD SUIT

Stockholders in National Playhouse Corporation Allege Misrepresentation.

SAY STOCK IS WORTHLESS

A suit filed in the Supreme Court yesterday in behalf of persons who bought stock in the National Playhouse Corporation, promoted this Summer to build theatres in several leading cities, alleges that the stock was sold under misrepresentations amounting to fraud and that shares which sold at $10 each are worthless. The defendants named are Harvey H. and Richard S. Hevenor of Hevenor & Co., the promoters, of 56 Pine Street; Arland M. Johnson, President; Gerard Roberts, Treasurer; John F. Lamp, Vice President, and William S. Scott and Mortimer J. Butler, Directors, all of whom are asked to account for the moneys obtained for stock.

The suit is brought by Frank M. Boothe, on the claims of five stockholders who paid $1,650 for shares. The largest claim is in behalf of B. Rush Stoddard, who paid $1,000 for 100 shares of preferred and 100 of common stock. The complaint alleges that the corporation was formed May 7 last in Delaware with 2,000 shares of preferred stock at $10 a share and 400,000 shares common having no par value.

The defendants are alleged to have issued prospectuses and made written representations that the property was worth more than the capital issued and that an agreement had been effected with Alexander Pantages, New England theatrical owner, for the management and bookings of theatres and that mortgages to yield $239,750 had already been arranged for.

The complaint says the defendants represented that arrangements had been made to operate a theatre in connection with the Statler Hotel (city not named); that one was to be financed in Louisville, one in Pittsburgh, for which $300,000 was to be contributed by the corporation and the remainder by local capital; one in Washington, for which local capital would contribute $600,000; and theatres in Cincinnati with $200,000, in Wisconsin with $150,000 and in Toledo with $100,000 remaining to be furnished by the corporation.

The plaintiffs allege that the defendants knew the property was worth far less than the capital stock and that none of the parties to the enterprise had any financial interest. It is charged that Johnson, the President, not only put in no money, but had a contract calling for $600 a week, and is now suing the corporation in Westchester County for $153,000 for breach of contract and has attached all its property.

The complaint alleges that the corporation had none of the agreements alleged to have been made when the stock was sold, but was operated at a loss and is now in debt and its stock worthless.

BLAME FOR ELEVATOR CRASH

Car Overloaded, Cables Faulty, Inspectors Report.

"It is our opinion that the overloaded condition of the car, as well as the bad condition of the hoist ropes, as the cause of the accident," said Inspectors Foley and Dreier of the Building Department in a report made yesterday on the elevator accident in the Clarendon Building, 215 Fourth Avenue, last Thursday night, in which three were killed and a score injured.

The report and a letter accompanying it, were filed by Rudolph P. Miller, Superintendent of Buildings, with Henry H. Curran, President of the Borough of Manhattan.

"The result of the examination indicates that both lifting cables broke, allowing the car to fall," the letter said. "The break in the cables was due to the bad condition of the cables, aggravated by an express load in the car, and probably careless operation of the car."

The report inclined to the theory that injuries to occupants of the elevator were caused by counter-balancing weights falling upon it. Indications were that safety devices caused the car to strike the buffers at the bottom of the shaft at less than normal speed.

Mano Shaw, whose address given when taken to Bellevue Hospital was 215 Fourth Avenue, the place of the accident, died yesterday in that institution from a fractured skull.

RYON SUES ON WIFE'S DEBTS

Seeks to Compel Wanamaker's to Return $14,250 Bonds.

Frederick L. Ryon of 620 Fifth Avenue, yesterday brought an action in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn to compel John Wanamaker to return $14,250 in bonds and mortgages, which were given as collateral on purchases in the department store amounting to $16,292.

Ryon, who is a son of A. M. Ryon, a coal dealer of Flushing, L. I., said that his wife, from whom he is now separated, contracted the debts without his authority or knowledge. When the store wrote letters to him, Ryon said, he returned some of the rugs bought by Mrs. Ryon and gave up the bonds as collateral. Defendants demurred against a decision that would prevent foreclosure on the bonds, and received until Sept. 8 to file briefs.

Ryon said he would begin action to set aside other judgments for debts alleged to have been contracted by his wife. In addition to sums for the upkeep of their home at 575 Riverside Drive, Ryon said that between April, 1919, and January, 1920, he gave his wife $9,698 and that her other bills amounted to $8,301, exclusive of those for motor cars. He said his wife was in Hollywood, Cal.

INDICTED ON BRIBE CHARGE.

Bornsteins Alleged to Have Offered $20,000 to Prohibition Agents.

Nathan and Bernard Bornstein, who conducted a store at 999 Freeman Street, the Bronx, were indicted yesterday by a Federal Grand Jury on charges of attempted bribery, conspiracy and unlawful sale of liquor. They also are charged with maintaining a common nuisance. The indictment was handed up to Judge W. B. Sheppard.

Following the seizure of 1,671 cases of whisky, valued at $115,000, in their Freeman Street place, the Bornsteins were arrested on July 28 by prohibition enforcement agents. They are now out on bail. It was announced that they would be rearrested on a bench warrant issued by Judge Sheppard.

It is charged in the indictment that on July 28 the defendants offered $200 to George E. Golding and Walter Murphy, Prohibition Enforcement Agents, to permit them to transport five cases of whisky from 999 Freeman Street, and successively offered $10,000 and $20,000 to the agents to permit them to sell their large stock of liquor.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Toreador," by Louise Coleman, will be placed in rehearsal next week by the Selwyns. Leo Carrillo will be the star.

"Aphrodite" will begin its second season on Sept. 11 at the Auditorium in Chicago.

Otto Kruger and Beatrice Hart will have the leading roles in "Sonya," which Marc Klaw will produce.

SWISS INVITE EINSTEIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Sept. 3.—In Swiss university circles efforts are being made to induce Professor Einstein, who is determined to leave Berlin, to accept a professorial position in Berne or Zurich.

Einstein studied in Berne, where he was for a time an unsalaried professor. Moreover, he is a Swiss citizen, and his treatment by the Junker students and professors in Berlin is causing much indignation among the university men of Switzerland.

The recent attacks on Einstein are said to be due to his being of Jewish blood. At a public meeting in Berlin against Einstein one Junker professor complained that Professor Einstein by his discovery "did not think of glorifying Germany, but only himself."

Hitherto Professor Einstein has not definitely replied whether or not he will accept a chair at a Swiss university. He has received offers from numerous European and American universities, and it is believed certain now that Einstein has definitely decided to leave Germany.

ROOT RETURNS TO HAGUE.

Assumes Duties in Court of Arbitration in Peace Palace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 3.—Elihu Root, who recently was the mainspring of the jurists' conference, is back at The Hague and has begun work in the Court of Arbitration, which ceased during the war at the Peace Palace.

Two of the cases before the court are of pre-war standing, the first being a question relating to Portuguese land claims. Root, who always enjoys the quietness of The Hague, stated he was glad to be back again.

JOSEPH LEITER SUED.

Former Wheat Speculator Defendant in Action Brought by J. H. Hoadley.

Joseph Leiter of Chicago and Washington, who inherited a fortune from his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter, and who had made an independent fortune speculating in wheat and in other enterprises, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by Joseph H. Hoadley, former President of the International Power Company. Leiter was alleged to have been Hoadley's partner in the unsuccessful International Power pool in 1902 when the stock, which had been boosted from par to 198, dropped in two days to 101. Another suit was filed against Mr. Leiter by Alfred H. Hoadley, brother of Joseph H. Hoadley.

The papers were served on Mr. Leiter at the Pennsylvania Station in behalf of the Hoadley attorneys, Werner & McGivney. The amount sued for and the cause of action is not stated in either case.

For many years Leiter, Hoadley and their associate, Cyrus Field Judson, were defending suits brought as a result of the pool collapse. Whether or not the two actions of yesterday are based on incidents of eighteen years ago could not be learned yesterday.

CLERK BAFFLES ROBBERS.

Unscared by Revolver and Chloroform, He Fights—Four Arrested.

Morris H. Protter, a clerk in the Chain Shirt Shop, 1,398 St. Nicholas Avenue, was waiting upon two supposed young men customers at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning when one shoved a revolver against his ribs and the other applied to his nose a handkerchief soaked in chloroform.

Protter, strong and big, was not intimidated. He fought and called for help. The youths became frightened and ran. One, who was arrested outside by Policeman Finneran, said he was Charles Savers, 18, of 855 East 167th Street.

Later in the day, after Savers had been held in $2,500 bail on charges of assault and attempted robbery by Magistrate Frothingham in the Washington Heights Court, three other men were arrested. They said they were Max Greenberg, 17, of 1,147 Prospect Avenue, a clerk in the shop; David Littman, 18, of 1,148 Union Avenue, a chauffeur, and Irving Hernberg, 15, of 822 East 165th Street.

Greenberg and Littman were charged with assault and attempted robbery and Hernberg was charged with juvenile delinquency. Protter told the police that Greenberg had asked him on Thursday night what he would do if robbers held him up and that he replied, "I would put up my hands."

An auto, with engine running, was found by the police near the shop. In it was a revolver and a bottle of chloroform.

INQUIRY ON JACK JOHNSON.

Federal Attorney Investigates Alleged Laxity of Jailer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The United States District Attorney's office began investigation today of reports in The Chicago Journal that Jack Johnson, former pugilist, now a prisoner in the Geneva (Kane County) jail, is permitted to take long walks, go automobile riding and stages a daily training bout to which the Sheriff issues tickets.

The Journal account states that a reporter sent to see Johnson found that he had gone out riding with a number of women, and that after waiting until nearly midnight the reporter left before Johnson's return.

CREEL COMMITTEE COST $4,954,200.01

$1,250,000 FOR SALARIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The last official act of the late Committee on Public Information, which functioned during the World War under the Chairmanship of George Creel, has taken the form of a report to the President of the Senate by Herbert N. Shenton, director of the Council of National Defense.

When Congress failed to appropriate money for the committee's continuance after June 30, 1919, the Council of National Defense took charge of its records and on Aug. 25, 1919, E. K. Ellsworth of the council staff, was appointed liquidating officer. The report shows that while Congress appropriated only $1,250,000 for the committee's support, President Wilson made it an allowance of $5,650,000 additional out of the appropriation for National Security and Defense.

Although the total expenditures of the committee amounted to $8,245,249.65 to June 30, 1920, the net cost to the Government was $4,954,200.01 after deducting amounts received by the committee from various sources. The sale of photographic films by the committee produced $2,394,073.09, and after the expenses of the film division had been paid there was a balance of $741,204.85.

There was disbursed in behalf of the committee $6,275,533.88, but of these payments the Government has recovered $393,610.77 of advances made for foreign propaganda and on certain other items, making a total of recoveries of $424,357.12. To June 30, 1920, the net disbursements were $5,851,176.56, with outstanding liabilities estimated at $30,000. The sum of $1,700,000 has been returned to the Treasury and after the outstanding liabilities are settled there will be an additional $160,000 returned.

The principal items of expenditure as shown by the report are: For propaganda work in foreign countries, $1,448,000; $1,250,000 for salaries, $935,000 for printing done at the Government printing office, $500,000 for printing done elsewhere, $583,000 for telegraph and cable service, $435,000 for films and moving picture apparatus, $127,000 for stationery and $122,000 for travel in the United States.

G. A. Weber of the Council of National Defense staff reports that the records, files and mailing lists of the twenty-two main divisions of the committee are now in the custody of the council. He gives a detailed statement of the records, files and mailing lists of each of nineteen divisions and submits a signed statement by Mr. Creel concerning three divisions for which there were no files. As to these three divisions Mr. Creel makes the following statement:

"The industrial relations division was never put into operation at all; pictorial publicity finished work with only routine correspondence on hand and this correspondence is now in possession of Charles Dana Gibson, Carnegie Studios, New York City, and the files and records of the labor publications were incorporated with the files and records of the division of business management and the division of civic and educational co-operation."

The report states that Mr. Creel and the other executives of the Committee on Public Information have held themselves at the disposal of the council at all times, coming to Washington at their own expense whenever needed.

Mr. Creel, commenting here yesterday upon the report, made this statement:

"Congress meant to precipitate chaos when it destroyed the Committee on Public Information, even while our representatives, moneys and properties were scattered all over the world. The attempt failed. The liquidation is a complete answer to every charge of waste, inefficiency and confusion. Every vital record stands accounted for and every cent of expenditure has its proper voucher.

"The sum of $4,954,200—net cost of the committee for virtually two years of extensive activity in every American community and in all foreign countries—is less than England spent on cable tolls in one year, and half what other belligerents spent in one year in one country.

"For more than a year Senator Smoot and his fellow partisans have attacked the committee with every conceivable lie. I challenge either branch of Congress to an open hearing on the liquidation report and every fact behind it."

URGES GIVING BOTH SIDES.

Christensen Suggests Harding and Cox Each Print Opposing Views.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Parley P. Christensen, Farmer-Labor candidate for President, sent a telegram to Senator Warren G. Harding and Governor James M. Cox, today, suggesting that the two newspaper proprietors grant "one column of space each day until Nov. 2 for the publication of such facts, views and statements as the national committee of each party furnishes to your newspaper.

"If you will do this you will have done more for the development of American political, social and economic intelligence, in my opinion, than any one thing you could or can do during four years in the White House," Mr. Christensen added.

The tennis expert of The New York Times will describe in tomorrow's issue the National Singles Lawn Tennis Championship Tournament at Forest Hills today.—Advt.

"THE GREATEST YET"
WAS THE VERDICT OF THE CROWDS

Last night's audience at the 44th Street Theatre acclaimed D. W. Griffith's "Way Down East" his greatest achievement, and comparable only to "The Birth of a Nation" in dramatic strength and stirring scenes. Men and women laughed and wept, and when the final scenes of the amazing storm passed thunderingly before their eyes, the great crowd stood and cheered the man who had held them spellbound for three solid hours.

STOOPING TO CONQUER.

Governor Cox, shortly after his nomination, made an address to the professional baseball players of Cincinnati, making free but not very impressive use of their own jargon. But his effort was quite eclipsed by Senator HARDING's classical discourse on Thursday to the visiting Chicago baseball club. For exquisite banality, for clumsy humor, for "Boeotian grace," this takes the prize fairly away from the Governor. It is safe to say that the Marion speech is inimitable, because nobody of mature years and in full possession of his faculties will try to imitate it.

There has been too much of this splitting the ears of the groundlings by both candidates. They ought to leave that kind of cheap fooling to the minor orators sent out by their Speakers' Bureau. The campaign speaking has not, thus far, been on a high level, and unfortunately seems to be tending to sink even lower. While it is true that the country has made up its mind not to expect great things of its Presidential nominees this year, it would wish them to eschew trivialities and follies in their public appearances, to bear in mind the dignity of their position and to pay the people the compliment of speaking to them seriously on the high themes of the great political debate. Candidates in a democracy should always bear in mind COLERIDGE's distinction between "popularize" and "plebificate." In this campaign we have already had all the plebification that is necessary.

DENTISTRY AT THE HAGUE.

Senator HARDING's demand for "a Hague tribunal with teeth in it" has caused surprise and even alarm. Like so much else that has seemed to issue from the Marion front porch, its real origin is elsewhere; and in this case the origin is in a mind that is clear and sure of itself. It was ELIHU ROOT who first mentioned those teeth.

The phrase occurs in his letter to WILL H. HAYS of March 29, 1919, giving his views on the original draft of the Covenant. Mr. ROOT then recognized, as he has always done, that the League will be in many regards "of very great practical value"; "under these conditions the United States cannot quit." But to certain features he had serious objections, which he states. Thus, Article XIII. provides that the nations shall arbitrate only such disputes as "they recognize to be suitable for submission to arbitration." To Mr. ROOT "an agreement to arbitrate when the parties choose to arbitrate" is "no agreement at all." There were in force at that time "200 treaties of arbitration by which the nations of the world have bound themselves with each other to submit to arbitration all questions arising under international law or upon the interpretation of treaties." The clause in the Covenant bound nobody; and, furthermore, by virtue of a provision in Article XXV., even these existing treaties were abrogated. The first draft of the Covenant, in short, "puts the whole question of arbitration back where it was twenty-five years ago"; it "throws those conventions upon the scrap-heap." What Mr. ROOT advocates is "perfecting and putting teeth into the system of arbitration provided for by The Hague conventions."

The revised draft of the Covenant contains changes suggested by this and other American criticisms; but it fell short of satisfying Mr. ROOT. In his letter to Senator LODGE, published June 21, 1919, he says: "Nothing has been done to provide for the re-establishment and strengthening of a system of arbitration or judicial decisions upon questions of legal right. Nothing has been done toward providing for the revision or development of international law." It was, presumably, to remedy this defect that Mr. ROOT was invited to the recent conference at The Hague, and there is every reason to believe that he is satisfied with the result. The details will not be made public until Sept. 15; but, as the plan is submitted to the Council of the League with a recommendation that it be adopted as a part of the League mechanism, it may be surmised that the "teeth" are to be supplied by the political end—the Council and the Assembly.

Few people who know the clarity and constructive power of Mr. ROOT's intelligence will doubt that the judicial end of the League will profit greatly by his mission; or that, with the scheme of arbitration modernized and provisions made for the codification and development of international law, the political end of the League also will be strengthened. The pity is that the news of progress should come to us through the clouded speech of the amiable gentleman at Marion.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION FOR RUSSIA.

Mr. MARTENS, Ambassador from Soviet Russia, declares that his country is not afraid of propaganda. The Bolsheviki would like to have anybody come in and work with them, whether they agree with Bolshevist theories or not. "We would take our chances with the influence of American engineers, teachers and skilled workers. There is a tremendous opportunity for the practical and technical intelligence of America to aid in the building of the new Russia."

Of course. The procedure of Communism in action is by now fairly obvious. First you decide to live on the surplus accumulated under capitalism while you get your own system going. You find that the going is hard; your system does not seem to be getting into operation as quickly as you had expected. Admissions of this sort have been so numerous from Bolshevist sources that there seems little doubt that economically the Bolshevist system has so far failed to pay its own way. But Russia is a backward country, not developed industrially. Therefore, say the Communists, we will hire industrial and scientific experts to do the work for us—and they would no doubt be as ready to hire Americans as they have hired non-Communist Russians.

But with what do they pay them? Foreign technical experts, at least, will not accept Bolshevist paper money. If the supply is to be kept up, they must be paid in gold—gold stolen from capitalistic Rumania, gold accumulated by capitalistic Russia in the old days, or gold obtained by the sale of jewels confiscated from private capitalists. So, if Russia goes back to peace and trade relations with the rest of the world, we shall see the perfect functioning of the Communist economic system—under the direction of capitalists paid with the accumulations of other capitalists.

The spectacle would lend point to Mr. BALFOUR's comment on Mr. TCHITCHERIN's assertion that Bolshevist Russia has not the inequalities of wealth seen in capitalistic England. Mr. BALFOUR admits this, and observes that he had never doubted the complete efficacy of the Soviet system for making rich men poor, though he was yet to be convinced that it could make poor men rich.

THE IDAHO DIRECT PRIMARY.

Idaho's trial of the direct primary system is worth recording without bias or prejudice. In 1909 every political party whose vote the year before an election amounted to 10 per cent. of the total vote was obliged to use the primary. Conventions to make party platforms were authorized, as was a preference primary for the nomination of candidates for United States Senator. A system of first and second choice voting was established. By the accompanying Corrupt Practices act no candidate was permitted to spend more than a quarter of the annual pay of the post for which he was a candidate; and all campaign expenses had to be published.

From year to year the Idaho Legislature tried to improve this system and to remedy such defects as its working discovered. The listing of names in alphabetical order was found to benefit candidates whose names were at or near the head of the ticket. So the alternation of names was substituted; the limit of campaign expenditures was raised. The first and second choice prescriptions were modified. Not until 1913 was the law so changed that a member of one party couldn't vote in the primary of another. Then, too, the habit of some ambitious aspirants of getting an independent nomination by petition after taking part in a primary was stopped.

In spite of what seems to have been a sincere effort to improve the direct primary, the usual complaints against the system were made. Poor men had little chance under it. The legal limit of campaign expenses seems to have been a dead letter. The quality of candidates didn't rise; fell, rather, we are told, especially in the case of seekers of minor offices. A certain State Treasurer had to go to the penitentiary, an unfortunate fact perhaps unjustly set down to the discredit of the primary. It was charged that party integrity, discipline and accountability suffered greatly. However that may be, it was that irrepressible organization, the Non-Partisan League, which gave the direct primary its quietus. In 1918 it put up a State ticket at its own convention; didn't appear as a party on its own hook, but told the Leaguers to go into the Democratic primary and vote for the League candidates. It speaks well for the League sense of humor that its nominee for Governor—on a Democratic ballot, remember—was a Republican politician.

The State Supreme Court decided that the primary law didn't prevent a Republican from getting a Democratic nomination or vice versa. Whether on account of defects in the law or aversion to the Non-Partisan League, last year's Legislature withdrew from the operation of the primary statute the nomination of candidates for Presidential Electors, Senators and Representatives in Congress, and State offices. Candidates for District Judge and county offices, for county convention delegates and local committeemen, are still selected under the direct primary system. Each county convention makes its platform, chooses its member of the State Committee and its delegates to the State convention. The State convention, also each county convention, is the sole judge of the qualifications of its delegates and of the regularity of their election. There are elaborate provisions to prevent a candidate from getting a place on the ticket of another party. These provisions seem to be mainly directed against the Non-Partisan League.

Thus Idaho has given up the direct primary for the more important officers, retains it for certain minor ones, has restored the State convention and is trying to make that thoroughly honest and representative. Last week the Republican State Convention voted down a resolution for the revival of the full direct primary system.

ITALIAN "FACTORY COUNCILS."

Industrial troubles in Italy have for some time been taking the form of setting up "Consigli di fabbrica" in various places, chiefly among metal workers. Such bodies, provided they gave due respect to the capital invested and to a fair division of profits, constituted, said the Minister of Labor, Signor LABRIOLA, in a speech last month, "a question that ought to be discussed." But the workingmen have proceeded to act without discussion. They have "taken over" factory after factory, in Milan, in Naples, in Spezia, even in Rome.

The owners for the most part have maintained a passive attitude. They patiently wait until the experiment of control by the "councils" breaks down, as it did at the great works of the MAZZONIS in Turin. The chief cause of the failure of this attempt at factory administration by workingmen is their lack of both executive capacity and technical skill. This is admitted in a public statement by a council at Milan, which speaks of the need of disciplining and educating the workmen for their higher tasks, but adds that it will be necessary to have previously "a period of transitional dictatorship." But the Italian Socialists who visited Russia could tell their brothers that the one sure thing is the dictator who shows no desire at all to be transitional.

BULGARIA AND HER NEIGHBORS.

Premier STAMBOLISKI of Bulgaria, in a recent interview published in a Sofia newspaper and reported in a cable to The Greek National Herald of this city, expressed satisfaction over the recovery of VENIZELOS, and further expressed admiration of VENIZELOS's achievements, with confidence in his attitude toward Bulgaria. STAMBOLISKI, who has always been outspoken about the blunders of his countrymen, declared that the Bulgars themselves turned the Greek statesman from a friend into an enemy by their behavior in 1913, and asserted that VENIZELOS could be counted on to do what he could toward the rapprochement of the two nations—an enterprise in which STAMBOLISKI expressed his willingness to join.

This is excellent so far as it goes; Mr. STAMBOLISKI is a hard-headed and sensible man. But, as The National Herald pointed out, the question of future friendship must depend chiefly on the Bulgarians. Their record in the last eight years has not inspired their neighbors with any great confidence. Just at present the mass of the nation is bitter and revengeful because it has lost territory. Bulgaria's economic position is said to be fairly good; but the burden of taxation is heavy and the town populations find living very difficult. On the other hand, the Bulgars, like the Germans, carried the war into the enemy's country at once and fought it out on alien soil, so that their own land has been spared the depredations which Bulgarian armies visited on all the regions which they occupied. If life is hard in Bulgaria even before payment of the indemnity begins, it is harder in the territories which the Bulgarians stripped of everything worth taking away and half depopulated.

Seeing the other man's point of view is hard enough for anybody, but apparently doubly so for a Bulgar. The Bulgars believe as thoroughly as the Germans that they were victims of a great wrong, though their neighbors have suffered things at their hands that can never be made good. The neighbors are beginning the approaches toward new peacetime relations; the Jugoslavs have just reopened their legation in Sofia and are ready to start over again. If the Bulgars will take good advice from their Premier, both they and their neighbors will be better off.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Fifth Is No Small Reduction. Speaking for the American book publishers, FREDERIC G. MELCHER, Secretary of their National Association, asserts in a letter printed elsewhere on this page today that the saving to book buyers, if books were issued in paper covers, after the next to invariable fashion in France, would not be as large as 50 per cent. Mr. MELCHER's statement is made with authority and from knowledge, and therefore must be accepted. He admits, however, that books now sold here for $2 could be sold for $1.60 if distributed unbound, and, though that is some way from being a reduction of 50 per cent., there is many and many a book buyer to whom the saving of even 20 per cent.—a whole fifth—is not a matter of indifference, and to many and many another would-be book buyer that difference would make possible a purchase which without it would be impossible.

What Mr. MELCHER says as to the present advance in the prices of French books, in spite of issuance unbound, is not obviously relevant to the discussion, any more than is his mention of cheaper French labor as explaining why books in France have always cost less than like books in this country. Whatever the French pay now for their books, they pay less than they would have to pay if they bought their books already bound. And that is the case with us, as always in the past.

His Other Arguments Considered. As a further argument against the issuance of unbound books, Mr. MELCHER says that the libraries would not like to get books in that shape, first, because it would delay getting the books into the hands of the public, and, second, because it costs more to bind separate books than many, and library books must be bound.

To the former objection the answer is that, as regards delay, it makes no appreciable difference to readers whether they are waiting for the publishers or the librarians to do the binding. As for the relative cost of binding in the two instances, it is to be remembered that every large library is obliged to have many books rebound, and therefore can get a fairly close approach to publishers' costs for this work.

And is not Mr. MELCHER mistaken when he says that sales to libraries are larger in this country than in France and England, and that, therefore, the preferences of the libraries are more nearly decisive here? If he is right as to France, he errs as to England, for the two great London firms of MUDIE and SMITH, acting as lending libraries, are enormous distributers of books, and so large are their purchases of books they think their customers want that they are able, not exactly to suppress books of which, for business reasons, they disapprove, but to exercise a form of censorship that has wrecked the hopes and excited the rage of many an aspiring author.

After considering all the points made by Mr. MELCHER, the conviction remains that the American reading public would profit not a little in pocket, and no less in mind, if the French custom of issuing books in paper covers were adopted by the American publishers. Great numbers of books would serve all their present purposes if sold unbound, and the saving on those which the purchasers did not think in need of a jacket would far more than balance the larger cost of having the less numerous books deemed worthy of better protection.

Pedestrian Rights in the Street. Commissioner ENRIGHT is presumably correct when he says that about 78 per cent. of all street accidents are due to the carelessness of pedestrians. His assertion would have been more easily credible, however, if it had been put in different form—if he had said that in 78 per cent. of street accidents there is a measurable element of contributory negligence on the part of the victims. He might have gone still further, indeed, and said that in at least 99 per cent. of all cases had the pedestrian exercised all possible care he or she would not have been hurt.

But, as it happens, it is a matter of certainty that all pedestrians will not exercise all possible care, and as a matter of both law and morals they are under no obligation to be as careful as that. "Reasonable care" is all that can be demanded or is expected of them, and while only the same demand and expectation rest on the drivers of automobiles and other vehicles, the drivers justly are held to a greater care than pedestrians for the same good reason that establishes the law of the sea as regards steamships and sailing vessels. The latter have the right of way always, and the faster, more manageable and heavier craft must do the slowing down and turning as circumstances decide.

These remarks are not intended to excuse the carelessness of pedestrians or to deny that their carelessness is sometimes so great as to transfer the responsibility for their injuries from the chauffeurs to themselves. But it is a fact that people afoot do not incur blame or deserve criticism quite as soon as do the manipulators of motor cars, and that they have rights in the streets, even though they choose to cross elsewhere than at the appointed places.

Sensitive Only in One Direction. Studied moderation of language marked the statement of Sir HAMAR GREENWOOD, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, when he said, "None of the mercy which some seek to invoke for the Lord Mayor of Cork was shown to the eighty policemen who have lost their lives in Ireland."

What the Chief Secretary had in mind, presumably, was the curious fact that for the Sinn Feiners and their sympathizers the assassination of Irish policemen is fully justified as "an act of war," but they are filled with what seems to be sincere horror when the British authorities take military measures against avowed and armed enemies. For the Sinn Feiners "war" has only one side; on the other side sternness for them is murder and atrocity.

This is a state of mind, as already has been observed, that recalls the German joy in inflicting "Schrecklichkeit" and the German hysterical indignation when Germans were the objects of similar attacks in reprisal.

Whose ox is gored in both cases makes all the difference.

For Samaria Alone.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Wouldn't it be well to tear the story of the Good Samaritan out of our Bibles? Poor fool! He might have saved his oil and his wine and his pence, and escaped all care and trouble, if he had gone on his way homeward. He might then have sat on his porch with his wife and children, crooning away, "Ourselves alone!" C. C.

New York, Aug. 29, 1920.

BOOK PRICES AND BINDING.

Denial That Paper Covers Would Lower the Cost Much to Readers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of Aug. 26 discussed at some length the saving which would come to American book buyers through the adoption of the French system of paper covers.

There can be no question that to a very large number of people the increased cost of books is a serious matter, although to many it is a negligible item of expense, but the effect of binding in paper would hardly be the relief that is sought. The cost of binding a book in cloth is a little over 20 per cent. more than double what it was two years ago. The saving by binding in paper would be practically 10 per cent. This saving, with the saving also in the cost of the jacket, might make it possible, according to estimates of publishers, to sell a $2 book for $1.60. Your writer believes that cloth bindings add 50 per cent. to the cost of a book, which would lead the book buyers to expect far more from this economy than can be possible, and they would surely be disappointed when they found so little change as the result of the experiment.

Those who are familiar with French books naturally assume that the difference in the binding makes the whole difference in the cost of the books, but it should be remembered that French books have been published at wages far below any pre-war or after-war scale in this country and that they, as well as ourselves, are facing increases from the effects of advancing wages. Besides this, in America the public library is a very much more considerable part of book consumption than it is in France or England. They certainly do not care for unbound books. It delays their being put in circulation and it costs several times as much to bind books one at a time as it does in editions. The Frenchman, if he wanted the book for his permanent collection, used to put a half morocco binding on it for as low as 50 cents, but at the present cost of leather and labor it would be five times that amount in France today.

The problem of keeping book prices down is only slightly bound up in this problem of paper covers. The principal problem is that of circulation. If the cost of setting the type and making the plates can be divided among 10,000 copies instead of 5,000 there can be far more saving made than by changing from cloth to paper covers, and it is to this problem of distribution that the publishers are turning their attention with all possible energy and with good promise of success, as the public is more interested in books today than ever before.

A number of the large publishing houses have had intimate acquaintance with the paper-covered book and have experimented with it in the past. They will be open-minded on this question today if there seems any way in which this will increase circulation and sales. Such a result will certainly not be brought about as long as there is the hope in the public's mind that a 10 per cent. saving in binding is going to bring a 50 per cent. saving in the final price.

FREDERIC G. MELCHER,
Executive Secretary, National Association of Book Publishers.
New York, Sept. 3, 1920.

Partisan Views of the War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt is quoted, in defending the Republican platform for not acclaiming the fine part played by America in the war, as follows: "Does he (Governor Cox) not know that it is not customary or in good taste to proclaim your own achievements and it was the Republican Party that won the war? There was not a male representative of the close official family of the National Democratic Administration who to the best of my knowledge was during the war within the range of a gun fired by the enemy. We can at least give them this credit. They did not use their influence to be sent where the danger was the sorest."

Possibly experience and years may modify this young man's bumptiousness. Not with the hope of making any substantial contribution to this result, but for the possible information of some who might otherwise be misled by the statement of an ex-officer supposedly well informed as to the war activities of his chief, I quote from "The American Army in the European Conflict" by Colonel de Chambrun and Captain de Marenches of the French Army, at page 130:

"Mr. Baker, Secretary of War, with a laudable zeal and a complete indifference to danger which would have done credit to a seasoned trooper, also visited the trenches where the American divisions, under heavy bombardment, were becoming expert in the use of arms. On the 19th of March he inspected both the Forty-second and the First Divisions. * * * He neglected no opportunity of seeing all that was possible, when presenting himself to the French command in the various regions visited. * * * On March 20, he inspected the Second Division near Dieue, and would have continued further had he not been obliged to leave the front on account of important business which made his presence in London necessary. He was on his way to England and was consulting with General Petain at Compiegne, when, on the morning of the 21st, the Germans launched their formidable attack against the British armies."

Lieut. Col. Roosevelt is further quoted as follows: "Does Mr. Cox pretend to forget that when this country's affairs were at their gravest the head of the Democratic Party appealed to the country to return a Democratic Congress? Can Mr. Cox call this non-partisan politics? It is partisan politics of the lowest and basest form."

The appeal to which Lieut. Col. Roosevelt refers was probably unfavorable to the Administration in its effect upon the voters. I was one of those who at the time deprecated it on this ground alone. Mr. Hoover, an admittedly partisan Republican, is on record as indorsing the President's appeal, believing that a strong indorsement of the Administration was necessary. Had Mr. Hoover's advice and the President's plea been heeded, our international policy would not have been bedevilled by partisan motives and personal spite, as it subsequently was and still is. The President justly appraised his political opponents and knew that partisan considerations would weigh more strongly with them than patriotic motives.

Partisans capable of believing that their party alone "won the war" would be open to the "reception of very questionable expedients to deprive the opposite party of any credit for winning the peace.

PALS.

She used to be a pal o' mine,
Then—
She sighed and dropped her lashes
When
I called her "little partner";
We were turning home one day
And my hand fell on her shoulder
In a friendly sort of way;
I felt her sort o' tremble
And I thought, "Oh, little gal,
Sure, and now I've got a sweetheart—
But you were a dandy pal!"
And that's a girl for you!

* * * * * * * * *

He was nothing but a pal to me,
Then—
He had to go and spoil it all,
When
He just happened, like, to touch me
And I sighed—for—then—I—knew
From the way I felt him tremble
That our "pally" days were through;
Then the next I knew—he kissed me!
And he whispered, "Little gal"—
Sure—it's nice to know he loves me—
But—he was the best old pal!
And that's a man for you!

THE HOUSING DIFFICULTY.

Investors Discouraged by Short-Sighted Laws.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I own or control a number of apartment houses in New York and have had a good deal of experience in their management. I wish to protest against the attempt to stimulate building by removing the income tax on mortgages on such property—a plan advocated by many representative real estate men.

In the first place, nearly all exemptions from taxation are unsound; it introduces confusion and unfairness into our tax system—a system which is terribly complicated and confused as it is.

In the second place, I do not believe the removal of the tax will relieve the housing shortage to any appreciable extent. That shortage is not caused by lack of mortgages, but by a lack of permanent investors, of persons who will buy a tenement after it is built and mortgaged and filled up with tenants; of persons who will buy such a house, not to resell as a speculation, but to hold as a permanent investment.

Mortgage money is available if you choose to pay for it, but when the United States Government is paying 6 per cent. and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company 7 per cent., it is clear that few persons will lend on mortgage at 5½ or 6 per cent. The high cost of the mortgage is one of the expenses of building, just like labor and material. It must be paid for by the tenants who are to use the building. If they are willing to do their share so that the operation will show a profit, the building will be erected. But if you limit the rent, if you deny to the landlord legal process to enforce his lawful contracts, if men like the Municipal Court Judges are to be allowed to control the income while the outgo remains unrestricted, if in addition the landlord is to be hounded and insulted at every turn by politicians of all kinds, especially the Judges on the bench, why should a man seeking a fair investment put his money into a tenement?

The evidence is accumulating that the great underlying cause of the housing shortage is not the high cost of labor and materials, nor the shortage of mortgage money, nor the petty tax on the income of such mortgages. You can reduce the cost of building and exempt mortgages from the income tax and still, in my opinion, there will be no building. The cause goes deeper than that. For several years the landlord has suffered from official oppression, and now it has culminated in these rent laws of last Spring. These Judges of the Municipal Courts are good enough as Judges, deciding questions of law and questions of fact under the settled rules of law, but these rent laws have given them extraordinary powers for which they are utterly unfitted. They are not as a rule men of property, nor have they practical experience in the business of managing real estate. Yet to them is given the power to fix a reasonable rent, according to their own notion, to force an undesirable tenant on a landlord for an entire year, to override a lawful contract between landlord and tenant.

Last Winter a most promising buying movement developed in such property; there was buying and selling on a large scale, and if things had been allowed to take their course it is fair to assume that there would have been a gradual improvement in building. Then these laws were passed and every possible investor was driven out of the business; and they will not return until they are allowed to manage their own affairs.

I believe all suggested remedies are quack nostrums that will do more harm than good. This applies to the exemption of mortgages from the income tax, to relieving new houses from taxation, to advancing public money to builders, and to municipal building.

You have driven private capital out of the business by oppressive laws. You can only get it back by repealing those laws and allowing men to reap the rewards of their industry, thrift and foresight. The ultimate investor is the one to seek and until you reach him all other remedies will be useless.

Municipal Ferries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer noticed in your issue of Aug. 28 your article on the troubles of Richmond Borough (Staten Island), regarding trolleys and buses, and your reference to the ferry cost serving as a highway to Manhattan Borough. It seems to me we ought to cut out comparison of revenue results of a highway between boroughs, with street transportation of passengers by trolley or bus, and make our comparison with what the other highways are returning to the city, such as tunnels and bridges. When we stop to consider that the city's investments in bridges and tunnels are producing no revenue at all, why should we expect great results from ferry highways?

The commercial interests of our city are served fully as well, and much more economically with ferries than bridges or tunnels, and yet the general idea is that ferries should be made to pay. We should stop to realize that any one of the city's bridges costs the city more money than all the ferries combined. Instead of advancing the rates on ferries, they ought to be reduced, considering the ferries simply as highways.

The writer knows that ferry rates between Manhattan and Jersey are 40% to 50% lower than the rates on the ferry highways connecting the boroughs of our great city. Ferries are the best and cheapest highway the city can have, and we ought to have more of them connecting our boroughs and at lower rates, to serve the best interest of trade and commerce by quick access to all parts of the city.

We should not lose sight of the fact that free bridges and tunnels have boosted the city's growth wonderfully, and more ferries and lower rates would add materially to shipping and commercial advantages, all of which goes to make up the wants of a great city, which is necessary to keep the lead over all others in the United States.

We need more ferry highways between the boroughs, and revenue from any one of them ought to be a second consideration.

Popes in Moving Pictures.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was much surprised to see in your issue for Aug. 30 a statement which read as follows: "For the first time in history a Pope has posed for the moving pictures." This is a great mistake. As a matter of fact, Pope Leo XIII. posed for a long series of moving pictures for the Mutoscope and Biograph Syndicate, Ltd., of London, in 1898, and on Dec. 14 of that year the moving pictures were exhibited at Carnegie Hall, New York City, in the presence of Archbishop Corrigan and other distinguished clergymen of the archdiocese of New York. They were previously shown to Mgr. Martinelli in Washington and were shown with his approval. The moving views show the Holy Father walking and riding in his carriage and sedan chair about the halls and gardens of the Vatican, and in some of these scenes the Pope is shown bestowing his blessing upon the bystanders. He is also seen walking about the garden and sitting on a rustic bench. The photographing of Leo XIII. was illustrated in The Scientific American for Jan. 14, 1899, Page 24, and is of a great deal of interest as showing the powerful motor, storage batteries, &c., which were considered necessary twenty-two years ago in taking moving pictures.

THE LEAGUE AT WORK.

An Enumeration of the Various Duties Which It Has Already Undertaken.

By RAYMOND B. FOSDICK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Harding pronounces the League of Nations "a failure and a wreck beyond the possibility of repair," and Senator Lodge characterizes it as "a battered hulk."

What are the facts?

1. The League of Nations is now composed of thirty-nine member nations, representing seven-eighths of the people of the globe. Practically all the nations of the world have joined it except the United States, Russia, Mexico and the ex-enemy countries. It seems probable that Germany and Austria will be admitted at the meeting of the Assembly of the League to be held at Geneva in November. It is significant that the Germans participated fully at the International Seamen's Conference of the League at Genoa, and not only the Germans but the Austrians, Hungarians and Bulgarians have been invited to the International Financial Conference of the League at Brussels on Sept. 24.

2. The range of the League's work may be indicated by the following schedule of its meetings. Parenthetically, it should be noted that the League's policy is to hold its meetings in as many different countries as possible. The Council of the League has held sessions in London, Paris, Rome and San Sebastian; the International Labor Conference of the League met at Washington, the International Seamen's Conference of the League at Genoa, the Jurists' Advisory Committee at The Hague, the International Health Conference at London, the International Ports and Waterways Conference at Paris, the Armaments Commission at San Sebastian. The Financial Conference will soon meet at Brussels and the Transit Conference at Barcelona.

3. The Armaments Commission of the League (provided for by Article IX. of the covenant) has been organized and is now at work on the beginnings of a plan of universal disarmament for submission to the nations of the world. Obviously, the United States is not represented on this commission.

4. A permanent Mandates Commission has been appointed, as provided for in Article XXII. of the covenant, to supervise the administration of the territories and peoples freed from German and Turkish rule. The application of this new principle is vitally important to us, not only from the standpoint of freedom of trade for American commerce, but still more from the standpoint of establishing a system of justice which will prevent backward countries from becoming the tinderbox of future wars.

5. The plans for a Permanent Court of International Justice have been completed and are ready for submission to the Assembly of the League at its meeting in November. Mr. Root served as a member of this particular subdivision of the League's activity.

6. The Council will place before the Assembly in November the proposal for a joint committee to work out the plans and principles of economic blockade as the strongest guarantee of world peace and the greatest restraint on a bandit nation that the countries of the world have ever agreed to put into effect. Unless the United States is a member of the League it cannot join in forging this powerful weapon.

7. The Financial Conference called by the League of Nations for the last of this month is the most important international gathering since the Conference of Versailles. The League has brought together a mass of information on world economic matters such as has never been available before, covering such subjects as international finance, credits, currency, exchange, &c. At this conference, which touches the interest and well-being of every nation of the world, the United States will not be officially represented.

8. Single-handed in Poland, with funds provided by its members, the League is fighting the typhus epidemic, doing its best to keep back from the rest of the world the flood of this fearful scourge. The estimated cost of this work is $15,000,000. The United States has no part in the financing.

9. The League is undertaking the task of repatriating the half million prisoners of war—Russians, Germans, Poles, Hungarians, Rumanians, &c.—who, due to lack of transit facilities, are still retained in enemy countries. It is estimated that 100,000 of these men will be returned to their homes before Christmas.

10. The League has established an International Health Office, a bureau to fight the international exploitation of opium and other drugs, and a division to suppress the international trade in women and girls.

These points represent the main activities of the League in the seven months of its existence. It is far from "wrecked." It is going ahead most courageously, rapidly organizing its work, regardless of the United States. We cannot destroy it, nor can we substitute another league in its place. Indeed, the latter contention is the sheerest absurdity. We have only two choices—to stay outside of a community of nations organized for co-operation and peace and thereby lose our whole place in the world, to say nothing of our own soul as a nation, or to come into the League (with reservations, if we think necessary) and put our shoulder to the wheel in all those great movements for which American foreign policy has always stood.

PRIDE IN THE WAR.

Republican Platform Gave Praise to Soldiers and Sailors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In an editorial in THE TIMES of Sept. 1 citation is made, as follows, of Governor Cox's charge that the Republican platform has "not a line in it" that "breathes an emotion of pride" in what this country did to win the war. "In fact, if a man from Mars were to depend upon the Republican platform * * * he would not find a syllable telling him that the war had been won."

Waiving any question as to the weight or intent of Governor Cox's fine indignation, it seems proper to insist, in the interest of textual accuracy, that the Republican platform, while perhaps not "breathing an emotion of pride" as to the part that our fighting men played in the war, nevertheless undertakes to appraise their services in explicit terms. The references in the platform are as follows:

"ARMY AND NAVY.

"We feel the deepest pride in the fine courage, the resolute endurance, the gallant spirit of the officers and men of our army and navy in the World War. They were in all ways worthy of the best traditions of the nation's defenders, and we pledge ourselves to proper maintenance of the military and naval establishments upon which our national security and dignity depend."

"THE SERVICE MEN.

"We hold in imperishable remembrance the valor and the patriotism of the soldiers and sailors of America who fought in the great war for human liberty, and we pledge ourselves to discharge to the fullest the obligations which a grateful nation justly should fulfill, in appreciation of the services rendered by its defenders on sea and on land."

After-Vacation Ills.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice that the city has erected impromptu shower baths at the different fire houses, so that the poor children of New York may get cool and possibly clean, but, like so many charitable innovations, this shower-bath idea, because it was not given sufficient thought, has brought about as much evil as it has good.

The majority of the children who use these baths stand under them in their regular wearing apparel and then stand about for hours afterward in their wet clothes, which is bound to result immediately or in the future in such affections as rheumatism, neuralgia, neuritis, &c.

This is also true with older folks, who go in bathing and then lie around on the beach in their wet bathing suits. It is no wonder that people have aches and pains on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, when all day Sunday they repeatedly compel their bodies to use up vital energy and heat to dry off a wet bathing suit. There is only one way to go into the water for health, and that is to swim or bathe for a reasonable length of time and then make a dash for the bath house and into dry clothes. The time to loll around on the beach is before one goes into the water.

People go off on expensive week-end and vacation trips, telling themselves that it is vitally essential to their good health and working efficiency that they should, and yet, almost invariably, when they indulge in this recreation their one thought is of having fun, working efficiency being entirely neglected.

The First Secretary.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although THE NEW YORK TIMES, unlike certain newspapers I have in mind, does not often make mistakes in its statement of facts, it was guilty of a lapse in today's issue. In the editorial on the late James Wilson, the statement is made that Rusk was the first Secretary of Agriculture. This is not correct. The first Secretary of Agriculture was Norman J. Coleman of Missouri. The Department of Agriculture was created by an act of Congress in February, 1889, near the end of the first Administration of President Cleveland, who thereupon appointed Coleman, who had been Commissioner of Agriculture, to be the first Secretary of the new department. He held office for only a few days, as when Harrison became President, on March 4, 1889, Rusk was appointed Secretary of Agriculture, and thus became the second, not the first, incumbent of the office.

WHAT SOME SOLDIERS SAY.

Interviews Before and After the War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Three years ago I spent the Summer in the "Heart of the Blue Ridge." It is in one of those few counties in North Carolina by inheritance and principle consistently Republican; where the portraits of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt hang upon the walls of more than half of the homes of an honest, hard-working and patriotic people.

Early in the Summer of that year I stood by the railway station and watched a company of these mountaineers entrain for the World War. I had no personal acquaintance with any of those young men responding to the first call of their country; with the villagers I marched to the station to pay my respects to American manhood. No man asked if they were Republicans or Democrats; they were Americans.

On that occasion to which I have referred my attention was attracted to one of those soldiers, a private in the ranks. While waiting for the train he stood a little apart from his comrades, holding in his arms a babe of perhaps twelve months. Close by his side a plainly clad young matron pressed near, her white face turned up to his. The coming train whistled in the distance and as her arms slipped around his neck I heard her smothered sob:

"Why do you leave us, Jim?"

With a tender look he held the babe at arm's length, and as the child, unmindful of what was happening, smiled down to him he placed him in his mother's arms.

"Martha," said he, the intensity of his purpose steeling the little woman's nerves to meet her ordeal, "we—you and I—are making this sacrifice that he may not make it later."

When he had gone I inquired who the soldier was; and during these three years the memory of that scene has been very clear. Not until a few days ago, when I returned, did I know whether Jim had come back or whether he slept under the poppies in France. But Jim is home. I have just returned from a visit to him, deep back in the mountains and over rough roads; but I wanted to express my gratitude for the sacrifice which I was not permitted to make.

While fighting on the fields of France that his son might not have to fight, the world had gone dark to him; he had given the sight of both eyes. I found him in front of his humble cottage seated under a spreading sugar maple weaving a new seat into an old chair (an industry to which he has turned to supplement the income from a small orchard and corn patches, tended by the wife who had shared his sacrifice). Like all mountaineers, he received me cordially.

But Jim's heart is breaking. It is breaking over the ingratitude of men of whom he expected other things. At his invitation I followed as he was led by the hand of his little son. On the plain board walls of the room we entered there was a group of lithographed faces the centre of which was Woodrow Wilson. The others, showing the yellow of more years, were Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley, William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt. He explained that they had recently been regrouped. This is what Jim and the wife who shared his sacrifice asked:

"Why did the Senate trifle with us? Why did the Chicago Convention betray us? Why does Harding throw back in our faces the sacrifice we made?"

I wish Senator Lodge, who, because of a personal hate to the man Wilson, led the fight in the Senate that betrayed these boys, their wives and sons, had been there; that Root, who at the dictation of Hiram Johnson wrote that two-faced League plank in the Republican platform to fool them, could have been with me. I wish Lodge, Smoot, Watson, Crane, Hemingway and George Harvey—I say I wish this group of bosses, the "immortal half dozen" who, by the grace of big Boss Penrose, in Colonel Harvey's room in the Blackstone Hotel, dictated the Republican candidate, could have been with me at the humble home of Jim that day. I wish Senator Harding could have been there.

MISS ADAMS TO WED LEIGHTON LOBDELL

BROWN-BEEBE BETROTHAL

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dean Adams of 455 Madison Avenue and Rumson, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Adams, to Leighton Lobdell, son of the late Rev. Dr. Francis Lobdell of Trinity Church, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Lobdell, who is a graduate of Yale University, class of '07, and of the New York Law School, class of '09, was admitted to the bar in 1910. He saw service on the Mexican border in 1916, and in 1918 served overseas, where he remained for fifteen months as Lieutenant in the 106th and 19th Regiments of the Field Artillery. He resides with his brother-in-law, Justice Vernon M. Davis of the New York Supreme Court, at 6 East Ninety-fourth Street, and is practicing law at 111 Broadway. He is a member of the Yale Club.

Beebe-Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Brown of Dana Place, Englewood, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Pingree Brown, to Dwight Sawyer Beebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford D. Beebe of Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Beebe is a graduate of Yale, class of '14. He served overseas during the war as a Captain.

Hole-Witherspoon.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Witherspoon of this city has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Isabel Witherspoon, to Richard Hole, nephew of the late Dean Hole of Rochester Cathedral, England. Miss Witherspoon is the great-great-granddaughter of John Witherspoon, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and sixth President of Princeton University. She is also a great-granddaughter of General Charles Gratiot of St. Louis, whose daughter, Miss Julie Gratiot, married the Duc de Montmorency. Her father was the late Rev. Dr. Charles Sumner Witherspoon, the missionary and preacher.

Mrs. Witherspoon, mother of the bride-elect, is the author of several studies on the cathedrals of the old world, the art of glass painting and social aspects of the French Revolution. Miss Witherspoon was engaged in Red Cross work during the war. Mr. Hole is in the coffee importing business in this city. He is a member of Squadron A. The marriage is to take place late in October.

Murray-Griggs.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Fuller Griggs of 154 East Seventieth Street and Ardsley-on-Hudson for the wedding of their only daughter, Miss Dorothy Maitland Lee Griggs, to Francis King Murray, son of Professor and Mrs. Murray of Palo Alto, Cal. The ceremony will take place on Sept. 18 in the Episcopal Church of St. Barnabas at Irvington. A reception will follow at Barberries, the country home of the bride-elect in Ardsley-on-Hudson.

Miss Griggs attended Bryn Mawr College, but left there when war was declared to serve as a nurse. She has not made her début. Mr. Murray left Leland Stanford University and served with the American forces overseas. Miss Griggs's mother was the former Carolyle Lee of the family who for several generations had their home at Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue and also an old homestead in Hartford, Conn.

Leff—Wiesen.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Wiesen of 640 Riverside Drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian Wiesen, to Phillip Leff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Leff of Brooklyn. Mr. Leff is a member of the firm of the National Spinning Company of Brooklyn.

Weinberg-Livingston.

Miss Helen Livingston, daughter of Benjamin Livingston of 136 East Eightieth Street, and Sidney James Weinberg of Brooklyn, were married yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's father in Far Rockaway, L. I. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. I. Goldfarb of Brooklyn, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the couple owing to the recent death of the bride's mother. The bride was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Weinberg left by motor for a trip through the New England States. Upon their return they will reside at Woodmere, L. I., where they have taken a cottage. Mr. Weinberg is a graduate of Columbia University and is a banker. He is a member of the City Athletic, Woodmere Country, Moriches Yacht, Union League and Bankers Clubs.

Miss Jones Wed to Ensign Main.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Jones and Ensign Artyn L. Main, U. S. N., took place on Aug. 25 in Pasadena, Cal., according to word received here last night.

Mrs. Main is the daughter of the late Dr. George Heber Jones and Mrs. Jones, who for twenty-two years were among the Pioneer Methodist Episcopal missionaries to Korea. Mrs. Main was born in Chemulpo, Korea. For nine years preceding his death, Dr. Jones was one of the associate secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mrs. Jones is now a hostess of the board.

Ensign Main is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Main, Methodist Episcopal missionaries in Shanghai, China. He was graduated from Annapolis last June and is stationed at San Diego, Cal.

LUNCHEON TO MISS MILLS.

Suffrage Leaders Unite to Honor Democratic Candidate.

Pioneers of the woman suffrage movement, regardless of present political affiliations, will unite to give a luncheon for Miss Harriet May Mills of Syracuse, Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, at the Hotel Pennsylvania next Thursday. Miss Mills was formerly President of the New York State Woman Suffrage Association and has been associated with Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, and other suffrage leaders since the days when woman suffrage was regarded as a dream unlikely of fulfillment.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, President of the Woman's City Club and Chairman of the New York City League of Woman Voters, will preside. The speakers will include Mrs. Belle de Riviera, founder and honorary President of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Henry Villard, former President of the William Lloyd Garrison Equal Suffrage League; Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel and Miss Portia Willis. About forty of the best known suffrage leaders in the city are expected to be present.

Slight Quake at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 3.—A light earthquake shock was felt in outlying parts of the city early today. No damage was reported.

SOCIAL NOTES

POND BUREAU BANKRUPT.

Lyceum Lists a $50,000 Suit Against Maeterlinck as an Asset.

A petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court in Newark yesterday by the Pond Lyceum Bureau, the director of which was James B. Pond, son of the late Major J. B. Pond, who conducted the country-wide lecture tours of Henry Ward Beecher, Mark Twain and many other famous lecturers and writers. The office of the bureau is in this city, but the petition was filed in Newark because Mr. Pond now lives in Jersey City.

As one of the assets of the firm the papers in the case mention a $50,000 suit now pending in the Supreme Court here against Maurice Maeterlinck, the Belgian poet, who was brought to this country last Spring for a lecture tour. The tour failed because of the inability of the poet to deliver his lecture in English, and Mr. Pond sued, alleging that it was implied in the contract that the lecture should be given in the language in general use in this country.

Other assets total $22,044.54 and the liabilities are given as $60,259.20.

CHILDWRITER STIRS LONDON

Opal Whiteley's Diary Attracts Much Attention from Reviewers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—Much attention has been attracted here by the publication of "The Diary of Opal Whiteley," with an introduction by Viscount Grey of Falloden.

The Chronicle reviewer declares the story of the six-year-old authoress "would have formed a fit subject for the author 'The Luck of Roaring Camp,'" and goes on:

"Opal Whiteley is in no sense a second Daisy Ashford. Her work, produced in the vast silences and loneliness of lumber camps, is full of the wonder and beauty of the world as seen by child eyes and interpreted by a child heart."

HENRY W. GRINNELL DEAD.

Fighter with Farragut Became an Admiral in the Japanese Navy.

Henry Walton Grinnell, a naval veteran of the civil and Spanish wars, who became an admiral in the Imperial Japanese Navy, died Thursday in St. Augustine, Fla.

He was 84 years old and fought with Farragut at New Orleans. He left the navy as a Lieutenant at the close of the civil war and went to Japan, serving throughout the Chino-Japanese war. He was made a Rear Admiral of the new Japanese navy for his part in its quick growth to sea power. He served as a Lieutenant on the United States battleship Iowa in the Spanish-American War.

Admiral Grinnell's father was Moses Grinnell of New York, who financed several Arctic expeditions and for whom Grinnell Land in the Arctic was named.

ARMENIA SAVED BY AMERICAN AID

PORT AND A LOAN NEEDED

Outlook Is Hopeless He Says Unless the Powers Accord Financial Support.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—"Without America there would be no Armenian problem any more. Armenian territory would remain, but the Armenian people would have ceased to exist. The lives literally of the whole nation have been saved by America."

This statement, made by one who knows Armenia today and has known it during the last eighteen months, gives the bare, unvarnished truth regarding the disinterested work of national salvage and reconstruction in the face of appalling difficulties that deserves a place on the proudest pages of America's history. For the work has been done almost entirely by Americans, and to America goes the credit for its success.

In the Summer of 1919, when the Allied Supreme Peace Council was still trying to grope a laborious way toward the solution of the Armenian problem, the news reached Paris that the people of the unhappy country were dying like flies of sheer starvation. There was but one force in Europe that could grapple with the situation—Herbert Hoover's relief organization, that wonderful body which maintained its efficiency in the midst of misery and chaos.

Colonel Haskell's "Mandate."

One of Mr. Hoover's collaborators, Colonel Haskell, was appointed Allied High Commissioner for Armenia and director of the relief fund and of other welfare organizations. While America hesitated and the rest of the great powers curtly refused to accept the barren mandate for Armenia, it was given—virtually—to Colonel Haskell. His appointment as Commissioner vested in his sole person the weight and authority of America, France, Great Britain and Italy; but in a barbarous country, surrounded by hereditary enemies and ravaged by savage brigands, he had no army to support him, no warships to enforce his demands. A little band of Americans—under 200 in all—and a few other Allies were his devoted helpers.

Now, after eighteen months, Colonel Haskell's work is done. He has just returned to Paris on his way home and has resigned his post as Commissioner and Director of Relief Funds. The Armenian people are saved, the country is peaceful and an orderly harvest has been reaped and garnered. The country has sufficient food for eight or nine months at least. The people have been clothed, nourished and freed from disease. It is hard to convey in a short dispatch one hundredth part of what this means and how it was accomplished. As Colonel Haskell tells it, simply, clearly and without thought of self, one gets only glimpses of the dangers and difficulties, desperate anxieties and heart-breaking delays.

Horrors Met in Early Work.

"When we first reached Armenia," he said, "things were awful. In the first compound I visited at Erivan there were corpses lying everywhere among the living, who had neither strength nor interest to bury them. There were women and children among them, too—especially children. The poor little creatures were sitting in rows when we found them, two hundred or so in a space not much more than twenty yards square, beside a filthy pool of water, which was all they had to drink—or eat. There was no trouble about keeping them quiet, as they were all too weak to move.

"I can't tell you their utter misery and squalor. That was just starvation; but there was disease, too, everywhere—cholera, typhus, smallpox and typhoid. Erivan was typical of the whole country. The 1,500,000 of the Armenian population that had survived the war was perishing headlong en bloc.

Armenia's Neighbors Indifferent.

"You must consider the situation of Armenia. It had no port and lay surrounded by enemies, cut off from all communication with the outer world. Southeast and southwest were the Turkish Nationalists under Mustapha Kemal—no hope in that quarter. Northeast were the Tartars of Azerbaijan, northwest the Georgians. Neither cared a rap if the Armenians lived or died. They had their own troubles, their own disease and starvation, to say nothing of Bolshevism and Russian chaos.

"Armenia is poor, unproductive farm and pasture land, without coal, oil, timber or mineral wealth. Even the racial lines of cleavage are not clearly defined, let alone natural boundaries. Armenian and Tartar communities are mixed up like Mosaics in a pavement. When one is starving the first instinct is to raid his starving neighbor. The only railroad of Armenia runs through Georgia to the sea. Do you think the Georgians were eager to see 100,000 tons of flour and clothing and other stores in proportion pass through their borders, where it was needed hardly less urgently, for the benefit of the despised Armenians?

"Of course they had to let it pass and we made them give up locomotives and rolling stock—the Armenians had neither. We got wood from them and oil fuel from Azerbaijan. You see, we could bring pressure upon both, as we were helping them, too, to a limited extent, and we made them understand that they had got to be good. It was hard work, but interesting.

"So we fed the Armenians and clothed them and got them disinfected. We vaccinated nearly the whole population against smallpox and cholera and typhoid, and got them free of typhus lice. They didn't like it; but 'no vaccination and no baths, no food.' We gave them seed and helped them plant their harvest and reap it. We started local industries—cloth weaving and so on—and made them work. They came to realize that to eat they must work and stop quarrelling. Now, at least they are on their legs again physically, and the existing relief organizations are capable of handling the proposition. There is plenty still to do—the one item alone of feeding 25,000 orphans, utterly destitute, to say nothing of education and medical work.

"The future of the country depends upon political developments. While Armenia is temporarily safe from the food and health point of view, her financial, economic and political outlook is hopeless unless the powers assist her and provide a basis upon which she can become self-sustaining and really independent of her neighbors."

Starving People Sold Flour.

Thus the Colonel tells the simple story of one of the noblest efforts of philanthropy on record. The relief work was done in the scorching heat of the Armenian Summer and in the Winter, when the wind blew in zero cold over the Armenian uplands, among a people so stricken by hunger, disease and suffering as to have lost all energy, all initiative and all hope. The Americans tried distributing raw flour. They were forced to give bread instead, for the starving people sold the flour rather than bake it. When they gave clothes they were forced to dress the people and burn their old rags before their eyes, else the new clothes were sold instead of worn.

Real money there was none. Armenian paper rubles were worth 3,000 to the dollar. Flour was the currency; flour was king. Were transport facilities and fuel wanted from Armenia's neighbors? They were paid with a credit of flour. In the land where brigandage is an honored profession, not one of 600 oxloads of flour was lost in transit through Georgia. The Georgians had learned that the Americans did not argue or make a fuss about losses, but each lost truck or each lost sack was simply and automatically deducted from the balance to their credit. Theft didn't pay, so it ceased.

The success in dealing with every one—Armenians, Tartars, Georgians and Bolsheviki—was due to their knowledge that the Americans were not working for profit, and that they gave every one fair treatment, national or individual. They planned no politics and allowed no graft, great or small. Yet the Premier of Georgia came 500 miles and brought his whole Cabinet when Colonel Haskell asked for a conference; and when it was decided that an Armenian Ministry of Supplies was unnecessary, the Ministry vanished overnight.

Through fair dealing and smiling self-confidence it resulted that stores went untouched through a country where a man's life was worth far less than his boots. At the beginning robbery was so prevalent that men hung beneath the trucks in transit and prodded bayonets through the floors to collect the precious flour as it trickled down from the pierced sacks. At the end American foods were sacred. This is a wonderful achievement built on faith and honesty in a land of whips and bayonets.

Massacres Virtually at an End.

When asked for his opinion of the political situation in Armenia and neighboring countries, Colonel Haskell disclaimed the gift of phophecy. For the time being, at least, Mustapha Kemal and his Turks are too busy with the Greeks to trouble Armenia much. Indeed, recent reports of massacres, Colonel Haskell says, have been exaggerated. There has been little to complain of in this respect during the period of American relief work. Azerbaijan is virtually under Bolshevist rule and may be considered part of Soviet Russia. Georgia is independent and has a good little army with strong nationalist feeling. She has just made peace with the Reds and has a Bolshevist mission at Tiflis, the capital. It seems doubtful whether the new States could withstand Bolshevist pressure if the Reds wanted to extend their boundaries.

If Armenia could have a port, say Trebizond, and a loan to help her finances, which are hopeless, she might have a chance of independent existence. Her people are peaceful and hard-working. Though nine-tenths of the population is agriculaural, the Armenians are born traders, and their industry would aid in developing the commerce of their neighbors.

In the meantime the country is being helped by the Near East Relief, Incorporated, of New York. To 25,000 orphans that organization is the sole hope, and the rest of the population looks to it for medical aid, education and moral support. America may have refused the Armenian mandate, but Armenia has perfect confidence in America.

Charles Waldo
HASKINS INSTITUTE
Founded by
Elijah W. Sells

IN PREPARATION FOR THE PROFESSION OF ACCOUNTANCY

INTELLIGENT observers of the business world agree that the profession of Accountancy offers an exceptional opportunity to young men of ambition, energy and integrity.

In every phase of business and governmental administration the professional accountant is now needed as never before. His ability to make audits and examinations, conduct investigations, establish financial and cost systems, serve in a consulting capacity and give court testimony makes him an indispensable factor in modern business.

Charles Waldo Haskins Institute, founded by Elijah W. Sells, one of America's foremost Certified Public Accountants, perpetuates the name of one of the great pioneers of commercial education in the United States. It specializes in training young men, through Junior Preparatory, Senior Preparatory and Professional Courses, for the practice of Accountancy, which Charles Waldo Haskins helped so effectively to make a dignified and respected profession.

The School opens September 15th. Day and evening sessions will be offered throughout the year. Instruction by an exceptionally able corps of teachers will be under the general direction of Professor John R. Wildman, of the firm of Haskins & Sells, Certified Public Accountants.

GIANTS CELEBRATE RETURN BY WINNING

Boston Athletes Give Rudolph Wretched Support—Doyle Hurts Leg in Sliding.

The Giants perked up and asserted themselves upon their return to the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and beat the Boston Braves, 7 to 2. Mammouth Fred Toney displayed remarkable versatility during the matinee. He pitched and waved his bat dangerously, to say nothing of galloping wildly on the bases. Fred is the Jumbo of the national game and his most distinguished accomplishment yesterday was making two bases on a home run. This doesn't sound like a difficult thing to do but when one considers Fred's awe-inspiring wheelbase and enormous tonnage, his feat looms up as one of the big moments of the season.

It was in the sixth that Toney displayed undreamed of talents. He walloped Dick Rudolph for a tremendous slam which sailed out to deep left. Leslie Mann ran back to the fence but didn't catch up with the ball. Of the 15,000 spectators at the game, the most surprised citizen was Toney. As he reached first base he was still so astounded that he forgot to touch the bag. He was on his way to second when he recalled his oversight and ran back to first, placed his Cinderella on the hassock and then turned and beat it for second. He arrived safely before the ball, tired but happy.

If either George Burns or Ross Young had made a hit like that he would have been around the circuit, back to the bench and would have had three or four cups of water in the time it took Toney to reach second. Just to show that this was no accident, Toney slammed a single to right in the eighth.

The Braves hit Toney just about as hard as the Giants slammed Rudolph, but Dick received atrocious support. If Dick refused to speak to some of his clubmates for the rest of the season, it would serve them right. They treated Rudolph as if he was a step-child. He should see his lawyer and sue Mann, Cruise and Boeckel for the wretched manner in which they used him. The Braves were creeping up on the Giants and were within a run of tieing the score when Rudolph's support went to pieces in the sixth, and aided by Fred Toney's bat, shoved four runs over for New York and clinched the contest for the home lads.

Giants Get Away in Lead.

The Giants took the jump at the start. Burns walked and went to third on Bancroft's single to right. Young singled to right also and scored Burns. Cruise let the single drift through him and Bancroft romped home while Young threw out his anchor at third. Ford tossed Frisch out at first. Then the Giants' chances for the time being were smothered by the long drawn out double play. Kelly rolled to Maranville and Young was run down between third and the pate, and when Kelly tried to sneak into third, he was doubled up as he was riding in on his right hip.

In the second inning, after Spencer fanned, Larry Doyle singled to centre and went to second on Snyder's single to left. Toney walked, and jammed the bases. Burns lifted a sacrifice fly to Mann and Doyle scored. He slid into the plate and injured his leg. After Larry limped to the bench, he found that the leg was wrenched so badly that he had to go to the clubhouse. Grimes, a recruit from the Eastern League, took Larry's place at second. Bancroft ended the inning when he died at first.

The Braves got very gay with Toney in the sixth and it loked rather bad for Jumbo. Eddie Eayrs, who must be a Welshman, judging from the spelling of his name, singled to right and went to third when Boeckel singled to centre. After Mann fanned, Cruise walked and filled the bases. Holke slammed a single to centre, scoring Eayres, and when Spencer fumbled the ball Boeckel also crossed the plate.

When Maranville came to the bat, Toney and Bancroft had a conference about what they should do with the Rabbit. Maranville was highly flattered that his presence should cause so much attention and called the attention of the multitude to the fact that Big Fred was afraid of the Rabbit's bat. Whatever Toney and Banny decided to do with Rabbit, it was the right thing, for he hit into a double play and brought the Braves' uprising to a close.

Braves' Defense Goes to Pieces.

It was in the Giants' half of this same inning that the Boston defense developed a lot of holes and this, together with some lusty hits, gave the New Yorkers the game. Spencer fanned for a starter and Grimes got as far as second when Boeckel made a wild throw to first after gathering the recruit's grasser. Snyder fanned, and Rudolph sighed with relief, for Toney was up and looked like easy picking.

Toney leaned every ounce of his tonnage against the ball and it screamed its way between center and left. Mann raced after it, but the ball hit the fence. Grimes crossed the plate and Fred waddled down to first, but he was looking to see where the ball went and didn't see the base. His attention was called to the fact and he interrupted his flight to second to come back and touch first. Then he started up the engine again and went down to second. Counting the trip back to first and retracing his steps to second Fred really covered three bases.

Burns lifted an easy fly to Mann, who stood there with nothing to do but let the ball drop into his paws. He muffed it and Toney scored. Rudolph tore his hair in despair because if Mann hadn't had buttered fingers, the side would have been retired. Bancroft then came along with a three-base crack to left and Burns tallied.

Young slapped a bouncer to the infield, the ball hopping off Rudolph's upraised hand to Ford, but by the time the ball was through bouncing Young was at first and Banny was over the plate. Ford tossed Frisch out at first to close the inning.

The Giants' defensive play sparkled with brilliancy yesterday. They ripped off five double plays, every one of which killed budding Boston chances. Frisch, Bancroft and Kelly were alert and sprightly and gave Toney support which was nothing short of luxurious.

Curves and Bingles

As all of the leading three clubs won yesterday in the National League, the standing for one day at least is undisturbed.

George Kelly is playing in a manner which will make his Uncle Bill Lange proud of him. George not only plays ball correctly but speaks it correctly. Yesterday when he went after Holke's fly in the fourth, he yelled, "I have it."

Walton Cruise made the prize catch of the matinee when he ran in half a mile and with one hand nipped Spencer's low drive off the top of the clover in the seventh.

Before the regular scheduled game with the Phillies is played this afternoon, the Giants and Phils will play off the last few [illegible] of the game which [illegible] July 5. The game will start where the protest was made in the seventh, with two gone, and the Giants leading, 6 to 0.

A player with a name which is famous in Boston was sent in as a pinch hitter in the ninth. He hit into a double play and his name is John L. Sullivan.

There was a genuine expression of regret throughout the stands when Larry Doyle was injured in the second inning. Larry's wonderful work this season has been the surpise of the Giants' pennant fight.

Jesse Burkett, who was a .400 hitter in his day, was a spectator at yesterday's game and he turned his head away at the sight of that Boston outfield trying to play ball.

YANKEES BEAT SOX AND MOVE UPWARD

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—The Yankees profited by their second tussle of the series with the Red Sox to the extent of a rise in status, for their victory here today, by the score of 5 to 3, enabled them to squeeze past the White Sox and plant their noses right against the necks of the league-leading Indians. All three teams could sleep tonight under a single blanket, if they were on good enough terms, for five tiny points form the margin between Cleveland in first place and Chicago in third position.

As for the Yanks, they looked this afternoon as if they were much refreshed by the nice nap they took during the opening game on Thursday. They were on the alert every minute and acted as if some one had told them all about the pennant that is at stake and the world's series coin to be divided later. "What, what!" they appeared to be saying, "Pennant? World's series money? Let us jolly well go and get them."

At any rate, they zipped along throughout the conflict at high speed and came through in the ninth inning with the rally that cracked a tie and landed them on the winner's end. They had a regular battle on their hands, for the Red Sox were going at a nice gait back of Waite Hoyt and put together enough runs off Quinn's delivery in the sixth and seventh to blot out a three-run lead accumulated in the second and third by the visitors. Mays finished the game, going in in the eighth, and gets credit for the victory. Carl was greeted with a few tentative "boos," but they were drowned in a chorus of applause from the stands.

Among those observed on the firing line today was one Ruth, commonly called Babe, a husky and promising child. It is understood that Babe has almost entirely recovered from the dire effects of his battle with a Long Island mosquito, in the course of which he was bitten on the wrist. He seems to feel grieved over his defeat by the vicious insect and wants a return bout. He feels sure he would know the animal again, because it wore goggles and its proboscis was over two feet long. Babe contributed only a single to day, but it was a very timely one.

A multitude of fans turned out to watch the proceedings, for the warm fight for the American League pennant has aroused keen interest in the Hub.

Babe Ruth Is Welcomed.

The only memorable episode of the initial inning was that after Peck had flied to Menosky and Hendryx had dashed in to make a flashy running catch of Pipp's short fly, a stalwart form advanced from the Yankee dugout and was received with a genuine Boston outburst of applause, which is achieved by tapping the kneecaps with the finger tips heartily, but not harshly. Of course, there were some residents of the South End present and they almost wrecked the genteel demonstration by roaring a welcome to Babe Ruth. The Babe, a one-time resident of the Hub, looked pained at the uncouth noise. He swung at one of Hoyt's offerings without avail and then became the beneficiary of a free pass on four wide ones. He stole second, but was stranded there, as Derrill Pratt was called out on strikes. The Braves passed away in rapid sequence in their half.

In the second the Yankees got sufficiently busy to lay up a brace of runs. After Connolly had called a third strike on Lewis, Bodie doubled to left. Ward walked. Ruel singled to right, scoring Bodie. Ward went to third and scored while Scott was running down Ruel, who over-ran first base and was nipped on Hooper's fast peg to McInnis, Scott making the play on the line, but not before Ward counted. Quinn fanned.

The Red Sox also got a single and a double in their portion of the second, but failed to make them count on the scoreboard. Hendryx singled between Ward and Peck. McInnis doubled to the left field banking, where Lewis just failed to make a jumping one-handed catch. Schang fanned. Scott flied to Bodie behind second base. Brady walked, filling the bases. Hoyt fanned.

In the third the justly renowned Babe contributed his bit toward putting the game on ice. Peckinpaugh reached second on Menosky's muff. Pipp sacrificed, Hoyt to McInnis. Ruth singled to right, scoring Peck, but was nailed trying for second, Hooper to Brady. Brady tossed out Pratt.

Hendryx Makes Another Gem.

The fourth inning witnessed another exhibition of brazen daylight robbery on the part of Tim Hendryx, who converted Lewis's three-base blow to centre into an out by another dazzling catch while at Man o' War speed. Bodie's liner was blocked by Hoyt and Scott made a fast play for the out at first. Scott also attended to Ward's grounder.

The fifth was devoid of episodes worth chronicling save the fact that Aaron Ward made a neat play to get Vitt at first for the third out after Hooper had singled. Pipp opened the sixth with a single to right, but Ruth hit into a double play and Vitt threw out Pratt.

It was in the latter half of this sixth chukker that the Red Sox got restless and peevish and broke out into a mutiny that brought them right up to the Yankees's heels. At the outset of the inning Menosky singled to centre. Hendryx doubled to the left-field fence, scoring Menosky. McInnis hit to centre and was held to a single by Bodie's jumping stop, Hendryx holding third. Schang was out, Quinn to Pipp, McInnis taking second. With men on third and second, Scott was passed purposely, filling the bases. Karr went to bat for Brady and flied to Peck, Foster batted for Hoyt and got a pass, Hendryx being forced in for a run. Hooper fouled to Ward.

Pair of Singles Wasted.

In the first half of the seventh Ward and Ruel lined out singles with two gone, and the former got around to third, but Quinn was called out on strikes. Then the Red Sox waded in with their bats bright and shining and deliberately tied the score. They're nice-looking fellows, too. It's odd how one can be mistaken in people!

Vitt was guilty of beginning it with a single to centre. Quinn threw out Menoskey. Hendryx singled to centre, scoring Vitt, but Tim was out trying for second, Bodie to Ruel to Pratt. McInnis's high liner was beautifully speared by Peck.

The eighth passed without incident, and then came the session in which the Yanks felt the urge. They knew they wouldn't dare to write home about the game and it wouldn't do for a film drama unless they won it in the ninth. So they did it.

Pratt, the first man up, grounded to Foster and died at first. Lewis flied to Menosky. Bodie's double hit the left field fence. Ward walked. Meusel batted in place of Ruel. He hit a short fly to left centre, Hooper failing to reach the ball. The hit went for a double and both Bodie and Ward scored. Mays fanned.

COBB'S HIT IN NINTH SCORES ONLY RUN

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3.—Detroit defeated Cleveland in the Indians' first game at home since Aug. 15 by a score of 1 to 0, Leonard being very effective with men on the bases. Detroit made the only run of the game in the ninth on Young's infield hit, on which Wambsganss made a wild throw to first, and Cobb's single to right field. Short memorial exercises in respect to Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop who died after being hit by a pitched ball in New York on Aug. 16, were held prior to the game.

Knowlton Weakens in Fifth and Athletics Are Beaten, 14 to 5.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3. — After holding Washington to three scattered singles in the first four innings of today's game, Knowlton, a recruit pitcher for the Philadelphia Americans, weakened in the fifth inning, Washington winning, 14 to 5. Up to the fifth Philadelphia looked like the winner, hitting three home runs into the left field bleachers off Shaw.

BROWNS TROUNCE CHICAGO.

White Sox Drop to Third Place After Losing Another, 2 to 1.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Smith's double following infield singles by Jacobsen and Williams gave St. Louis a 2 to 1 victory over Chicago today. Chicago was saved from a shutout when Strunk hit a homer after two were out in the eighth inning. As a result of today's defeat and a victory for New York over Boston the locals dropped to third place, five points behind the Clevelands.

PHILS BAFFLED BY BURLEIGH GRIMES

Brooklyn Pitcher Allows Only Four Hits and Robins Are Easy Winners, 6 to 0.

The Dodgers maintained their position on the heels of the Reds through an impressive victory over Philadelphia yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field by a score of 6 to 0. Those Dodgers seem to think that they have a chance to cop the bunting. They play like it anyway. They acted yesterday like money players, as if spurred on by some big incentive. It was gingery ball they played, and gingery ball is what is needed to get the big October coin.

Little things like transit strikes can't keep the Brooklyn fans from seeing the Robins play. A close count yesterday showed that some 6,000 of the faithful had braved the danger and had come out to welcome the Dodgers on their return from the West.

Burleigh Grimes was the big gun yesterday, and Burleigh pitched a classic of a game. He had everything. He allowed four hits, and four hits, according to ordinary standards, do not constitute a generous allowance. Burleigh also saw to it that the hits were not placed in conjunction so that they could do any harm in producing runs. It needed the Burns and several other detective agencies to find where Burleigh's curves were going to break. They always broke in just the sort of way to prevent any proper analysis by the batter. If he looked for a high one inside, it was a curve that broke just to the far corner of the plate, and vice versa.

Anyway you look into the matter, those Brooklynites are dangerous. They've got their eye on that old N. L. rag and they—or some of them, anyway—have to buy a lot of coal next Winter. And what it amounts to is that, in order to be able to do it, what with the H. C. L. and everything, it just naturally means that they must win the old pennant. There's no other way to meet expenses.

Wheat and Olson Shine.

Outside of Burleigh Grimes, Zack Wheat came near to being the prize pupil of Uncle Robbie. Zack had a poor day at bat. True, he made two triples and a double, but what is that? The other time he came up he grounded out, which is no way to behave at all. A man who can't make four hits in four times at bat ought to have the riot act read to him.

Ivy Olson wasn't so bad, either. Ivy also made three hits out of four times up, but his hits were all singles. They figured very prominently in the scoring, however. Ivy certainly was there with the instinct of timeliness. The way he played yesterday, Olson has no need to put any more cotton in his ears for some time to come. The crowd is with him, and then some.

George Smith, one-time Columbia pitcher, who tried to stand the Dodgers on their heads yesterday, had a lot of stuff, but the trouble was that he couldn't keep it away from Brooklyn bats. The Robinson clan had little trouble in coming across with hits when hits meant runs. Smith lasted until the seventh inning, when his usefulness to Gavvy Cravath was seriously impaired by a flock of four hits and a trio of runs.

There was very little doing by either team in the first two rounds. Zack Wheat made a two-bagger in the first inning, but couldn't complete the trip. Koney and Otto Miller produced a pair of tallies in the second, but their efforts came to naught through lack of co-operation from their mates. Things were different in the third, however. Jimmy Johnston started this inning for the Robins with a well-placed single. Tommy Griffith sacrificed him to second. Zack Wheat was the nifty young athlete who came across with a three-bagger at this important moment. Said three-bagger scored Johnston, and Zack himself finished the trip on Hy Myers's long fly to left field. Koney fouled to Paulette for the third out.

Timely Single by Olson.

That made two runs and the Dodgers added another in the next inning. Kilduff was walked and Miller flied out to centre. Burleigh Grimes, who is almost as handy a man to have around as a batsman as he is as a pitcher, singled to centre. Ivy Olson followed with another single, scoring Kilduff and sending Grimes to third. While Fletcher, who took the throw in for Olson aet second, held the ball, Burleigh received a bit of bad advice and tried to sneak home. Fletcher threw him out and also took perfect care of Johnston's grounder.

That made the score 3 to 0, and so it remained until the seventh inning, when Brooklyn again became rambunctious. This time the Dodgers put over three runs, and every man on the team, excepting only Grimes, had a chance at the bat. Olson singled to right and went to second on Johnston's sacrifice. Tommy Griffith flied out. Zack Wheat then dismissed the ball to the corner of the lot in right field and scored Olson. Zack reached third before he was stopped, and then up came Hy Myers and did the same thing Zack did. Myers tripled to centre and of course scored Wheat. Le Bourveau then made a bad muff of Konetchy's fly and Myers scored. Kilduff singled and George Smith was taken out of the box. Enzmann went in and Miller was called out on strikes.

That ended the run-getting. Grimes and Olson made two more hits in the eighth, but no runs resulted. No more were needed. As for the Phillies, they never had a Chinaman's chance any inning at all, the way Burleigh Grimes was going.

REGATTA PLANS COMPLETE.

Oarsmen in Final Stages of Training for Labor Day Events.

As a result of last night's final meeting of the New York Rowing Association, held at the New York Athletic Club, there is nothing uncertain about the Middle States regatta on the Harlem River Monday except the caprices of the weather. Every last detail was planned, investigated and arranged last night so that officials were able to assure the holiday crowds which will line the Fort George and Speedway banks that the regatta will be conducted without a hitch.

All oarsmen from out-of-town had arrived by yesterday afternoon and will devote today and tomorrow for practice, with two drills daily. The crews from Philadelphia arrived too late with their two special cars carrying shells, rigging, oars and other paraphernalia, and were obliged to defer until this morning their tryouts on the Harlem course. The river was speckled, however, all yesterday with those strong-armed huskies who had reached the scene, and the first practice was held for the entering oarsmen from the Norton B. C. of Worcester, the six crews of the New Rochelle B. C., the Active B. C. of Jersey City, the Poughkeepsie B. C. and the Potomacs of Washington.

Murray Is Appointed Coach Of Harvard's Quarterbacks

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 3.—Harvard's football coaching corps for the Fall campaign has been virtually completed by Head Coach Robert Fisher with the appointment of William J. Murray, captain of last season's eleven, as coach of quarterbacks.

Other assistants, in addition to the staff of last year, include Ernest Soocy, a line star of several seasons ago, who recently returned from service in Rumania. Bill Bingham, Harvard's crack runner of other years, has been appointed supervisor of track sports.

WILL SOON ISSUE BOXING LICENSES

Another step in the direction of installing boxing under the Walker law will be taken next Tuesday, according to present plans of the Boxing Commission and License Committee recently appointed by Governor Alfred E. Smith. On that day the officials selected to guide the ring sport will be established in their headquarters and begin the work of issuing and distributing applications to promoters, managers, boxers, seconds, time-keepers, referee and others, who will have to be licensed before being permitted direct association with boxing as it will be conducted under the new law.

The committeemen and commissioners yesterday announced their preparedness to enter seriously upon the task of actually installing and supervising the sport. All preliminary details attendant upon their duties were disposed of at a meeting in the D. K. E. house. License and bond applications were approved and other technical details satisfactorily arranged when the boxing officials and State officers put their heads together in a conference which lasted throughout the afternoon. The application forms have been sent to the printers and are expected back early next week.

The meeting was attended by Laurence P. Maguire, Chairman of the License Committee, who presided; Joseph Johnson, Chairman of the Boxing Commission; Edward Ditmars, Walter Hooke, members of the Boxing Commission; Edward D. Griffith, representing Attorney General Charles D. Newton; Edward F. Kearney, a representative of Controller Travis, and James F. Hamilton, who attended the session for State Treasurer Wells.

CARPENTIER ON WAY HERE.

French Boxer Will Sail from France Today to Fight Levinsky.

Any doubt as to Georges Carpentier's intention of immediately returning to this country for his bout against Battling Levinsky was dispelled yesterday upon the receipt of two cablegrams by officials of the International Sporting Club. One of the messages came from M. Vienne, well-known boxing promoter of France, and the other from Francois Descamps, manager of the European heavyweight champion.

The contents of the Vienne cablegram follow:

"Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, and Francois Descamps will leave Paris tomorrow (Saturday) on board La Lorraine for the United States."

Carpentier, who has been training moderately since his return to France, is said to be perfectly fit and is extremely confident he will beat Battling Levinsky, the light-heavyweight champion of the world, whom he goes to meet at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn on Columbus Day, Oct. 12.

Manager Descamps's cablegram read: "Sailing tomorrow on Lorraine. Have Jeannette, Blumenfeld and Thomas ready for sparring partners and arrange ring, &c., for training. All well."

Carpentier is matched to box Levinsky for the world's light-heavyweight championship title in a fifteen-round bout to a decision, which will be conducted under the auspices of the International Sporting Club on Oct. 12. The cablegram from Descamps reveals plans for an intensive training period in which the French idol will fit himself for the fray. Carpentier evidently will engage as sparring partners Joe Jeannette, veteran negro heavyweight of Hoboken, N. J.; Jack Blumenfeld, English light-heavyweight, and Marcel Thomas, a French welterweight, who tasted defeat at the hands of Jack Britton, world's champion, in his first American bout. Blumenfeld is the British boxer who worked with Carpentier abroad and in this country. He was one of the retinue of boxers who engaged Carpentier in exhibitions during his tour of this country last Spring.

OLYMPIC TEAM RETURNING.

Vanguard of U. S. Team to Arrive Today on Princess Matoika.

The vanguard of America's victorious Olympic games athletic team is scheduled to arrive here this afternoon on the Princess Matoika, the army transport on which the larger part of the track and field, swimming, wrestling, boxing, and fencing teams made the journey to Antwerp. The army vessel is expected to dock at her berth in Hoboken some time this afternoon. The athletes she is carrying back with her are probably the second-string men who did not place in the actual Olympic tests. Local A. A. U. headquarters have been advised that twenty athletes are about to complete the return journey to this country.

Inquiries on the date of the expected return of the actual winners at Antwerp have been pouring into the local governing athletic body from all parts of the country. Every large city represented on the team is preparing huge celebrations and receptions to honor their native sons. Philadelphia is the latest city to follow the trail broken by local authorities, who led in adopting plans of welcome. The officials of Quakertown have requested of Herman Obertubbesing, acting A. A. U. Secretary, definite information on the sailing and arriving dates of the athletic conquerors. The Philadelphia Mayor's Committee is planning an elaborate public reception for the home-bred athletes. Assistant Coach Lawson Robertson of the Olympic team, has advised the Quaker authorities that the team expects to start the homeward trip either today or tomorrow. This is the latest official information on the question received here.

Aside from the proposed public reception which will be tendered the returning athletes, Philadelphia American Legion officials are eager to learn definite information on the date of arrival in order to provide a series of competitions for the stars. The Quaker war veterans' organization is scheduled to conduct an athletic meet at Franklin Field, Sept. 18, and in the event that the athletes will arrive in time, it is the intention to arrange special events in which they can demonstrate to the home folk just how they trampled all opposition in the international classic games.

Local A. A. U. officials have been advised of plans for gala receptions in Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco, in addition to the local and Philadelphia celebrations.

CHOICE OF REFEREE FOR FIGHT DELAYED

Conference Today Will Decide Third Man in Ring with Dempsey and Miske.

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 3.—It was officially stated tonight that no definite announcement of a referee for the Jack Dempsey-Billy Miske ten-round world's heavyweight championship bout, to be held here Monday afternoon, would be made until tomorrow. This announcement was the outcome of a brief conference between Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons, Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, and Thomas Bigger, chairman of the Michigan State Boxing Commission.

Bigger, after several delays, finally arrived here early this evening and immediately conferred with the promoter and Dempsey's business representative at the champion's camp. It was only a brief conference and then Fitzsimmons made the formal statement. It was explained that the reason for the action was the absence of Jack Reddy, Miske's manager.

"Mr. Bigger refused to take any definite action until Mr. Reddy is here," explained Fitzsimmons. "We, therefore, have deferred any further action until Mr. Reddy returns to Benton Harbor tomorrow. A definite announcement will be made not later than tomorrow night."

Reddy, who also manages Johnny Tillman, left for Cleveland last night with his charge. Tillman was scheduled to box with Jack Britton there tonight.

It is known that Reddy had given Fitzsimmons a list of the names of men, any one of whom would be acceptable to him, before he left, but, evidently, the powers that be do not care to have it appear that Jack Kearns has too much to say about the naming of the third man in the ring.

Training Period Ends.

Dempsey and Miske completed their hard training today. Tomorrow and Sunday they will devote themselves simply to keeping their muscles supple. Dempsey plans to box a couple of rounds against Marty Farrell tomorrow afternoon, and Miske said that he would work out for two rounds with Jack Heinen, but these will simply be in the nature of exhibitions to reap a little more of the crop of golden dollars. Neither will make any attempt to cut loose or to box seriously.

After the work today the stereotyped announcements of "pink of condition," "fit as a fiddle," and "feeling like a two-year-old" were made by both boxers. They look the part. Neither is carrying a pound of superfluous flesh. They are down to bone and muscle. After the workouts this afternoon, Miske weighed 190 and Dempsey 189 pounds. This means that Dempsey will enter the ring tipping the beam at about 187 pounds or three or four pounds heavier than he was at Toledo a year ago last July, when he stripped Jess Willard of his heavyweight mantle, and that Miske will weigh between 188 and 189 pounds.

While both boxers were on their toes today and stepped through their paces at a lively clip, the workouts were not nearly so strenuous as they had been on the three days previous. Both men were satisfied that they had done all in human power to get into shape and that they had reached the apex of form. For this reason they began easing off, and the pulleys, shadow boxing, walks and possibly a little rope skipping, besides the exhibition waltzes with their sparring partners, will be the routine until they climb into the ring on Labor Day afternoon.

Crowds Growing Rapidly.

Only the fact that the crowds are arriving almost hourly by automobile, boat and train has induced Dempsey and Miske to do any work on Sunday. The original program called for the lightest kind of work on the day of rest, and it actually will be the lightest sort of work. However, they will perform in public at 50 cents per head instead of behind locked gates. Dempsey plans to take a walk in the morning, but will not do any real running or jogging. He did not go out on the road this morning. Miske took a long walk in the cool hours of the early morning today, but said this evening that he did not expect to tramp through the sand-laden roads tomorrow. He may take a short walk just to limber up on Sunday.

"They can clang the gong for the start whenever they are ready now," said Dempsey. "I'm as fit as I ever will be. I feel as if I could box a hundred rounds, if necessary. I will be glad when the time comes to climb into the ring for the real business at hand. I'm getting impatient."

Dempsey looks as fit as he says he is. Certainly he has an overabundance of pep. When he isn't pulling the pulleys, punching the sand bag, taking his neck exercise or boxing, he is mauling his handlers about like a cub bear. Action, action, action is Dempsey's program from the time he tumbles out of bed at 6 in the morning until he turns in at 9:30 at night.

"I'm glad it is almost time," said Miske, while he was being rubbed down after his work today. "I am right at the top of my form. There isn't any chance of my going stale now, but I am anxious to start something with Dempsey."

Four-Round Workouts.

Both men limited their actual boxing to four rounds each today. And there were no fireworks, not even when Harry Greb and Dempsey clashed, which usually is accompanied by old man speed stepping on the accelerator. It was the lightest kind of boxing, consisting chiefly of feinting and footwork.

As usual, Miske was the first to work out. Promptly at 2:30 o'clock he jimmied his way through the big crowd that flanked his open-air ring on the cliff above Eastman Springs. Moving picture men had their cameras trained on the scene, and a full half hour was devoted to posing for close-ups and action pictures. He sparred for a minute with Jack Heinen while the cameras ground away, and then got down to the real serious business of rounding out his training campaign.

Miske began by jumping rope for two rounds, and followed this with a couple of rounds of shadow boxing. Then George Roughhouse Wilson was bustled into the roped square for a couple of whirls, and the work was concluded with two one-stepping sessions with Jack Heinen.

The crowd then moved en masse to Dempsey's headquarters. The place was surrounded and taken by storm. The grandstand was jammed to capacity, and, for the first time, there was an overflow into the bleachers. There was little delay before the champion, clad in his purple tights and his shoulders strapped with a big bath towel, emerged from his quarters and jogged across the field to the ring. He was greeted with a salvo of applause, which lasted for minutes after he had begun to tug at the pulleys. For ten minutes he worked with them and followed it by shadow boxing for four minutes in the ring. Harry Greb, looking as chipper as ever in his U. S. Navy jersey and his black tights, climbed into the ring to take Dempsey over the jumps for two rounds of three minutes each.

Just as soon as they squared off it was apparent that there was to be none of the continuous slam-bang stuff which had accompanied their previous engagements. Greb did not rush the champion and they feinted and pranced about for a full minute before either made a real lead. Toward the close of the round they met near mid-ring and there was a sharp exchange of body punches. The second round was a little livelier, but it wasn't a cyclone, and the crowd was somewhat disappointed. The fans had expected to see more of the real battling than had featured the jousts between these two.

Marty Farrell boxed the last two rounds. It was very light work. Farrell received the X-ray pictures of his right elbow this morning and they showed a very slight fracture. Naturally, he favored the injured member and Dempsey held himself in check. Farrell fractured the arm while boxing with Dempsey on the Coast in 1917. It never mended properly, and, while boxing the other day, he blocked one of Dempsey's heavy lefts with his right arm, pulling the ligaments again and causing the old fracture to split again.

JOHNSTON REACHES SEMI-FINAL ROUND

Defeats Washburn in Well-Played Match in National Tennis by 6—4, 6—4, 7—5.

JOHNSON BEATS GRIFFIN

Philadelphian Gains Surprising Victory Over Californian—Caner and Tilden Also Advance.

William M. Johnston, lawn tennis champion of the United States, is the only Californian in the semi-final round of the all-comers' tournament at the West Side Club, Forest Hills, today, the other three survivors being G. Colket Caner of Boston, Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia and William T. Tilden, 2d, originally of the same city, but more recently associated with Providence. They meet in that order this afternoon, the titleholder facing Caner at 2 o'clock and the two stars of the Quaker City deciding their argument at 4. Johnston yesterday defeated Watson M. Washburn in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5; Caner disposed of Irving Wright even more decisively at 6—3, 6—4, 6—2; Tilden went through young Walter Wesbrook, the Michigan champion, at 6—3, 8—6, 6—1, and Wallace Johnson staged his second surprise of the tournament by taking three out of four sets from Clarence J. Griffin, 6—1, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4.

R. N. Dana, Fred G. Anderson, W. S. Campbell and Edwin Sheafe became semi-finalists in the veterans' singles, with W. W. Ingraham, William Aydelotte, Milo Miller and Vincent Richards occupying the same places in the junior event, while William Einsmann and J. C. Farquhar are the final contenders for the boys' national title. Among the teams in the third round of the father and son doubles are the Andersons, Fred G. and Fred C., the Garlands, the Hoveys and the Nortons.

Johnston and Washburn yesterday offered three sets of the best and most consistent tennis that has been seen in the entire tournament thus far, and a large gallery was hearty in its appreciation. It may not have seemed so exciting to some as a match full of errors and wild hitting, but it was sufficiently thrilling to those who understood the wonderful severity and control shown by both players on the court, and the almost flawless tactics that characterized their games.

Johnston Drives Hard.

The champion was good enough yesterday to beat almost any one in the world. His tennis had gone a notch higher since the elimination of his other dangerous rival, Richard Norris Williams, 2d, on the previous day, and on the whole it was necessary, for Washburn worked him harder than even the brilliant Bostonian. The loser's game would probably have won against anything but the sustained perfection of Johnston's play. It was close to the amazing form displayed by the titleholder in last year's final and that of 1916.

Johnston drove the ball so hard that the thud of his racquet could be heard in the furthest corners of the club grounds. But these shots were not wild swings of the average California type, but well controlled placements, often knocking the dust off the lines, and seldom missing the court by more than a few inches. His backhand was defensive, but sufficiently severe for every need, while on service, overhead and on low volleys he was practically unbeatable. The draw of the current championship has given Johnston at least two matches before the semi-final round that could well be compared with the test of an actual final, and on each occasion he has played as he plays under the most intense fire, coming through with plenty to spare, so far as the score was concerned.

That Washburn put up any defense whatever against such a game was astonishing. But actually he came very near to playing the champion to a standstill, in spite of the latter's super-tennis. Just a little more material in the pinches might easily have turned the encounter into a four or five-set match, and if Johnston had ever wavered, he might even have gone down to defeat. Washburn slapped the ball across the net with a low trajectory and very little top, finding open territory with unerring accuracy. He came in often to volley, picking his chances carefully, and rarely failing to score. At covering the court he was almost as active as the champion himself, both players making one sensational recovery after another. Most of the rallies resolved themselves into driving duels in which the slightest advantage either way was promptly followed up for a sure score by placement or the finality of a smash.

Speed from the Start.

Both players started close to top speed, trying for the lines and hitting hard from the outset. But Washburn had a wild streak in his second service game, and trailed at 1—2 in consequence. Johnston also lost control, however, and dropped his delivery in turn. He went ahead once more by breaking through with a wonderful lobbing get from the extreme corner, but again Washburn tied it up at 3-all, finishing with a remarkable drive across court at an almost incredible angle. The habit of losing service continued through the next three games, Johnston progressing to 5—4 with magnificent hitting after Washburn had enjoyed a winning edge, and eventually two successive errors gave the champion the opening set, 6—4.

They divided service to start the second, and then Johnston once more broke through for the lead, with two double faults to help him. He lost the advantage in the next game, however, overdriving the base line by inches in an effort to kill the ball off his forehand. Another alternation of winning service carried the games to 3-all, and then Johnston hammered his way through again, scoring with one marvelous volley of a great drive to the sideline and winning the game when a well intended lob dropped outside. He moved on to 5—3 on service, and although Washburn picked up one more game, the set went against him at 6—4, with the netting of a fairly easy overhand shot to settle it.

In the third set Johnson adhered to his habit of an early break and kept his advantage to 4—3, when Washburn squared the games brilliantly by upsetting the champion's delivery in turn. Splendid volleying put the champion ahead once more, 5—4, and with his own service to come the match seemed over. But Washburn outplayed him in two long rallies and it finally became a deuce set through an unlucky double fault, in which the second ball bounced outside off the net cord. Johnston did not let this reverse halt him for an instant. He upset his rival's delivery for the last time, and then ran into a lead of 40—15 on service with a clean pass down the line. Another deep drive was netted by Washburn, and it was all over at 7—5. While this was the outstanding match of the day, there were others of almost equal interest.

Johnson Upsets Griffin.

Wallace Johnson and Clarence J. Griffin staged a battle of pure reason, in which conventional tennis played little part. The unique slicing stroke of the Philadelphian soon upset Griffin's driving game, and a profusion of errors lost him the first session by the one-sided count of 6—1. He seemed afraid to hit hard, as he had done in defeating the national champion at Newport, and soon grew weary from the constant running to which he was subjected by his accurate opponent.

Griffin's greatest asset is his headwork, but yesterday he found himself outguessed by one of the best brains in tennis. Johnson seemed to know exactly where the ball was coming on every shot, and generally he was there in time to return it. His effortless style, deceptively soft to a spectator, becomes irritating to an opponent when it is working effectively, and Griffin became an early victim of its psychology. He tried hitting the ball harder, but without result, for his fastest shots could not beat his rival's steadiness, while they brought more errors than they could possibly balance with earned points.

After that first one-sided session, Griffin took to patting the ball, and the contest became one of steadiness and endurance. In both respects Johnson had all the better of it. He continued calmly, getting the ball back from every position, always placing it as close to the lines as possible, and treating Griffin very much as he had treated the slashing Roberts on the preceding day. He won the second set by good generalship at 6—3.

But the little Californian had one more effort left, and he went after the third set with a determination to overcome the demoralizing defense on which his hopes were being wrecked. He forced himself once more to take long chances, disregarding errors, and this time his control supported him well. He went rapidly into a commanding lead, and when the games stood at 4—2 Johnson apparently decided to let the set go, and save himself for an extra session. This proved a wise move. Griffin ran out the set quickly at 6—2, with Johnson making no effort to recover the well-placed drives that shot down the side lines.

Deciding Session Close.

The deciding session was very close, with Griffin by this time going far better than in the early stages of the match, but Johnson still his master in the steadiness and resourcefulness of his play. A lob that dropped close to the baseline, and was considered good by the linesman, although obviously played as out by Griffin, had much to do with the final result, preventing the possible cancellation of a break in Johnson's favor. When the Philadelphian reached 5—4, with his own service for the finish, Griffin's last chance was gone. He was very weary by that time, and found himself making errors even on the easier shots, which he had no trouble in reaching. The final point went on a very weak drive into the net, ending the match at 6—4.

Caner and Wright had an interesting encounter early in the afternoon, contrasting two diametrically opposite styles. In this case the chopper bowed to the driver, the speed of the Massachusetts State champion overwhelming the younger brother of the Wright family. Caner hit the ball hard from start to finish, having an intimate knowledge of his opponent's undercut strokes from long acquaintance at Longwood, and he quickly proved the fallacy of the soft placing game when unaided by errors. Starting with a love game on service he promptly broke through and then won his own delivery again for a lead of 3—0. Wright made up some of this later in the set, getting two gains in succession after trailing at 4—1, but Caner drove viciously for the last two and the set, 6—3.

The tall Harvard man got the edge in the second set when he took a love game against Wright's service for a lead of 3—2, retaining this to a 6—4 decision. In the third his superiority was even more impressive. He ran five games in a row before Wright succeeded in scoring. Then he dropped two in succession, one a love game, but finished up without the loss of another point at 6—2. He should do well against the champion today.

Tilden Holds Upper Hand.

Tilden staged another of his in-and-out affairs against Wesbrook, having the match always well in hand and trying out his shots, often with disastrous results. He was never pressed to his limit, although in the second set the youngster played exceedingly well and made a real contest of a long deuce session, scoring 8—6. Wesbrook was willing enough in his hitting, but spotted his experienced opponent too many errors in the long run and when the pinch came Tilden always seemed to have a scoring shot on hand.

Vincent Richards, eliminated from the national singles by Tilden, proved that he was still in a class by himself among the juniors by defeating Arnold W. Jones, last year's national boy champion, with the loss of only one set, having disposed of the Westerner, Harold Godshall, in similar fashion on the previous day. Both Jones and Godshall played the famous Fordhamite with confidence, and fully earned most of the games that fell to their lot. But they were unable to cope with the perfect volleying that so many more experienced opponents have learned to fear.

R. N. Dana and Fred G. Anderson meet this afternoon in what should be the best match of the veterans' tournament. The latter yesterday disposed of Arthur Ingraham, the conquerer of Clarence Hobart, last year's veteran champion, and Dana, who is still a match for most of the younger tournament players, defeated W. H. Ross handily.

The most interesting struggle in the father and son doubles was that in which Hammatt Norton and his father defeated the military pair of Van Vliets, the father a General and the son a Captain, losing the first set at 7—5, but winning the next two, 6—4, 6—4. All the extra events will be brought up to the finals today.

MILKMAID SETS NEW RECORD IN HANDICAP

Clips Fifth of Second Off Track Mark in the Great Neck at Belmont.

It is generally conceded that there is no more consistent or courageous race mare in the country than Commander J. K. L. Ross's Milkmaid and if any further proof of her gameness was needed it was offered at Belmont Park yesterday when this honest filly captured the Great Neck Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth and set a new track record for the distance. She ran the race in 1:43 4-5, clipping a fifth of a second from the time made by Valor last year and won by a neck from J. E. Widener's Fair Gain, with G. W. Loft's Donnacona third among four that accepted the issue.

It was an excellent performance for Milkmaid, for aside from setting a new mark for the distance she defeated two of the high-class colts of the three-year-old division. In doing so she stood a long, hard drive through the stretch in which she actually raced her opponents into submission and displaying the class which she has in abundance got her head over in front. It was her fine courage which won the victory, as Fair Gain ran a strong race and fought out the issue until he was fully extended.

Milkmaid was a strongly supported favorite, going to the post at 9 to 10, and when she returned to the stands she was greeted with the applause which is usually hers, for she is one of the most popular racers of the season. However, Fair Gain was well backed to beat the favorite, while Donnaconna and Debadou, the latter better known as a cross-country performer, were given but scant attention.

Debadou Sets Hot Pace.

Debadou, which had been well conditioned for the race, broke in front of the field and set a sizzling pace for six furlongs, but it was quite evident before he had turned for home that he had been placed with too much speed, for after going six furlongs the others began to charge on him and Debadou was soon trailing the field, badly beaten.

Milkmaid went slightly wide at the turn into the stretch and carried Fair Gain out with her, but it had little or no effect on the race, except that it permitted Donnacona to slip through on the rail and save considerable ground. When the horses had been straightened out a real race began. Milkmaid and Fair Gain fought every inch of the remaining distance. A sixteenth from the finish Milkmaid swerved slightly and Sande had to pull her back to a straight course. Fair Gain got his head in front for a few strides at this juncture, but Milkmaid moved up with rare courage and won in the last few strides. Donnacona saved enough ground to enable him to take third, but half a length back of Fair Gain, though he had weakened right at the finish.

The fields were again small, but several carloads of horses arrived from Saratoga. It was thought that Milkmaid was among these and that she would not be fit to race after the long ride, but it developed that she had been at Belmont Park for two days. For the other races there were from four to five starters, and the card was altogether far below the standard expected at Belmont Park.

Young Ching Wins Second Event.

J. E. Widener's Young Ching, a three-year-old which had started but once before, ran to promise and accounted for the second race, a dash of six furlongs through the straight course, defeating La Rablee and Hoodwink among others. La Rablee showed good speed and raced in front to the last fifty yards, when Yung Ching forged to the front, to gain the decision by half a length.

R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Kirklevington, which was a sensational youngster in the Spring, when he ran a strong race against Tryster, came back in good form in the final event, and in a driving finish won the five and a half furlong dash from his stablemate, Dry Moon, with Cimarron third. Knobbie, which was the second choice in the betting, tired badly in the stretch and dropped back to fourth after being right at the heels of the winner from the start. Kirklevington did not shake off his opposition until close to the finish, and then Dry Moon came wth a rush and took the place from Cimarron, which had raced to improved form.

The fifth race on the card, a one-mile test for maidens three years old and upward, provided what amounted almost to a burlesque. There were five starters, and the grave question was whether any one of them was sound enough to run that far. It developed that three of the five were able to negotiate the distance. Ticacey, the only one that had any resemblance to a race horse, won by six lengths after Ilors, which set the early pace, had broken down. Hoosoh bled after running a short distance and had to be pulled up. Doubting Thomas finished third, which is the closest he has ever come to being a winner. The race at least gave the patrons something to laugh at.

Belmont Races to Begin and End Earlier, Starting Today

In order to avoid the rush-hour congestion on the Long Island Railroad and obtain better service for racing patrons, the program at Belmont Park will start at 2:15, beginning this afternoon. This means a change in the railroad schedule for trains going to the race course. The first train will leave at 12:15 and the last train at 1:40. For today, Monday and next Saturday other trains will leave at 12:30, 12:45, 1, 1:15, 1:25 and 1:30. The last race will be started at 4:30, thus enabling racegoers to reach New York and Brooklyn half an hour earlier than usual.

MISS SIGOURNEY VICTOR ON COURT

The semi-final rounds in both singles and doubles were completed in the invitation lawn tennis tournament for women on the grass courts of the Rockaway Hunting Club at Cedarhurst, L. I., yesterday. Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Miss Eleanor Goss won their way into the final of the doubles by a straight-set victory over Miss Edith Handy and Mrs. E. V. Lynch, both sets being scored 6—4. In the singles Miss Edith Sigourney of the Longwood Club entered the final round by a victory over Miss Marguerite Davis. Miss Sigourney had a hard battle on her hands, but she came through in straight sets, 6—4, 6—4. She will meet Mrs. Mallory for final honors this morning.

Miss Davis, who is the Northwestern women's champion and who has made an excellent impression on this her first Eastern visit, made the mistake of overcautiousness. She didn't get enough length in her shots. She hit the ball in such manner that Miss Sigourney was almost always able to cut it off for the point. Miss Sigourney got a good start in the first set, her hard driving gaining her three straight games. Miss Davis then brought it to 3—2 by a momentary show of commendable aggressiveness. On her own serve Miss Sigourney then won the next game, allowing her St. Paul rival but a single point. The latter reversed the count in the next game, but that was the signal for the application of additional speed by Miss Sigourney. The Boston girl won the next game after deuce had been called and then dropped another deuce game. The final of the set was scored in Miss Sigourney's favor at 6—4, and the set score, too, was 6—4.

The second set was practically a duplication of the first, and it was quite as closely contested. Four of the ten games were deuce games, and the ultimate result seemed in doubt until the very last game, which Miss Sigourney won after dropping but a single point.

FIRST SET.

Miss Sigourney	4	4	4	2	2	4	1	5	4	6—36	6
Miss Davis	1	1	2	4	4	1	4	3	6	4—30	4

SECOND SET.

Miss Sigourney	2	4	5	5	3	0	1	7	4	4—35	6
Miss Davis	4	2	3	3	5	4	4	5	2	1—33	4

PATTEN REACHES FINAL.

Will Meet Lawyer Today in Last Match for Equinox Golf Cup.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 3.—In the semi-final round for the Equinox Cup at the Ekwanok Country Club this morning, W. W. Patten of the Mohawk Golf Club, Schenectady, set a pace that was altogether too much for H. C. Mabon of Garden City and won by seven up and six to play. Patten took five on the first hole because of a stymie but won, as Mabon had topped his drive.

Patten was again above par at the second, which is a very difficult par four, and was thus two strokes behind par medal for his start. At both the fifth and eighth, however, the Schenectady man was down in three, one better than par in each case, and his total for the first nine was thirty-five. At the turn Patten was six up.

Mabon recovered a hole when Patten had an unfortunate lie in the rough at the tenth and wasted two strokes. Patten came back with a birdie two at the eleventh and a par four at the twelfth for wins and the match. The bye holes were played and Patten's total was seventy-two, two above par. He had four birdies on the round, the last being at the seventeenth.

The other finalist was George S. Lawyer of Albany, who defeated Robert Lay of Detroit this morning by two up and one to play in a game of only ordinary playing. As Lawyer was going close to par yesterday, a keen match will probably result in the thirty-six-hole final tomorrow.

The summary:

First Sixteen for Equinox Cup—Semi-final Round—W. W. Patten, Mohawk, defeated S. C. Mabon, Garden City, 7 and 6; George S. Lawyer, Albany C. C., defeated Robert Lay, Ekwanok, 2 and 1.

First Consolation Flight—J. T. Hunter, North Adams, defeated Robert Lay, Ekwanok, 5 and 3; Robinson Cook, Hartford, defeated C. G. Comstock, Jr., Sleepy Hollow, 2 and 1.

Second Sixteen—C. L. Becker, Pinehurst, won from E. E. Moberly, Jr., unattached, by default; C. E. Morris, Baltusrol, defeated F. C. McLain, Lakeside, 2 and 1.

Second Consolation Flight—J. E. O'Connell, Wollaston, defated S. A. Crocker, Cincinnati, 7 and 5; A. Goodhue, Salem, defeated H. V. Brower, Jr., Essex County, 4 and 3.

Third Sixteen—C. A. Waters, Baltimore C. C., defeated, W. H. Davis, Lakewood, 2 and 1; E. W. Taylor, Jr., Philadelphia C. C., defeated Leo H. Leary, Woodland, 4 and 3.

Third Consolation Flight—H. V. Brower, Essex County, won from M. W. Wilcox, New Bedford, by default; Frank Crocker, Ekwanok, defeated William Sweet, Canoe Brook, 4 and 2.

Fourth Sixteen—John Martin, Oakley, defeated M. R. Sherrard, canoe Brook, 1 up (19 holes); C. P. Erdman, Princeton, won from Davis Wells, Richmond County, by default.

Fourth Consolation Flight—J. Hewat, North Adams, defeated J. D. Hecox, Albany C. C., 4 and 3; A. D. Hecox, Albany C. C., defeated Franklin Orvis, Ekwanok, 3 and 2.

FOURSOME AT EKWANOK.

Patten and Comstock Lead Field with Score of 72.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 3.—W. W. Patten of Schenectady and C. G. Comstock, Jr., of New York were the leaders in the best ball foursome handicap this afternoon at Ekwanok Country Club, playing from scratch and returning a score of 72 net. The leading scores follow:

C. G. Comstock, Sleepy Hollow, and W. W. Patten, Mohawk, 72, 0—72; R. N. Hall and James E. O'Connell, Wollaston, 80, 6—74; W. S. Harban, Chevy Chase, and Cabot Morse, Ekwanok, 80, 4—76; Leo H. Leary, Woodland, and C. A. Waters, Baltimore C. C., 85, 9—76; George H. Crocker and H. L. Phillips, Ekwanok, 82, 4—78; C. M. Clark and F. R. Wallace, Philadelphia C. C., 85, 7—78.

BIG OFFER FOR STABLE.

Greek Offers 10,000,000 Francs for Vanderbilt Racers.

PARIS, Sept. 3.—An offer of 10,000,000 francs for the racing stable of the late W. K. Vanderbilt, to include its training quarters at Chantilly, was reported made today by N. E. Ambatielos, a Greek ship owner. Under the terms of the offer the purchaser would retain the services of Trainer William Duke and Frank O'Neill, the American jockey, at the same terms as their contracts with the late owner of the stable.

Ambatielos's business is said to have prospered greatly during the World War.

SANARDO CAPTURES FREE-FOR-ALL RACE

Cox Drives Pacer to Victory in Feature Event of Closing Day at Readville.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 3.—Sanardo, the Boston-owned pacer, showed the way to the free-for-allers at the Readville track today, winning the feature event on the last day's program of the Grand Circuit races. Walter Cox, who substituted for Sanardo's regular teamster Tom Murphy, won the first heat in 2:02¼ with the gelding, then came back with another in 2:03¼.

Baroness Cochato, driven by Lon McDonald, won her second race of the week in the 2:14 trot, the contending horses being Native Chief and Harvest Stream. The Metropolitan, a sweepstakes open to horses owned by members of the Metropolitan Driving Club of Boston, went to Electron Dillon.

Horses already are being shipped from here to Hartford, where the annual Big Line Meeting at Charter Oak Park will be held next week.

Youngsters representing an even dozen Jersey clubs entered the mad scramble known annually as the New Jersey State junior golf championship yesterday at the Hackensack Golf Club, and threw a full man-sized scare into a good many of their elders who stood around looking. These kidlets, none of them more than 20 unless they were fibbing about their ages in order to be eligible, uncorked some real golf, displayed an ability to drive straight down the alley and then to chip dead to the pin, and all in all gave the Jersey association officials cause for high spirits. The coming generation of shotmakers will provide Jersey with some real stars.

As was generally expected, Jack Leonard of Shackamaxon took unto himself a large slice of the day's glory. In fact, Leonard clipped off a nonchalant 78 on the fairly difficult Hackensack course and romped off with the qualifying medal. He had only one stroke to spare, however, for, pressing him with a score of 79, was the phenomenal Upper Montclair youngster, Stephen Berrien. A. C. Willis, known far and wide as the "Shackamaxon twin" of Leonard, did not compete.

Leonard was four over par for the outward half, and three more than regulation for his incoming trip, certainly a commendable showing for an eighteen-year-old. He is one of the three or four leading juniors in the district, and has a brilliant future in the amateur ranks. In the metropolitan junior championship this year at Sleepy Hollow he was runner-up to J. G. McMahon of the home club.

Yesterday Leonard did some par clipping for the gallery's benefit. At the fifth hole he sank a long putt for a birdie 3, and at the short seventeenth he took a birdie 2. His card compared to the Hackensack par as follows:

Out—
Par	5	4	4	4	4	5	3	3	5—37
Leonard	7	4	4	4	3	5	4	4	6—41
In—
Par	5	4	4	3	3	4	5	3	3—34	—71
Leonard	5	4	5	3	5	5	5	2	3—37	—78

Eighteen competed yesterday and so well pleased were most of them with their performances that only three failed to turn in cards. Scores of 89 were good enough to gain admission to the championship division, a flight of eight instead of the customary sixteen. This change was made in order to separate the lesser lights into a second flight.

One round of match play was completed and the semi-finals will be contested this morning, leaving this afternoon all clear for the eighteen-hole final. Leonard easily disposed of E. W. Haley of Essex County by 4 and 3. A more spectacular battle was between Berrien and H. C. Compton, the Weequahic star of Newark, who was third on the qualifying list with 81. Berrien had the tiniest edge, however, and on the incoming trip went to 1 up, which advantage he held to the end.

J. J. Leonard, Shackamaxon, 78; Stephen Berrien, Upper Montclair, 79; H. C. Compton, Weequahic, 81; J. A. Jackson, Rumson, 82; C. L. Peirson, Montclair, 83; Jack La Due, Yountakah, 85; E. W. Haley, Essex County, 86; J. McMurtrie, Freehold, 89; George A. Bowman, Plainfield, 90; R. Bond, Essex County, 94; S. Snyder, Westfield, 98; W. J. Pomares, Hackensack, 100; B. Straus, Norwood, 100; B. Miller, Norwood, 103; G. Ackerson, Hackensack, 108; E. Bruns, Hackensack, no card; T. O'Connell, Hackensack, no card; A. J. Haggerty, Hackensack, no card.

Championship Division.

First Round—Peirson defeated La Due, 1 up; McMurtrie defeated Jackson, 3 and 1; Leonard defeated Haley, 4 and 3; Berrien defeated Compton, 1 up.

Second Eight.

First Round—Ackerson defeated Straus, 1 up; Pomares defeated Snyder, 1 up; Bowman defeated Miller, 5 and 4; Bond defeated Haggerty, 3 and 2.

Another for Ray and Vardon.

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. .—Edward Ray and Harry Vardon had little trouble winning over local golfers in their matches today. In the morning they defeated Dr. Edgerton and H. F. Bagby, 7 and 5. In the afternoon they won from Harry Heimple and Jack Shearman, a professional, by the same score. Ray turned in 72, one less than par for the course.

Mountaineers Get Early Start.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Captain Howard Lentz of the West Virginia football team arrived here today in preparation for the departure of his team for Mountain Lake Park Sunday. Two weeks will be spent there by a squad of fifty men. Coaches McIntire and Rodgers are already on the ground.

Ryan to Coach Harvard's Cubs.

Navy Football Recruits to Hold First Scrimmage Today

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 3.—The first scrimmage of the present season will take place at the Naval Academy tomorrow, the players being made up of recruits from the new class, who have been progressing rapidly under the direction of Coach Folwell and his assistants. Dahlgren, who comes from Mercersburg Academy and who weighs 175 pounds, will try for the backfield, though his experience has been in the line. He is fast and strong and one of the most promising of the new men. Ransome and Vieweg, both heavy enough for anything, are also doing well. Of the lighter backs Noyes, Dickins and Barchet are showing promise.

SANDY BEST HUNTER AT NEWPORT SHOW

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 3.—The twenty-fourth annual Horse Show came to a close this afternoon at the Casino with the championship classes.

The hunter championship honors went to a New Jersey horse, Sandy, belonging to Michael J. Devaney, with Walter P. Hanley's Lansdown from Providence held in reserve. Mr. Hanley's Driftwood Blaze, however, took first honors as the champion saddle horse over Miss Isabella Wanamaker's Cherrystone from Philadelphia, but Miss Wanamaker, who had been one of the big winners of the show, took the championship for harness ponies with Wild Honey, and for the pairs of ponies with the same horse paired with Wild Heather. She beat out the Delchester Farm's entries from Edgemont, Pa., in both of these classes.

Franklin B. Jourdan, with his Waddington Rector and Montpelier Pearl, won the championship for harness pairs, and the champion saddle pony honors went to Thomas B. Wanamaker, Jr., with his Maryland Lofty over John R. Fell's Lady Perfection.

The championship class in which there was the greatest interest, however, was that for single harness horses. In this, as was expected, Reginald C. Vanderbilt's famous Lady Dilham met Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester's Terrington Wildfire from Boston, a horse that had given a very good account of itself. It was extremely close competition between the two, and the victory of Lady Dilham seemed to be a popular one in the stand.

The summary:

Class 8—Harness pair under 15.2 hands—Won by Franklin B. Jourdan's ch. m. Montpellier Pearl and ch. g. Waddington Rector; Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester's b. g. Excessive and b. g. Expressive, second.

Class 38—Ponies, shown over jumps, ridden by children not over 15 years of age—Won by Quansett Farm's br. g. The Imp; John R. Fells' gr. m. Lady Perfection, second.

Class 39—Hunter up to 160 pounds, conformation to count 50 per cent.—Won by Michael J. Devaney's ch. g. Ray o' Lite; Quansett Farm's ch. m. Blooming Heather, second; Quansett Farm's b. g. Matt H., third; Michael J. Devaney's b. g. Sandy, fourth.

Class 12—Gig horses—Won by Mrs. Joseph Sylvester's ch. g. Terrington Wildfire; Miss Isabella Wanamaker's ch. m. Fireaway, second; Harry Newman's b. g. Lord Brilliant, third; Franklin B. Jourdan's ch. m. Montpelier Pearl, fourth.

Class 26—Saddle horses under 15.2 hands—Won by Walter H. Hanley's br. g. Driftwood Blaze; Miss Isabella Wanamaker's b. g. Cherrystone, second; Quansett Farm's br. m. Rose of Killarney, third; Delchester Farm's b. g. Victory, fourth.

Class 45—Den Jump, open to all—Won by Quansett Farm's b. g. Rempsrone; Michael J. Devaney's b. g. Sandy, second; Walter H. Hanley's br. g. Landsdown, third; Quansett Farm's b. g. Matt H., fourth.

Class 52—Champion Hunter—Won by Michael J. Devaney's b. g. Sandy; reserve, Walter H. Hanley's b. g. Lansdown.

Class 32-B—Road Hacks, Judged Thursday as Park Hacks—Won by Harry Newman's ch. g. Chief o' the Clan; Samuel K. Jacobs's ch. m. Santa Barbara, second; Edward Ehler's ch. g. Danny Deever, third; Walter H. Hanley's gr. g. Silver Birch, fourth.

Class 47—Champion Pairs of Ponies—Won by Miss Isabella Wanamaker's bays, Wild Honey and Wild Heather; reserve, Delchester Farm's b. m. Polly Torch and b. m. Trillo Fancy.

Class 48—Champion Harness Horse—Won by R. C. Vanderbilt's br. m. Lady Dilham; reserve, Mrs. Joseph S. Sylvester's ch. g. Terrington Wildfire.

Class 51—Champion Saddle Pony—Won by T. B. Wanamaker, Jr.'s, ch. m. Maryland Lofty; reserve, J. R. Fell's gr. m. Lady Perfection.

U. S. STARS VS. BRITONS.

Athletes to Compete in Ten Events at London Today.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The British-American athletic meet, which is to be held tomorrow at the Queen's Club, seems to have aroused more interest in England than did the Olympic Games at Antwerp. A record attendance is forecast to witness the program of ten competitive events and exhibitions.

The members of the victorious American Olympic team will meet the best athletes of the entire British Empire in the games. The British are disappointed over the inability of their prime runner, A. G. Hill, winner of the 800-meter race at Antwerp, to participate on account of a muscular trouble, but they are heartened over the expected entry of Earl U. Thompson, the former Dartmouth College star, who competed for Canada in the recent games. With Thompson and Rudd, the South African sprinter, the British are hopeful of doing well in the hurdles, the other running events and the relays.

With Paddock, Kirksey, Woodring, Meanix, Bretnall, Emery, Shea and other first string runners and hurdlers, and high jumper Landon and broad jumper Butler, who is now in good form, the Americans feel assured that they will get their proper share of the honors.

TROEH SETS NEW MARK.

Eclipses Canadian Record by Breaking 319 Straight Targets.

TORONTO, Sept. 3. — A Canadian record of 319 straight broken targets was set today by Frank H. Troeh of Vance, Wash., in the final events of the Canadian national exhibition tournament. The run was continued from yesterday when he broke 100 targets.

The grand average prize for the tournament went to E. F. Woodward, Houston, Texas, with 789 out of a possible 800. J. A. Blunt of Greensboro, Ala., took the 100 target handicap match today after a tie at 98 with Woodward and R. H. Bungay, Ocean Park, Cal. Woodward did not compete in the shoot-off, as he had left for home before the result was announced.

The only Canadian to win a prize in the tournament was William Barnes of Hamilton, Ontario, who today won the 100 target match with a perfect score.

Yachts to Race at Oyster Bay.

The Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club is to hold its open regatta today over the club courses off Oyster Bay and arrangements have been made for all the regular classes. The warning signal will be set at 1 o'clock, daylight saving time. The Race Committee has received sufficient entries to insure some well-filled classes, and, with favorable wind and weather conditions prevailing, some exciting contests may be expected.

TOLLEY RUNS UP 90 IN GOLF PRACTICE

British Champion Has Trouble Over Engineers' Club Course—Jones in Good Form.

Two sensational developments among the golfers who are devoting every last minute to practice for the national amateur championship occurred yesterday at the Engineers' Club. Bobby Jones gave every sign of becoming the favorite for the qualifying round, but even more exciting was the discovery that the British invasion, on paper so terrifying, is not to be feared excessively.

Cyril J. H. Tolley, British amateur champion, had played several rounds over Engineers' before yesterday morning and consequently knows the course as well as any of the Americans, excepting only the home club crew. But Tolley needed a total of 90 strokes in a best-ball match in which Jones and Lord Charles Hope won by 3 and 2 over Tolley and the Oxford University Captain, Roger Wethered. This was regarded as a significant fact, for in best-ball events the tendency of conceding putts gives a player the benefit of many a doubt and Tolley's 90 therefore was a conservative approximation.

It is becoming more and more evident that, after all, the four Britishers will need to hustle if they are to pattern after Ted Ray, who sent back to England the American open championship. As a matter of fact, the amateurs on Long Island exchanged knowing winks at one another after the day's happenings had been hashed and rehashed at nineteenth hole gatherings. A few might have breathed more easily, for the British invasion has received wide heralding as something to be feared.

Tolley's work was plainly disappointing. And as for Lord Charles Hope, another of England's prides, his play yesterday was nothing to call forth loud cheers. In his morning match he needed 87 and in the afternoon an equal number in another best-ball match. In this Bobby Jones was again on the winning team. He and A. L. Walker, Jr., the Columbia University Captain, won by 4 and 3 from Hope and Wethered.

Wethered appears to be the best of the Britons, for there was inclination last night to leave out of further reckoning as a championship favorite the fourth member of the invading quartet, Tommie Armour, the Scot. His chief reason for fame has been his victory over Tolley in July, when he won the French amateur title, but since arriving in America six weeks ago Armour has not fulfilled his promises. He finished low in both the metropolitan and national open events, and only partly redeemed these performances by tying in the Canadian open and then losing the play-off.

Wethered yesterday demonstrated that he will be the most feared of the Englishmen. In the morning he had an even 80, going out in 39 and back in 41, and after luncheon he cut this to a 76 for his round, 42 for the outward half and 34 for the incoming journey.

Jones, on the contrary, looms up as the prize package of the great field of entrants. He has his feat of finishing as runner-up last year to his credit, and yesterday did far better than any of the contestants have done in practice. He had a 36, 40—76 in the morning, but in the afternoon clicked off a 73, an outgoing total of 37 and an incoming one of 36.

The cards of the morning match follow:

Out—
Jones	4	4	4	3	4	4	4	3	6—36
Hope	5	6	5	4	5	4	6	4	6—45
Tolley	5	5	4	6	4	5	4	3	6—42
Wethered	5	4	4	5	4	5	5	3	6—41
In—
Jones	5	4	4	5	4	4	5	5	4—40	—76
Hope	4	4	5	4	4	5	6	5	5—42	—87
Tolley	7	6	5	5	3	6	6	5	5—48	—90
Wethered	5	3	4	5	4	4	5	4	5—39	—80

All the members of Canada's all-star team of amateurs spent the day at Engineers' in practice for their international team matches today, but many of the Americans devoted yesterday to the North Shore Country Club's links, where half of the qualifying test will be played. Davie Herron tarried at Engineers' for the morning, where he did an approximate 76, but after luncheon joined Chick Evans, Bob Gardner and Francis Ouimet at North Shore.

One of the few individual feats of note was contributed yesterday by Richard A. Haight, the Princeton golfer. On the extremely difficult sixteenth hole at Engineers' he played a long iron shot for his second, and saw his ball hit the green and roll in for a 2. Spectators hastened to tell the Princetonian that many more players take 8 on this hole than they do the par 4.

N. Y. A. C. to Hold Ring Tourney.

The New York A. C. will hold an amateur boxing tournament next Wednesday night in the club gymnasium. Entry blanks for the tournament were distributed yesterday. Competition is scheduled in four classes and entries of four boxers will be accepted in each class. This will provide three bouts in each division or a total of twelve bouts for the evening. Boxers expected to compete include Harry Gorsky, Bud Darcy, J. Helicher, S. Fritz, N. Penuti, A. Pearsall, W. Levy, B. Chasen, W. Adams, M. J. McCormick, F. Young, J. Sheehan, J. Sullivan and F. Hyland.

RUNS ARE PILED UP IN CRICKET BATTLE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 3.—Playing a game that surprised their most ardent supporters, the Philadelphia cricket team rolled up a total of 255 runs in the first innings against the Incogniti cricketers of England on the beautiful field at St. Martin's today.

E. Hopkinson, captain of the Quaker City team, was the bright particular star, as he carried his lead nearly all day for a splendid collection of 62, he being the first man bowled in the innings. H. Cartwright, with 40, and A. G. Scattergood, with 31, also helped to swell the total.

It was 4:30 P. M. when the Britons began their innings, and in less than twenty minutes three of the visitors had been disposed of for the small total of 10. However, Burrows and Roberts made a gallant struggle, bringing up the total to 85 when stumps were drawn for the night.

Jerdine and Morrison were the first pair to face Fellows and Hopkinson, but the former had hardly got set when he was caught at the wicket for a duck egg. Morrison, who carried his bat for 84 in the game against Frankford, was clean bowled by Fellows for 5. Brocketback increased the score by only 1 when he was bowled by Hopkinson.

Major E. G. Wynyard created quite a sensation with his peculiar underhand bowling, and, while he failed to take any wickets, bowled 5, two of which were maidens, for only 7 runs. Both teams batted twelve men and fielded eleven.

The summary:

YACHT BROKERS' NEW RATE.

Firms in Association Now Ask Seven Per Cent. of Selling Price.

Various firms in the yacht brokerage business now incorporated into a yacht brokers' association have just sent out to yacht owners a new schedule of brokerage rates on the sale and charter of yachts, which schedule started in operation on Sept. 1. The new brokerage rate on the sale of yachts is 7 per cent. of the selling price, while the commission on charters remains, as previously, at 10 per cent.

The firms in the association include John G. Alden, the Consolidated Shipbuilding Corporation, Cox & Stevens, the Edward P. Farley Company, Simon Fisch, William Gardner & Co., Henry J. Gielow, the Hollois-Burgess Yacht Agency, the H. H. Jennings Company, Frank Bowne Jones, S. L. Kingsley & Co., C. D. Mower, the Linton Rigg Yacht Agency, Harry W. Sanford, Seabury & De Zafra, Strong & Beekman, and Tams, Lemoine & Crane.

YACHT STARTS LONG TRIP.

Neith Leaves Oyster Bay for Three Weeks' Voyage to England.

Another long voyage in a small yacht has started. The Herreshoff designed and built sloop Neith, with a water-line length of 39 feet and 53 feet over all, has been purchased from Dr. E. K. Dunham and R. M. Hoe by Lieutenant Commander Sidney Houghton of the British Navy. The new owner, along with his son, a twenty-one-year-old boy, and a Bahama negro left the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club at Oyster Bay, L. I., last Thursday, and are proceeding directly to England. Commander Houghton expects to complete the trip in less than three weeks, with any sort of favorable conditions prevailing.

ADMITS STONE PRICE TO CITY IS EXCESSIVE

HANLEIN EXPLAINS HIS BID

Says Contract Calls for Special Grade—Figured on Probable Advance in Wages, Too.

Henry Hanlein, President of Hanlein & Sons, 417 East 103 Street, who were awarded the bid for furnishing limestone for the construction of the Court House, admitted yesterday at the investigation of Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield that the price was excessive, and that his firm had furnished limestone for the Cunard Line building for approximately $4 a cubic foot less than the price called for by the contract with the city.

The price for stone for the Cunard Line building was said to be approximately $6 a cubic foot and for the Court House $10 a cubic foot. Mr. Hanlein said the kind of stone called for in the Court House contract was of a special character, in that it had to be cut so the grain in each stone is horizontal, while the stone in the Cunard Line contract was "the run of the quarry."

Mr. Hanlein also said that he had made his bid on the Court House contract in the belief that the price of labor, particularly stonecutters, would advance during the period of the contract. When he made the Cunard Building bid, he said, stonecutters were getting $6.75 a day. Now, he said, they are getting $9 a day, and he understood they will ask $11 a day on the Court House contract.

The local branch of Journeymen Stone Cutters, at a meeting in the Labor Temple Thursday night decided to ask for such an increase. Mr. Hanlein said he did not intend to pay the stonecutters more money. He said the stonecutters had agreed not to strike on the Court House contract.

Lawrence Donohue, representing the Indiana Quarries Company, which has the contract to supply Hanlein & Sons with limestone, was questioned by Commissioner Hirshfield regarding the discrepancy between the current market quotations and the price fixed in his contract with Hanlein & Sons. Mr. Donohue said that Indiana limestone was quoted at $1.51 a cubic foot, "run of the quarry." The price to Hanlein & Sons, he said, was $2.01 a cubic foot, except for the larger stones, such as intended for carving, which ran as high as $2.80 a cubic foot.

Mr. Donohue testified that the Hanlein contract called for stone of horizontal grain. Mr. Donohue said there was no difference in the crushing resistance of limestone, whether of horizontal grain or "run of the quarry," except when the stone was placed over openings. He denied that the Indiana Limestone Quarries Association was formed for the purpose of collusive or noncompetitive bidding, and said its function was to promote and increase the use of Indiana limestone.

LATE AMBASSADOR ACCUSED

Turkish Envoy Said to Have Misused $100,000 Red Crescent Funds.

The late Abdul Hak Hussein Bey, who was acting Ambassador from Turkey at Washington in 1917 when diplomatic relations were broken, and whose appeal that he be not compelled to leave this country with other Turkish and Austrian officials was granted by the State Department, is accused in an affidavit submitted yesterday to Surrogate Foley of having speculated with more than $100,000 collected for the Turkish Red Crescent.

The affidavit was submitted by Frank J. McConnell of Purrington & McConnell, attorneys retained by the Turkish Government to straighten out the tangled affairs in the estate of the acting Ambassador, who died in this city in February, 1919.

Mr. McConnell said the proceeds of the bazaars held in New York, Chicago, Detroit, St. Augustine, Fla., and other cities were sent to the acting Ambassador at Washington and an inspection of the books that are now available shows that a total of $114,364 was received by him and only $18,722 sent to Constantinople. A few weeks after the death of Abdul Hak Hussein Bey the Turkish Government found difficulty in tracing the missing funds and engaged the lawyers to help.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

There has been an improvement in sentiment as to the business outlook during the past week, according to R. G. Dunn & Co.'s review, which says in part:

> Sentiment is susceptible to quick fluctuation in the present readjustment period, being responsive to day-to-day developments, but the fundamental situation has been strengthened by the price yielding and the improvement in transportation, and some basis for the better feeling exists. While commercial reverses remain at the high level recently established, as the August failures attest, there is an absence of the serious unsettlement of which some people had been apprehensive, and the outlook seems more reassuring as the weak spots are steadily reduced. Reasons for conservative action, however, have not disappeared, and the policy of leading interests remains one of holding commitments within the limits of safety, and of avoiding undue speculative risks. Divergence of opinion concerning prices, although not reflecting doubt as to the current movement of most commodities, tends to restrict operations, many buyers and sellers being apart in their views, and demands for further wage increases have complicated conditions in some industries.

Bradstreet's says:

> Trade and industry enter the Fall season with marked irregularity ruling alike in sentiment and in actual transactions, though the general statement may be made that buying is restricted to immediate needs, that prices are very generally weak and uncertain, and that production is being curtailed or repressed pending a clearer view of trade, which, it is conceded, will be held down to actual needs in most of the leading lines.

U. S. Minister to Venezuela Arrives.

Preston Goodwin, United States Minister to Venezuela, arrived yesterday on the Red "D" Line steamship Caracas from Puerto Cabello on a sixty days' leave, accompanied by his wife and son. Dr. Rafael Reguena, Venezuelan Inspector General of Hospitals, also arrived to attend the international conference on alcoholism in Washington.

Vanderbilt Will Probated.

The will of the late William K. Vanderbilt was admitted to probate yesterday by Surrogate Selah B. Strong at Riverhead, L. I. The provisions were made known a week ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Burnett Walker, who for a number of years has been associated with Harris, Forbes & Co., has joined the bond department of the Guaranty Trust Company.

Lee, Higginson & Co. announce for the syndicate that the issue of $5,000,000 ten-year 7 per cent. notes of the Hartford Electric Light Company have all been sold.

Sales of Montgomery, Ward & Co. for August were $7,751,458, compared with $7,610,608 for August, 1919, an increase of 1.73 per cent. Sales for the eight months ended Aug. 31 were $74,358,206, compared with $56,701,218 in August, 1919, an increase of 31.07 per cent.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Declines Were More Than Double the Advances This Week.

Readjustment of wholesale prices to a generally lower level continues, as is shown by the fact that there were sixty-two recessions this week in the quotations received by Dun's Review as compared with thirty advances. Movements in grain were marked by considerable irregularity, quotations of wheat and barley being strengthened by renewed export inquiry, while those of corn, oats and rye were weakened by favorable crop reports, liberal receipts and a moderate consumptive demand.

Rather free offerings had a depressing effect on the finest fresh made butter, and other grades were easy, but cheese and eggs were sustained by the more active buying resulting from the return of many people to the city. Fairly large arrivals at primary points, with demand seasonably quiet, caused an easier tone to beef and sheep, but hogs advanced in response to moderate receipts. Provisions followed the movements of the raw material, as a rule, but net changes were relatively slight.

Quotations for some grades of pig iron rose again, but lead, spelter and tin were inclined to yield. Further declines in raw cotton and the continued receipt of rather pessimistic advices in merchandise quarters brought further weakness in cotton goods. The situation in rubber remains depressed, and hide prices fell to still lower levels.

In the following table are given the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago.

In the foodstuffs division the best advance was made by nearby fancy eggs, which went up 2 cents a dozen. This was reflected in a rise in the price of Western firsts of 1 cent a dozen. Cheese advanced ½ a cent a pound. Flour patents remained on their former basis. The greatest reduction occurred in the nominal price of the best granulated sugar, which fell off $1.10 a hundredweight. Onions declined $1.25 a bag and there was a fractional loss in the price of the best creamery butter and a drop of 1 cent a pound in the State dairy variety. Formosa tea got down to 15 cents, which was 4 cents under last week's price and 7 cents below last year.

Among provisions the largest advance was that of lard, which advanced 60 cents a 100 pounds. Chicago hogs went up 40 cents a hundredweight. Mess pork dropped $1 a barrel and live Chicago beef and sheep 50 cents a hundredweight. There was only a fractional decline in the price of bacon.

The grains showed considerable movement, barley advancing 1 cent and wheat 8 cents a bushel. Hay went up 5 cents a hundredweight. Declines were registered in corn, which fell 10⅛ cents, oats 6 cents and rye 3½ cents a bushel.

The metal group showed advances on four items and declines on two. Pig iron, No. 2X, led off with a rise of 16 cents and pig aluminium went up a cent a pound. Copper and lead both scored fractional increases. Spelter dropped a trifle and tin 2¾ cents a pound.

Among the miscellaneous articles brown sheetings declined a cent a yard and standard printcloths showed a drop of from ½ a cent to a cent a yard. Heavy native cowhides fell 2 cents a pound. Both grades of rubber given declined, the finer quality 2½ cents and the coarser 1½ cents a pound. China silk fell 75 cents and the prime Japanese 25 cents a pound.

TO FINANCE STOCK RAISING.

Chicago Plan to Aid Purchases in View of Vast Crops.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Representatives of the Chicago packers today sent a circular letter to Western stock raisers, railroad officials and bankers, asking them to attend a conference here on Sept. 10, to discuss plans for financing increased production of live stock.

The letter urged those interested to meet here with representatives of the Federal Reserve Banks "to find out whether there is not a better plan by which the live stock industry can be protected and financed, to the end that confidence and normal food production be restored and abnormal shipments of young and breeding live stock be stopped."

BARUCH FOR CO-OPERATION.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 3.—Collective buying by farmers and co-operative selling of their crops were discussed today by Bernard Baruch, head of the United States Industries Board during the war, with members of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

The financing of such a plan, Mr. Baruch stated, was the chief obstacle to success, but he believed this would be overcome.

ARREST 7 ITALIANS AS BLACKMAIL GANG

PLOTTED AGAINST FACTORIES

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 3.—With the arrest early today of the alleged ringleader of a blackmail club and the confiscation by the police of enough dynamite to blow up a dozen of the largest factories in the city, police say they have thwarted a plot to intimidate wealthy manufacturers throughout the State.

Seven young Italians are held in bonds of $15,000 each following alleged confessions obtained by the police. They will be turned over to the Federal authorities charged with transporting dynamite on a passenger train and will also be charged with the attempt to wreck the plant of the Acme Shear Company in this city Saturday night.

Before throwing the bomb at the plant from a speeding automobile, the members of the ring had sent two blackmail letters to Dwight C. Wheeler, head of the concern. In the first letter, mailed Aug. 11, the club demanded that Wheeler leave $15,000 at a point near the junction of Madison Avenue and Centre Street. In the second letter, which followed Wheeler's failure to reply to the first one, the gang demanded that $20,000 be left in the vacant lot on Lexington Avenue, just north of Grand Street.

A trap was laid for the person who would come to the spot designated by a diagram at which Wheeler was to leave the box containing the $20,000 for the blackmailers.

Superintendent of Police Patrick J. Flanagan enlisted the services of a gunsmith to construct the trap. A revolver with a hair trigger was fastened inside a plain wooden box. To the trigger of the revolver was fastened a string, on which was a heavy weight. In front of the muzzle of the gun was tacked a red flare similar to those used as a railroad signal. The box was then placed at the spot where the money was to be left.

At 9 o'clock in the evening fourteen detectives and plain clothes men, disguised as day laborers, made their way to the lot and concealed themselves in a ring around the box. Burdock leaves and bramble bushes effectively covered them. Twenty minutes after midnight Luigi Papilla of 231 Linen Avenue entered the lot from Lexington Avenue and stole over to the spot where the box was on the ground. Papilla lifted the box from the ground. There was a sharp explosion as the blank cartridge went off, and the whole scene was lighted up with the glare of red fire which the revolver shot ignited, and which immediately burned through the paper top of the box.

Papilla dropped the box, blinded by the light. Fourteen revolvers were leveled at him as he stood dazed in the middle of the lot as the police sprang from the bushes. He had not a chance to escape. He was brought to Police Headquarters and grilled by the detectives. The roundup of the rest of the gang followed.

The seven men under arrest are Albert di Pasqualli, Luigi Papilla, James de Profio and Rosario di Profio all of 231 Linen Avenue, where the Di Profio saloon is located; Pasquale di Pasqualli, 43 Thompson Street; Joseph Capozziello, 211 Lexington Avenue, and Sabatino Dortenzio 139 Cleveland Avenue.

HITS COMBINATION RATES.

Examiner Calls Freight Schedules Unnatural and Unscientific.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—General disapproval of combination freight rates based on distances East and West of the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers was expressed in a tentative report submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by Examiner William A. Disque. The report was drafted in connection with a complaint filed by the Intermediate Rate Association relative to the class and commodity rates to Pacific Coast cities and the intermountain territory from points East of the Rocky Mountains.

The disapproval expressed by the examiner if adopted by the Commission would result in a complete change in the method of establishing freight rates throughout the country.

AMERICANS TO GET DYES.

German Drugs Also Available in War Reparations Plan.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—An arrangement has been completed by which American consumers of dyestuffs may purchase supplies from the stocks of the German product which have been set apart under the Versailles peace treaty as a part of the reparation to be made to allied powers by Germany.

The Textile Alliance, Inc., a non-profit taking organization created by dye consumers, according to an announcement today by the War Trade Board section of the State Department, will be the mechanism through which the dyes will be distributed.

SHOW MORE FOOD IMPORTS.

$1,500,000,000 Up in Seven Months—Exports Off $500,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Foodstuffs imported into the United States during the seven months ended with July increased by more than $1,500,000,000 over the corresponding period in 1919, while exports decreased $500,000,000, according to Department of Commerce reports up to the close of July.

During the seven months period, imports of foodstuffs totaled $2,157,090,935, while exports amounted to $1,168,094,700. For the month of July, foodstuffs imported totaled $232,323,043 and exports $176,125,116.

Exports of manufactures for the seven months amounted to $2,450,915,503, compared with $1,999,596,785 a year ago, and imports aggregated $1,032,712,698, against $518,365,360. Exports of manufactures in July totaled $342,820,201 and imports $159,010,880.

Crude materials for use in manufacturing imported during July amounted to $135,734,719, and exports to $120,-980,613.

CHARTER FOR 27TH DIVISION

Justice McCook, Who Served as Major, Approves Incorporation Papers.

Articles of incorporation of the 27th Division Association were approved in the Supreme Court yesterday by Justice McCook, who served as Major overseas. The organizers include Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Brig. Gen. Charles I. Debevoise, Surrogate Wingate of Brooklyn, who was a Brigadier General, and Colonel Edward McLear, Jr.

The purpose of the organization as outlined includes, among other objects, "to uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America and of the State of New York, to maintain law and order and to develop in its members good citizenship."

The association also intends to publish a history of the division, preserve relics, documents and mementoes, provide for the dependents of soldiers of the division who were killed or disabled, to erect monuments and memorials and "to see that the last resting places of soldiers of the 27th Division, wherever located, are properly cared for." A clubroom will be maintained.

BUSINESS RECORDS

Failures of the Week.

BRADSTREET'S reports 147 failures in the United States for the week, against 138 for the previous week and 98, 133, 176 and 243 for the corresponding weeks 1919 to 1916. The Middle States had 56; New England, 6; Southern, 25; Western, 38; Northwestern, 5; Far Western, 17. Canada had 13, against 28 for the previous week. In the United States about 73.4 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had less than $5,000 capital and 10.2 per cent. had from $5,000 to $120,000 capital.

In Town.

THE STANDARD PARTS COMPANY—Judge Manton has appointed Frank A. Scott and J. O. Eaton ancillary receivers for the Standard Parts Company, in $25,000 bond, in a suit brought by Erie Malleable Iron Company, Erie, Pa., a creditor for $81,215. The Standard Parts Company is said to be a consolidation of the Standard Welding Company, the Perfection Spring Company, the American Ball Bearing Company, all of Cleveland, and the Western Spring and Axle Company of Cincinnati. It is also said to have control of all of the capital stock of the Bock Bearing Company of Toledo, with authorized capital of $10,000,000. It has plants in Toledo, Cleveland, Canton, Cincinnati, Wheeling, Connersville, Ind., and Flint and Pontiac, Mich. It is said to be indebted to various persons in Ohio and elsewhere for substantially $9,000,000, of which $6,000,000 is alleged to be owing to various banks on promissory notes, all of which will become due and payable Sept. 5, 1920.

CONSOLIDATED DENTAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Consolidated Dental Manufacturing Company, 45 West Thirty-fourth Street, by these creditors: The Sterling Press, $3,125; Bulkley, Dunton & Co., $4,445, and Igoe Brothers, $340. Preferential payments aggregating $15,000 are alleged. Judge Manton has appointed John B. Johnston and John Taylor receivers in $25,000 bond. It is stated that the company manufactured dental supplies and other articles of merchandise and is in the general export business, with a wholesale department at 130 Washington Place and an office and factory, recently opened, at 40 Flatbush Extension, Brooklyn. It is also alleged that the liabilities exceed $300,000, irrespective of a large amount of debenture bonds issued, which, although not yet due, are liabilities. A number of judgments, amounting to several thousand dollars, are stated to have been entered against the company in New York and Kings Counties, on several of which executions have been issued and returned unsatisfied. These are said to be still in the Sheriff's hands.

ALEXANDER GERBER, a song writer, at 144 West Thirty-seventh Street, and residing at 1,100 West Farms Road, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,575. The only assets are stated to be an interest, if any, in and to a contract made and entered into with M. Witmark & Sons for royalties due or to become due, the value of which cannot be ascertained. The creditors are M. Witmark & Sons, $3,200; Charles Phillips, $725, and Louis Cohen, who secured judgment for $650.

RUBIN KLEINMAN—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Rubin Kleinman, bakery and lunch room, at 902 Amsterdam Avenue, by these creditors: Rushbaum & Cohn, $1,898; Louis Wissburg, $348, and Rudolph C. Biancke & Co., Inc., $447. Judge Manton has appointed Vine H. Smith receiver, in $500 bond. It is stated that the stock is worth approximately $800 and that the fixtures are subject to a chattel mortgage.

FINEBERG & LIEBERGALL—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Isaac Fineberg and Joseph Liebergall Company, partners, trading as Fineberg & Liebergall, dealers in furs and skins, at 125 West Twenty-ninth Street, by these creditors: R. Freedman, $1,650; B. R. Jacoby, $1,500, and I. Goldmann, $500. An assignment was also made to Rudolph Edelson.

MAX BERMAN, formerly a retail dealer in butter and eggs, now a salesman, residing at 925 Tiffany Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6,913 and no assets.

CHARM COSTUME CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Charm Costume Co., Inc., manufacturers of dresses, at 131 East Twenty-fourth Street, by these creditors: Bernard Frank, $[illegible]; A. Marlan, $[illegible], and [illegible] Cohen, [illegible].

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......8 per cent. for the best names
Thursday ......8 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Gem Outlook Is Good.

While not a great deal of change in the situation is expected before the middle of this month, it was said here yesterday that prospects of an active demand for colored gems this Fall were brighter than for some time. The fulfillment of this expectation will mean that the leading concerns in the trade will do the biggest business in their history, for, coupled with the excellent sales made earlier in the year, those in prospect will more than offset the lull that has now been in evidence for some time. As matters stand with certain houses, the current year's business now almost equals that done during all of 1919, with the result that the bulk of the future sales will be "velvet" so far as the comparison is concerned.

Not So Serious for Dry Goods.

Were the export business better, it was asserted yesterday, the movement among the dockworkers to free Ireland by tying up British tonnage would have aroused more concern among the dry goods houses than it has. As it is, the movement, if successful, is likely to bear a great deal harder on other kinds of exports than dry goods. Ordinarily, it was pointed out, a good deal of American textiles, knit goods, &c., are carried in British bottoms. However, with the merchandise and price outlooks as they are, and with foreign buyers more anxious to cancel old orders than to place new ones, there is not a great deal of call for any kind of ocean freight space on the part of local dry goods concerns.

Strike Upsets Coal Trade.

While the calling of an outlaw strike in the anthracite coal regions did not take the trade entirely by surprise, Saward's Journal will say today, it introduced a new element which had not been definitely taken into account. Generally speaking, coal has been distributed this season just as it would have been if a new wage agreement had been signed in the Spring. Had the probability of labor troubles this Fall entered into the calculations of the average retail dealer, there would have been a somewhat different distribution of the Spring and Summer tonnage. It is too late now to rectify any inequalities. The bituminous market continues to sag under the influence of increased production and a smaller demand for spot coal.

Printcloth Demand More Active.

While nothing of an unusual nature developed, a better inquiry for printcloths was reported in the local gray goods market yesterday. The bulk of the trading, which was done by both first and second hands, was for spot delivery. In the printcloths sales of this character were made on 39-inch 68-72s at 15 cents, on 38½-inch 64-60s at 14½ cents and on 38½-inch 60-48s at 11½ cents. Not a great deal of interest in sheetings was reported, and sales of consequence appeared to be lacking. Additional business was put through in sateens for nearby delivery, among them 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard goods at 17½ cents. Bids of that price for the construction in question were not all successful.

Guaranteed Manufacturing.

To overcome the risks involved in purchasing materials with which to make shirts, the practice has sprung up among manufacturers of getting an order for the shirts before buying the material. Thus a manufacturer will call upon a retail dealer, tell of locating a quantity of desirable goods, make his price and ask for an order. If the order is given he then goes and buys the material and starts manufacturing. In former years this type of transaction was used only where special materials were concerned. But now an operation of the sort eliminates all risk attached to the purchase of goods. If the price submitted is too high the manufacturer will usually make a concession in case the bill is paid in ten days. This enables him to be paid before he has to make the bill for the material.

Underwear Prices Ease Off.

Some easing off in Fall underwear prices has been noted by retail dealers who have had occasion to visit the market recently. One instance noted was in the case of wool finished cotton union suits. The regular price for these goods was double what was asked for in the so-called case lots. But the interesting thing about the case lot goods was that they appeared to be new goods, and full size ranges could be obtained in them. It is said that the manufacturers are afraid that when the demand becomes brisker plenty of job lots will appear on the market at "bearish" prices. Another offer heard from a large manufacturer was a price based on factory cost, the dealer to pay freight and other charges.

Glove Situation Uncertain.

Considerable uncertainty exists in the men's glove trade regarding the trend of future business. Many dealers have delayed up to now the placing of orders for Fall gloves, and it is a question with them whether ordering normal quantities is advisable. So far as is known, the retail price for a good mocha glove this Fall and Winter will have to be in the neighborhood of $7 or $7.50. This is so high, marking an advance from $2 of two years ago and $5 last year, that it is felt men may balk and consumption be reduced. All that the retailers can hear is that there continues to be a scarcity of glove leather and that no reduction can be made.

Hosiery Offered Cheaply.

Even some of the leading jobbers have come around to offering men's hosiery at more attractive quotations. A good mercerized lisle, for instance, is being sold at $2.85 by one concern, though the price of a similar article only a short time ago was as high as $4.50. Silks have shown the largest drop to date, and it has been found possible to buy a good grade of fashioned silk hose to sell at $1.20. For pure thread silk the price has dropped to $16 and there are offers cutting this price $2 more.

Seek a Line on Dress Goods.

Now that leading manufacturers of woolen and worsted men's wear fabrics have announced their Spring opening dates, as well as the dates on which some of the larger concerns will offer their dress goods, interest in local jobbing circles has turned to the prospective openings of the so-called corporation goods. While little definite information regarding the showings of the leading lines of these goods is available, it was said yesterday that the middle of the month should see the new season in them under way. While lower prices are expected by the wholesalers, there is not much speculation regarding the reductions the new figures will show. The main desire seems to be to get things moving once more on a basis as nearly normal as possible under present conditions.

An Opinion on Silk Shirts.

According to a veteran salesman of silk shirts, it will have to be something special that will sell at over $10 in the future. The range of wholesale prices, he said, will soon become standardized between $48 and $84 a dozen, and anything above that will be in the way of especially fine fabrics and designs. At present, he stated, silk shirts at the prices asked constitute "good buys," and might be bought up and laid away with good profit.

Dry Goods Trade Collections Better.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—In their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods trade, Marshall Field & Co. say:

"Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was ahead of the corresponding week of last year. Orders for immediate delivery were less than the same week last year. No efforts have been made as yet on merchandise for Spring delivery. There were about the same number of customers in the market. Collections for the week showed some improvement over the average of the previous month, as of Sept. 4."

Six Reasons

why the Lyons Petroleum Company should continue to increase its earning rate and accumulate profits for dividends to stockholders:

1. Present dividend rate being earned twelve times.
2. Property valuation over three and one-half times the outstanding stock.
3. Only one-tenth of the company's productive acreage has been developed.
4. Drilling operations are conducted on a very economic and efficient basis.
5. Successful drilling operations have increased the company's annual earning rate from approximately $100,000 in January to about $1,750,000 at the present time.
6. The company has 39 producing wells, 16 wells drilling.

Other information of interesting character is contained in a statement based on our personal field investigation.

Speculative Buying Imparts New Strength to Industrials—Making Ready French Loan.

Speculative operations in stocks, which have gradually been broadening out for several days from the recent short covering period, centred yesterday in the industrial list. The railroad group continued their forward movement for a time, but when the traders found that certain of the petroleum, sugar, chemical and fertilizer and steel issues were in scant supply, buying switched to them from the carriers. The product was a marked slackening of business in the rails, but they were able to hold a steady front and selling pressure appeared nowhere before the close. A number of miscellaneous stocks scored net gains running from 1 to 3 points.

The basis upon which a more hopeful speculative feeling has been built up this week is not altogether clear in some respects, although several influences can be noted. The easier tendency of call money was one, a rate of 6 per cent., which occurred again yesterday, being not only lower than the rank and file of stock market followers had looked for this month, but lower than existing quotations for long and short credit have made probable, at least for any length of time. The news that France intends to send approximately $80,000,000 of gold in liquidation of the Anglo-French loan has evidently stirred sentiment in quarters where the impression prevails that any substantial additions to the country's credit foundation will be reflected in a new expansion of credit use. The proof of this theory remains to be discovered and no encouragement for the thought is coming from Federal Reserve or other bankers. At the same time, accretions of gold, which are coming from London as well as Paris, promise to bring an improvement of the reserve system's cash ratio to liabilities, which will show itself prominently when the Autumn credit demands ease off.

The investment market would welcome a freer condition of money which comprise time as well as call loans. Various syndicate operations are under contemplation, led by the expected offerings next Tuesday of $100,000,000 long-term French Government bonds, issued to refund a portion of the Anglo-French obligation, and after this sizeable flotation is concluded several railroad issues are expected. The railroad bond market has gradually been moving forward for more than a month and, while speculation has played a considerable part in the daily purchases, bond men report an improved situation in respect to cash purchases. The widening market for rail bonds and stocks reflects a fuller appreciation than before of possibilities for earnings presented by the increase of freight and passenger rates.

Foreign exchange quotations changed hardly at all during the day and business was exceedingly light. Evidently the financing of heavy exports of grain and flour, together with other merchandise, that have been noted in weekly reports for some time past, was largely completed in June and July; otherwise further pressure against sterling, francs and lire might be looked for. In the week ended Sept. 2, Bradstreets notes that wheat shipments abroad and flour equivalent amounted to 14,200,000 bushels, a new high weekly record for exports of the United States and Canada. As Canada has been a heavy shipper to United Kingdom ports and France, it is reasonable to assume that the handling of the proceeds has had influence in improving Canadian exchange at American centres. The largest total of a week's exports of these food materials in the early period of the war, when Europe was getting grain from every possible source, was less than than 13,000,000 bushels.

GRANT LONG ISLAND ISSUE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Interstate Commerce Commission granted today the application of the Long Island Railroad Company for permission under authority of the Transportation act to issue equipment trust certificates for $1,668,000 and unsecured notes for $419,279.

$100,000,000 FRENCH LOAN ARRANGED

Details Practically All Decided On and Terms Will Be Announced on Tuesday.

BONDS WILL NET 8 PER CENT.

The loan which the French Government is to make through a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., the proceeds to be used to pay off part of the Anglo-French loan at maturity on Oct. 15, has been arranged in practically all details and the terms will be announced on Tuesday. Syndicate members were informed yesterday that the loan would be $100,000,000, represented in long-term bonds which will carry favorable provisions for investors through a substantial annual sinking fund and the retirement of bonds through drawings by lot at a premium above the offering price. The bankers declined to discuss the full terms, but it is understood the bonds will run for twenty years and return the buyer approximately 8 per cent.

The members of the syndicate notified firms dealing in bonds, which will conduct the task of distributing the issue, of the general aspects of the offering. A letter sent out by one syndicate member to its clients among bond dealers stated that France had arranged to pay off at maturity $150,000,000 of its share of the loan and had asked the co-operation of America in refunding the balance. The letter added: "That the acceptance of this responsibility by us is our very clear duty will be recognized by every thoughtful American."

The matter of gold shipments in connection with the loan payment next month is one causing much mental speculation in banking circles. The withdrawal of $50,000,000 to $80,000,000 from the reserve of the Bank of France would reduce appreciably the already rather modest gold "cover" of outstanding currency. Because of this the impression prevails in some quarters that part of the metal to be exported to New York will be obtained elsewhere, possibly through a short-term loan at London.

In the opinion of investment bankers conditions are satisfactory for the flotation of a large Government loan. While the time money market shows small signs of easing below the current 8½ to 9 per cent. level, with little money offered, call money this week has disclosed a rather unexpected turn. In contrast with a scarcity of offerings last week and rates at times of 9 and 10 per cent., the rate on Thursday of this week slipped down to 6 per cent., the bulk of new loans being made at 7 per cent. The continuance of rates as low as 6 and 7 per cent. would facilitate the financing by bond distributers of a French Government issue netting 8 per cent. to the buyer.

SURPRISE IN FRENCH BUDGET.

Billion and Half Francs Set Aside to Pay Interest Here.

Two particularly interesting items regarding French economic conditions were made public yesterday by the French Commission in the United States. They were contained in a copy of the French budget for this year and showed that France has set aside 1,563,397,500 francs as interest on French obligations held by the United States Treasury as security for advances made, and also that total taxes and receipts will yield the French Government nearly 22,000,000,000 francs, as compared with an estimate of 20,000,000,000 francs made by Jean Parmentier, French Financial Envoy, some weeks ago.

The fact that the 1920 budget provides for interest on obligations held by the United States Treasury comes as a surprise, as it was stated some time ago that our Treasury Department was prepared to fund the interest on that debt for a period of at least three years.

Among the items which will produce the tax returns and the amounts of those returns are as follows: Direct contributions, 1,823,621,199 francs; mutation dues, 1,512,341,500 francs; tax on business turnover, 2,084,333,000; customs revenues, 1,791,365,000 francs; indirect contributions, 1,534,902,300 francs; revenue from State monopolies, 1,998,415,520; excess war profits tax, 4,000,000,000 francs; liquidations, 2,915,000,000, and revenue from State properties, 142,667,500.

Standard Screw Dividend.

The Standard Screw Company has declared a stock dividend of 40 per cent. on the common stock, payable in common stock, and a special cash dividend of $20 a share. The regular quarterly dividend has also been declared. All of the dividends are payable Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 20.

FIVE CHEMICAL FIRMS PLAN BIG MERGER

General Chemical, Barrett, National Aniline, Solvay Process and Semet-Solvay Involved.

CAPITAL NOW $175,000,000

New Company to be Formed Into Stock of Which Shares of Companies Will Be Exchanged.

Plans looking to the merger of five of the largest chemical companies in the country, whose combined authorized capital at present stands at more than $175,000,000, were announced last night by Dr. William H. Nichols, Chairman of the Board of the General Chemical Company. The companies involved in the consolidation are General Chemical, Barrett Company, National Aniline and Chemical, the Solvay Process Company and the Semet-Solvay Company.

In his statement Dr. Nichols said that the chief executive officers, together with certain of the larger stockholders, had agreed upon the plans. The proposal will now be submitted to the respective Boards of Directors next Thursday.

The plan calls for the formation of a new company, with a large capitalization, into the stock of which the present outstanding shares of old stock of the different companies will be exchanged.

The exchange basis as announced last night by Dr. Nichols was as follows:

Preferred stock—General Chemical 6 per cent., par $100, old stock to be exchanged par for par for new 7 per cent. preferred stock of the consolidated company.

Barrett Company 7 per cent. preferred to be exchanged on the basis of $116.66 in new 7 per cent. preferred for each old share.

National Aniline and Chemical 7 per cent. preferred to be exchanged par for par of new preferred.

Common stock—General Chemical, 2.60 shares of new no par common stock for each old share of common; Barrett Company, 2.29 shares of new stock for each old share; Solvay Process, 3.16 shares of new for one old share; Semet-Solvay, 2.66 shares of new common for each old share; National Aniline, 1.40 shares of new stock for each old share.

The new preferred stock will be issued only to the extent of making the exchange.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market a Surprise.

The strength of yesterday's stock market was something of a surprise. In view of the upturn which has taken place in many issues it was thought by many that a reaction was in order, especially since there was to be no trading until Tuesday. No setback, however, developed. Whatever selling came into the market in the way of profit-taking was easily absorbed, and the list as a whole was well above the close of the preceding day when trading ceased. The industrials came into greater prominence than in several days and the rails were a bit neglected in the late afternoon, while the upturn in the industrials was under way. Undoubtedly the foundation for the continued cheerful sentiment lay in the easy call money rate.

Oil Fight Settled?

It was rumored in the financial district that the fight between rival American interests in the Mexican oil fields had been settled. There was nothing to confirm this rumor, and one man connected with the Association of Producers of Petroleum in Mexico said that he had heard of no settlement. Most of those who are closely identified with the controversy were out of the city. The character of the fight has been such, however, as to force either one side or the other to completely back down in order to bring about a settlement, and this it seems would hardly come about until a test of strength has actually been made. The Association of Producers has with it companies which in the aggregate produce about 95 per cent. of the petroleum that comes out of Mexico.

⁂

Oil Stocks Strong.

Most of the oil shares were in good demand yesterday and some recorded big advances. Mexican Petroleum was one of the leaders, with a jump of some 5 points. Regarding this issue the old rumor was revived that either an increased cash dividend or a stock dividend might be expected at the next meeting of the directors.

Steel Tonnage Figures.

The record of unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel Corporation as of Aug. 31 will make its appearance next Friday. The display will be scanned with keen interest. It is probable that no great increase in future business will be shown, since shipments have been improving. The chief interest of the figures, however, will be the relation which can be gleaned as to cancellations and new business. A decidedly sharp falling off in unfilled orders would be taken to mean that cancellations were of more serious proportions than have thus far been indicated. It is known that cancellations have been coming in to all steel companies, but the opinion has been expressed that the withdrawal of this business has not been of a proportion to cut heavily into future bookings.

⁂

Chemical Stocks Strong.

The chemical stocks gained ground yesterday, the entire group moving forward from 1 to 2 points. The action of those stocks which will take part in the proposed chemical merger was watched with interest.

Transcontinental Oil.

A forward move of more than 2 points in Transcontinental Oil attracted attention in the late afternoon trading. During most of this year Transcontinental has been going down. The announcement of the acquisition of Tropical Oil by International Petroleum, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has perhaps aroused speculative interest in Transcontinental. The properties of the latter company are close to Tropical.

The Holiday Spirit.

With the exception of the men who were completing the details of the forthcoming French loan, bankers were among the hardest individuals to find in Wall Street yesterday. And there was also a scarcity of the heads of many industrial companies. Those who did appear in the financial district began an early exodus. One prominent banker left his office and walked up Wall Street with two new golf clubs under his arm, with which he hoped to make an 84, and the head of a big oil company with whom it was desired to communicate was sailing up Long Island Sound on his yacht. Efforts to reach him by wireless proved futile because his radio operator was enjoying the Labor Day vacation ashore. The heads of many other banks started their vacations Friday night and desks of Vice Presidents and other executives were deserted early in the afternoon.

Meeting the Roads Half Way.

The Transportation act directs that after Sept. 1 the Government pay to the railroads as soon as possible the balances due them through the six-month period of extended guaranteed compensation. That immediate payment, except in the case of many of the smaller lines, will be impossible because accounts for the period cannot be completed and checked up in one week or two, is obvious. But it is understood that the Government and the Interstate Commerce Commission will meet the carriers at least half way in the settlement period. Some of the roads are in need of funds immediately and it is understood that advances will be made to tide them over. Railroad men generally are gaining confidence in the ability of the Interstate Commerce Commission to meet pressing problems in a broad and fair way. How soon it will take to settle the matter in its entirety is guesswork, but the indications are that the commission and the Treasury Department will clear the matter up as rapidly as possible.

That Back Pay Joker.

One thing that anthracite producers are counting upon to influence their "vacationing" miners to return to work is the $18,000,000 back pay awarded to them by the commission. They assert that a too extended "vacation" might result in forfeiting that award and that the men want the back pay. Partly as the result of this, and partly because the miners are refusing to accept the increases approved by the President, the hard coal trade views the "vacationing" with less alarm than might have been expected.

Hard Worked Brokers.

The Cotton Exchange in common with all of the local exchanges will be closed today, Sunday and Labor Day. But on Tuesday Cotton Exchange brokers will enjoy an additional half-holiday, when the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Exchange will be appropriately celebrated. On Tuesday business will stop at 12 noon.

⁂

Swiss Bonds Reflect French Loan Terms.

A decline in the price for Swiss Government 8s yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange was interpreted as a natural thing in view of rumors throughout the financial district that the new French loan would be offered at par to yield 8 per cent. to investors. Quotations for the Swiss Government 8s dropped from 102, their previous low, to 100½, after which there was a fractional recovery to 101⅛.

Surprising Car Mileage Figures.

One of the best proofs that the car service goal set by the railroad executives on July 1 of this year is bearing fruit in increased average mileage in the movement of cars is shown in the record of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad in July. The average movement per car per day was 44.6 miles, as compared with 24.9 miles in July last year, 24.6 miles in 1918 and 26.9 miles per car per day in July, 1916, the former record.

CENT-A-POUND DROP IN FEDERAL SUGAR

RETAILERS ASK 17 TO 19

Market Director and State Growers to Confer on the Fruit-Marketing Problems.

The Federal Sugar Refining Company announced yesterday a new reduction of a cent a pound in sugar, making its price for fine granulated 15 cents a pound, less 2 per cent. This follows a reduction of a cent a pound on Monday and is 2 cents under the price quoted by any other refinery, except Arbuckle Brothers, who are offering a limited amount of fine granulated sugar at 15 cents a pound. It was said that the sugar offered at this price by Arbuckles had been bought by speculators or others who returned it to refineries to be "sold at the best price obtainable." The Arbuckle price list remains at 17.10, less 2 per cent.

In most retail stores sugar is selling at 17, 18 and 19 cents a pound, but in some stores the price to the consumer remains as high as 21 and 22 cents a pound. It was said yesterday that the retail price is not likely to go much lower immediately as the result of the reduction in the price at the refineries.

H. L. Van Sickler, Assistant Chief of the Flying Squadron, has gone to Chicago, where Chief Armin W. Riley has been for the last several weeks investigating alleged profiteering. Mr. Van Sickler is expected to return early next week. J. B. Floyd, sugar statistician of the Squadron office, said yesterday he was still at work on data to be incorporated in a statement soon to be issued on the sugar situation.

William J. Gentes, Acting Director of the New York office of the State Division of Farms and Markets, announced yesterday that, continuing a series of conferences held with apple growers early in the week, there will be a meeting of officials of the State Division of Foods and Markets and fruit growers at Rochester on Tuesday and at Poughkeepsie on Wednesday. At these meetings the problem of marketing the large crop of apples and other fruits will be taken up. Mr. Gentes said that representatives of a large number of chain stores and other business houses had visited his office during the week and made arrangements to stock up on apples from New York State growers. These apples, he said, are to be available to the consumer at prices greatly under the prices now being charged.

Fruit growers from up-State, who were here a few days ago, said that the peach crop was not as large as usual, owing to unfavorable weather conditions, but that the growers would not make any money out of their crop because of the high freight rates. The growers asked the railroads to place peaches in the third class instead of the first, in order that the New York growers might compete with California growers, who have the lower freight rate, but so far favorable action has not been taken. Neil Strome, a representative of the New York Federation of Agriculture, said that the railroads are "egging the farmers to increase their fruit acreage, but do nothing to relieve their transportation rate."

LONDON WOOL SALE CLOSES

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The wool auction sales closed today with an offer of 11,000 bales and prices steadier. Best merinos were 5 to 10 and occasionally 15 per cent. dearer. Fine crossbreds were unchanged. Other grades were 5 per cent. lower.

During the sales, the home trade bought 40,000 bales, the Continent 25,000 and America 2,000. About 25,000 bales were held over.

Bullish Estimate of Export Causes Increase in Prices.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Sharp advances took place in the wheat market today largely as a result of bullish estimates of the amount of wheat available for export. One authority figured the total as 110,000,000 bushels less than last season. Opening quotations, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1¼c higher, with December $2.40 to $2.41 and March $2.37 to $2.38, were followed by a moderate reaction, and then by a swift general upturn that carried December to $2.46.

Word of urgent need of rain in Argentina added strength of the market, and so, too, did an advance in Canadian exchange rates. Apparently stoppage of export demand, however, led to a reaction. The close was unsettled, ¼c to 1⅜c net higher, with December $2.41¼ to $2.41½ and March $2.37¼ to $2.37¾.

Flour Has Strong Advance.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 3.—Flour advanced 25 to 60 cents a barrel at the principal mills here today. A strong and higher wheat market is responsible for the increase, millers said. Today's quotations were $13.20 to $13.25 a barrel for family patents when sold in car lots in ninety-eight-pound cotton sacks.

BRAZIL FEARS CREDIT CUT.

New York Bankers and Shippers Discredit Rio Janeiro Report.

RIO JANEIRO, Sept. 2.—Financial conditions in Brazil have become so serious, and exchange rates so erratic, that North American banks and merchants are refusing further credits to Brazilian concerns until the situation shall have improved, according to speakers at a meeting today of the semi-official Commercial Association. It was asserted that several New York concerns had ordered the discontinuance of shipments to Brazil.

The association has requested the Government to make inquiries in the United States.

Bankers and shippers in New York City with important South American connections were disinclined yesterday to credit a report from Rio Janeiro that United States banks and merchants had refused credits or discontinued shipments to Brazilian concerns pending an improvement in the international exchange and financial situation.

Financial and commercial authorities pointed out that exchange rates in moving against Brazil during the last months have tended to discourage heavy imports by that country until exports have begun to equalize the balance of trade and reduce unfavorable exchange rates.

100 RAIL CHIEFS FIGHT H.C.L.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The Association of Railway Executives met in the Blackstone Hotel here today to strike a blow at the high cost of living by expediting the movement of railroad freight. Nearly 100 Presidents, Vice Presidents and board Chairmen of 90 per cent. of the American roads, representing 240,000 miles of steam railways, were in attendance.

"The railroads," said Secretary Robert S. Binkerd, "are upon the eve of achieving the best operating records ever made, plus the best financial results. A tremendous effort is to be made to give the transportation the country needs.

"By using the $300,000,000 funds provided by the Transportation act as loans to the railroads, arrangements have been made for a total of 60,000 new freight cars, 1,250 locomotives and 1,200 new passenger train cars. Some will be delivered this Fall and all by mid-winter."

In addition to Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, the Chairman, and Alfred P. Thom of Washington, General Counsel for the association, the railroad officials present included H. E. Byram, J. C. Gorman, W. H. Truesdale, W. W. Atterbury, A. T. Hardin, E. J. Pearson, Carl R. Gray, W. A. Worthington, J. M. Hanaford, W. H. Finley, H. R. Kurrie, B. F. Bush, F. H. Alfred, J. M. Kurn, T. M. Schumacher, David Willard, Fairfax Harrison, Hale Holden, C. H. Markham, Howard Elliott, W. B. Story, S. M. Felton, Frank W. Stevens, W. H. Williams and W. G. Bierd.

C. M. DU PUY ELECTED.

Former Rubber Executive Chairman of Chelsea Exchange Bank.

Lieut. Col. C. M. Du Puy, President of the Pennsylvania Rubber Company and a son of Herbert Du Puy, former Chairman of the board of the Crucible Steel Company, has been elected Chairman of the board of the Chelsea Exchange Bank. Other officers of the bank are A. E. Stigler, President, and W. L. Wilbur, First Vice President.

The Board of Directors includes John Willys, Willys-Overland Company; W. D. Macy, Vice President New York-Cuba Mail Steamship Company; George Kern, President George Kern Company, packers; James C. Ewing, President Morewood Realty Holding Company; William C. Hauton, Secretary Treasurer Phoenix Carpet Company; W. W. Mountain, Mountain Varnish Company; Joseph S. House, Vice President Mechanics and Metals National Bank, and C. W. Furlough, President Otis Elevator Company.

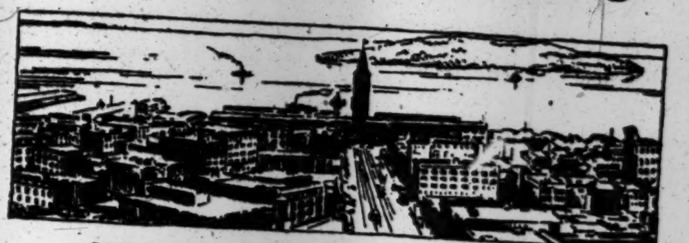
A Half Century of Pacific Coast Banking



OVERLOOKING SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR

FOR more than half a century The Canadian Bank of Commerce has been identified with the growing business of the Pacific Coast. Its branches are located at San Francisco—where it has been established since 1865—at Seattle, Portland, Vancouver and Victoria.

THROUGH these branches direct banking connections with the great markets of the Pacific are readily available. They are especially prepared to undertake the negotiation of drafts on Australia and New Zealand.

AUGMENTING the comprehensive service of the Pacific Coast branches is the New York Agency, fully equipped to expedite all financial matters pertaining to shipments to and from the Eastern states.

The New York Agency will be glad to supply you with further information.

LIVERPOOL REACTION SENDS COTTON DOWN

Local Bears Force 60 to 100 Point Decline on British Weakness.

COAL STRIKE FEARED THERE

New York Spot Price Unchanged and Southern Markets Are Also Quiet.

Conditions on the Liverpool cotton market yesterday aided primarily in directing a fresh decline of quotations in the local futures market, which reached from 60 to 100 points. The technical position of prices had evidently been weakened by Thursday's covering movement, which had been accompanied by no developments showing an alteration of the uncertain outlook in the textile market. When traders noted that Liverpool not only had failed to rise to meet New York's advance on Thursday, but had been weak from the opening, they hammered prices, and the subsequent decline of the first half hour was practically as great as the net changes for the day.

The British cotton trade continues to be unsettled by prospects of a coal miners' strike. The reaction of cotton at Liverpool, coupled with cabled reports of heavy selling by Manchester spinners, seemed to reflect the weight of news that the miners had ordered a general strike for Sept. 25 unless their demands were met.

The weather map was rather more favorable to the bullish than the bearish side, the day's prediction calling for generally fair conditions today over the western half of the cotton-producing territory and light showers in the Carolinas and other eastern portions of the belt.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, and the price remained unchanged at 31.75 cents per pound. The Southern spot markets were quiet, and sluggish prices indicated that domestic spinners and exporters were not doing much.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

There was also declared a dividend of One Dollar ($1.00) per share on the common stock, payable November 15, 1920, to holders of common stock of record at the close of business October 25, 1920. Checks for such dividends will be mailed to common stockholders and to holders of voting trust certificates for common stock remaining unexchanged of record October 25, 1920.

Transfer books will not be closed.

H. WOODLAND,
Secretary and Treasurer.

THE WILLYS-OVERLAND COMPANY.
PREFERRED STOCK DIVIDEND.

Toledo, Ohio, August 30, 1920.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of this Company, held today, a regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 per share was declared on all outstanding preferred stock, payable October 1st, 1920, to preferred stockholders of record at the close of business September 20, 1920.

FLOYD G. HUTCHENS,
Assistant Secretary.

CERTAIN-TEED PRODUCTS CORPORATION
Common Stock Extra Dividend No. 2.

New York, Sept. 2, 1920.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors have declared this day the second extra dividend of $1.00 per share on the Common Stock of Certain-teed Products Corporation, payable Oct. 1, 1920, to Common Stockholders of record at the close of business Sept. 17, 1920. Checks will be mailed.

ROB'T. M. NELSON,
Secretary-Treasurer.

AMERICAN PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY.
Notice of Dividend on Preferred Stock.

The Board of Directors of the American Public Service Company has declared a quarterly dividend of one and three-quarters per cent. (1¾%) on the outstanding preferred stock of this Company, payable October 1st, 1920, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Wednesday, September 15th, 1920.

EDWARD J. DOYLE, Secretary.

INCREASE IN FAILURES.

Total Liabilities Also Heavier in August Than in July.

Failures and liabilities are still on the ascending scale, the total for August—633 with $26,201,733 of liabilities—being 5.8 and 21 per cent., respectively, heavier than for July; 42 and 329 per cent., respectively, heavier than in August a year ago, and as regards the number, the largest reported in any month since October, 1918. These figures are compiled by Bradstreet's. As regards liabilities, it is asserted that the August total is, with the exception of June, when failure liabilities were swelled by a heavy raw silk trade suspension, the largest reported since December, 1915.

The present readjustment of business and of prices, according to Dun's Review, although marked by less unsettlement than had been expected in some quarters, is not unnaturally being accompanied by an upward trend in the country's commercial mortality. Recent monthly failure statements have clearly reflected the economic changes of the period, and the insolvency record for August, if better than that of June, does not make a wholly satisfactory comparison with the July exhibit.

AUTO FIRM LEASES GOULD STABLES

DEAL CLOSED BY CABLE

Property, Assessed at $526,000, Has Big 57th and 58th Street Frontages.

The Three States Realty Company, holding company for Frank J. Gould, has completed negotiations through Clark T. Chambers for the leasing of the one-story building at 217 West Fifty-seventh Street and for abutting property at 216 to 224 West Fifty-seventh Street, the combined properties forming one of the most valuable building sites in the section.

The lessee is the York Motors Corporation recently organized by Milton J. Budlong to distribute the new Lincoln car, built by Henry M. and Wilfred G. Leland, in Detroit.

The Fifty-seventh Street frontage, 50 by 100, is now improved with a one-story building which has been occupied recently by the Tenth Church of Christ Scientist. Directly abutting at 216 and 218 West Fifty-eighth Street are the two three-story buildings formerly used by Mr. Gould as his city stables. The Fifty-seventh Street building was originally used as the private riding ring and guests' gallery.

Additional holdings on Fifty-eighth Street include the three private houses at 220, 222 and 224, the frontage on this street measuring 125 feet. The entire property is assessed at $526,000. Its immediate neighbors are the American Fine Arts Building to the east and the Genealogical Hall to the west.

Mr. Budlong's company will change the Fifty-seventh Street building to meet its requirements, although the beauty of the original arch design in Indiana limestone is to be continued, with some added black onyx decoration. Building changes will be made by the Wells Construction Company.

This property has been negotiated for many times in the last few years, but was withdrawn from the market about six months ago by Mr. Gould, who had plans of his own for its use. Details regarding the present transaction were not available yesterday, although it was learned that the deal had been ratified by cable by Mr. Gould, who is now in Paris.

Other Commercial Leases.

The Cross & Brown Company and Francis B. Robert leased for Viola M. Nadelman 222 to 232 East Fifty-fifth Street to the Electric Storage Battery Company of Philadelphia, which will erect a two or three story building, to be used for a service station and garage in connection with Exide Battery.

The property was leased for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of about $150,000. This is the second property acquired by the Electric Storage Battery Company within the last two months, the other location being the southeast corner of Spring and Clark Streets. With these two new service buildings the Exide Company will have five service stations in Manhattan.

Roy Scherick leased the store and basement for six years in 32 West Twenty-second Street to Seligman & Latz.

J. Clarence Davies leased to Joseph Hilton for Tiffin Products, Inc., the store and basement in 10 Cortlandt Street for twenty years, at an aggregate rental of $300,000.

BRONX ACTIVITY.

Ready Market Developed for Small Dwelling Properties.

Richard D. Pirner sold for S. C. Baum four three-story one-family houses at 497, 499, 501 and 503 Weiher Court to A. C. Campbell.

Wm. Peters & Co. sold for a client the two-family dwelling 4,323 Katonah Avenue to Margareta Wagner.

Alexander Selkin and David Mintz sold to a client of Kilpatrick & White the three-story dwelling 2,705 Bainbridge Avenue, on a plot 43 by 90, held at $13,000. Mr. Selkin and Samuel Hochstein sold for A. I. Tamor the two-story two-family dwelling, on a plot 30 by 85, 1,802 Clinton Avenue to a client for occupancy.

Joseph G. Abramson purchased from Ida M. Petchtle the three-story three-family residence at 38 Purser Place, 30 by 100, one block west of Riverdale Avenue, near the Yonkers city line, and held at $20,000.

Kelly & Brown sold to James Doris for Dr. Henry Reiss the plot, 120 by 95, at the northwest corner of Westchester Avenue and Doris Street, adjoining the plot, 75 by 100, on Doris Street that the purchaser recently acquired. The same brokers sold for a client to Raffael Ricci two lots on the north side of Kinsella Street, 205 feet west of Bronxdale Avenue, and for the Yellamo Realty Company the two-family dwelling 1,736 Wallace Avenue, 25 by 95.

Edward Polak, Incorporated, sold for Foundation Realty Company to Louis Spivak 587 Union Avenue, a two-family dwelling, on a lot 20 by 100; also for Mrs. Doris to a client 2,122 La Fontain Avenue, three-family dwelling on a lot 25 by 100; for William Carroll to Anthony Tonti 1,971 Arthur Avenue, a two-family dwelling on a lot 25 by 90, and for Leo Salamon to James Farley a lot, 25 by 91, on Edgewater Terrace, Throgs Neck.

Long Island.

Harvey Craw sold to a New York client the Adolph Friet estate on Middle Neck Road, Great Neck. The property, which includes three and one-half acres, a house and outbuildings, was held at $45,000.

William Kerr Macdonald in conjunction with Payson McL. Merrill sold for Mrs. Helen Adams her residence with one and one-half acres on Causeway Road, at Lawrence, to Alpha K. Rosenthal.

The Lewis H. May Company sold for Arthur W. Ware a plot on Walnut Street, Long Beach, L. I., to Frank Cassale, for improvement with a dwelling for his own occupancy.

APARTMENT HOUSE DEALS.

The Spencer Bought Under Co-operative Ownership Plan.

The Spencer apartments at 523 West 121st Street have been purchased for $156,000 by a syndicate of tenants, who have organized the Spancer Apartments, Inc. The deal was arranged by Spotts & Starr, Inc. Every apartment is to be occupied by the tenant-owner. The new company is capitalized at $42,300 and has as directors D. G. Griffin, C. I. Johnson and M. F. Nugent. The Spencer is a six-story elevator apartment, on a plot 66.8 by 100.11, between Broadway and Riverside Drive.

Louise Schuler sold to Philip Goodman the five-story flat at 3 West 117th Street, 25 by 100.11.

Hyman Schwartz sold to Frederick Hotschar the five five-story flat at 616-618 West 182d Street, plot 50 by 70. Samuel Braunstein was the broker.

Westchester County.

The Robert E. Farley Organization sold for Miss Margaret B. Budd her residence at New York Post Road and Gorlian Place, Greenacres, Hartsdale, to Alfred Schickerling of Mount Vernon; also sold for Arthur M. East his residence on Central Avenue, White Plains, to Walter J. Gilfoy of New York City.

Thomas S. Burke sold for Conrad Muller to Angelo d'Aloia the three-family frame dwelling at 54 Ravine Avenue, Yonkers.

Operators Wall Street Lessees.

Harris and Maurice Mendelbaum and Fisher and Irving J. Lewine, operators, comprise the 63 Wall Street Corporation which on Thursday secured a twenty-one-year lease of the eighteen-story Sampson Building at 63-65 Wall Street, with an option to purchase the property for $1,000,000. The deal for the Sampson Building was arranged by the Brown, Wheelock Company, Inc. The structure adjoins the holdings of the Munson Steamship Line on Wall, Pearl and Beaver Streets, where it is to put up a twenty-five-story building.

Hospital Buys Nurses' Home.

The Knickerbocker Hospital, located on the west side of Convent Avenue, between 130th and 131st Streets, has purchased for a nurses' home from Joseph Nusch through George A. Bowman the adjoining five-story apartment house, on lot 25x99.11, at 458 West 131st Street. This property was recently acquired by the seller through the same broker from Sophie Acker.

Big Apartment Leases.

Miss Alice De Lamar has leased through Douglas L. Elliman & Co. a duplex apartment of fourteen rooms and four baths at 270 Park Avenue. The same brokers also leased an apartment of fourteen rooms and four baths at 320 Park Avenue to Edward A. Clark for C. C. Conway.

DWELLING BUYERS.

Six More West Side Houses Bought for Occupancy.

Coughlan & Clisby sold for Esther Spingarn to a client 207 West Seventy-eighth Street, 19 by 102.2. The new owner will occupy as a private residence. Walter H. Cooper was associated as broker.

Edward C. H. Vogler sold for the B. G. B. Realty Company the three-story and basement dwelling at 61 West Ninety-second Street, 19 by 100.

The Phelps Holding Corporation has sold to Alexander D. Veitch the four-story and basement dwelling at 29 West Fifty-second Street, on a lot 17 by 100.5.

TRAVELING AUDITOR.

A large Eastern motor truck manufacturer has an opening for a traveling auditor experienced in the installation of accounting systems and the training of office personnel. The position further requires periodical audits at branches.

Applications will be considered only from experienced accountants and those familiar with the lines above mentioned. Experience in the motor truck business is preferable, but passenger car experience will be considered. Applications must give qualifications in detail, including education, accounting training and experience, previous employment, age, and whether married or single.

The position requires tact, diplomacy and the ability to secure results by persuasion and co-operation rather than by rules and regulations. It offers an opening of unlimited possibilities to the proper man.

Applications will be considered in strict confidence.

The Civil Service.

City.

Applications for asphalt steam roller engineer will be received until 4 P. M. on Sept. 9. The subjects of the examination will be technical experience and citizenship. Candidates must have had at least one year's experience on new or repair asphalt work and on a stationary power plant. One vacancy exists in the Park Department, Bronx, at $6 a day.

United States.

The commission announces for Sept. 28 an examination for die and tool maker, man or woman, over 20 years of age, for a vacancy in the equipment shops of the Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., at basic compensation of $5.50 per diem, plus increase granted by Congress of 95 cents per diem. Competitors will not be required to report for examination at any place, but will be rated on physical ability, 40; training and experience, 60. Applicants must show that they are skilled workmen and that they have had at least one year's experience, exclusive of apprenticeship, making dies for stamping, piercing and forming small articles of sheet metal, including the hardening and tempering of such dies. Persons whose only experience is that of a toolmaker are not considered qualified for this position. To be entitled to retirement with an annuity employes must have reached the retirement age and have served fifteen years.

Estates Appraised.

BIGELOW, CHARLOTTE DE HARTE (Jan. 26, 1920). Total estate, $25,352; cash in bank, jewelry and stock and bonds, is divided between two daughters, Helen B. Young and Clara Louise Bigelow.

EDGAR, ADRIANA A. (at Newark, N. J., Feb. 17, 1919). Estate in this city, the premises, 144 Fifth Avenue, appraised by the State at $70,000.

FISHER, SARAH M. (Dec. 13, 1919). Total estate, $35,463; net estate, $30,075. Bequests to Catherine Sulzer, a second cousin, $1,000; Jennie Connor, $500; John W. Rapp, $14,287, and Rose C. Douras, $14,287. The latter is the wife of Magistrate Bernard J. Douras. Assets consisted of $25,695 cash; Liberty bonds, $1,977; household effects and twenty pieces of jewelry, $6,355.

KOEHL, JOSEPHINE H. D. (Dec. 20, 1919). Total estate, $29,704, bequeathed to her sister, Julia A. Deeks of 27 East Sixty-second Street. Among the assets were three diamond rings valued at $3,750 and a diamond horseshoe pin with thirty-five stones, $2,250.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—High pressure prevailed during Friday generally east of the Rocky Mountains with the highest pressure readings along the northern border. The disturbance over the Canadian maritime provinces has passed eastward over the ocean and no other disturbance appears within the field of observations.

Temperatures continue below normal in all sections east of the Rocky Mountains, the region of greatest deficit being over the plains States. Temperatures are normal west of the Rocky Mountains.

During the last twenty-four hours there were local rains over the middle plains States and in the gulf and South Atlantic States, fair weather continued in all other parts of the country. The outlook is for generally fair weather Saturday and Sunday in the States east of the Mississippi River except that showers are probable along the east gulf and South Atlantic coasts. Cool weather will continue in the States east of the Mississippi River through Sunday.

Winds off Atlantic Coast: North of Sandy Hook, Sandy Hook to Hatteras, gentle variable and fair Saturday; Hatteras to Florida Straits, moderate variable, cloudy and occasional showers Saturday; over the East Gulf and West Gulf, gentle to moderate variable winds, partly cloudy and occasional showers Saturday.

FORECASTS FOR TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Western Pennsylvania, Western New York, Michigan—Generally fair Saturday and Sunday; no change in temperature.

New England, Eastern New York—Fair Saturday and Sunday, moderate temperature.

Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware—Fair Saturday and probably Sunday, not much change in temperature.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	57	65	4 P. M.	74	63
6 A. M.	55	64	6 P. M.	73	64
9 A. M.	59	63	9 P. M.	67	68
12 M.	70	64	11 P. M.	66	67

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 64; for the corresponding date last year it was 65; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 57; at 8 P. M. it was 68. Maximum temperature, 74 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 55 degrees at 6:30 A. M. Humidity, 60 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 56 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.16 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.12 inches.

ROSS GETS ECKERT CLUES FROM WIDOW

Federal Prosecutor Questions Woman About Murder and Staten Island Bootlegging.

SHE VISITS POLICE HERE

Mrs. Florence Eckert, widow of Robert Eckert, slain Staten Island bootlegger, appeared yesterday before Le Roy W. Ross, United States District Attorney, who is investigating charges that the murder was the outcome of widespread traffic in contraband liquor. Mrs. Eckert was in conference with Mr. Ross and several of his assistants for two hours. Later, it was said, she had given information which might lead to the arrest of Eckert's slayers, as well as politicians and others on Staten Island involved in the whisky running operations.

On Thursday Mrs. Eckert visited Police Headquarters in Manhattan and is alleged to have told detectives of the Automobile Squad of her husband's connection with automobile thefts here, in Newark and in Jersey City. She also is said to have revealed the identity of a band of criminals who for months have been holding up motor trucks on the Lincoln Highway, near Kearny, N. J., and stealing hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of liquor.

The detectives admitted that Mrs. Eckert told them of a garage where her husband and others had stored an automobile stolen several months ago. The detectives seized the automobile Thursday night, but were unable to establish the identity of its owner because the numbers on all the parts of the engine had been filed off. They doubted whether the car could be legally identified by the owner.

Mr. Ross notified Mrs. Eckert several days ago that he wanted to question her about the activities of the Staten Island bootleggers, and it was said yesterday that after she had visited Police Headquarters, the detectives advised her to call on the Federal Prosecutor as soon as possible.

The widow was questioned early last week by Joseph A. Maloy, District Attorney of Richmond County, and later appeared before J. Harry Tiernan, County Judge, in the Stapleton Police Court, as the complainant against William Moloney, proprietor of a hotel at South Beach, and Charles Kane, owner of the automobile in which her husband was killed. She charged them with participating in the murder and alleged that Moloney was seated beside her husband in the front of the automobile when two unidentified men shot him to death.

While Mrs. Eckert was making disclosures to the detectives Thursday William P. Tiernan, brother of Judge Tiernan, was indicted on bootlegging charges by the Brooklyn Federal Grand Jury. Henry Hugot, proprietor of a hotel at St. George, was indicted with Judge Tiernan's brother on a charge of feloniously transporting three barrels of liquor found in the cellar of Hugot's hotel, and which, the indictment alleges, was sold to Hugot by William P. Tiernan in violation of the Volstead act.

It was said that statements made by Mrs. Eckert to the detectives Thursday were transmitted to detectives sent last week to Staten Island by Police Commissioner Enright to aid detectives under Captain George Sullivan, head of the Staten Island Detective Bureau, in running down the slayers. These detectives, it was reported, were working on new leads furnished through Mrs. Eckert's statement, and are more hopeful now of arresting the murderers than at any time since the discovery of Eckert's body in the automobile.

TO SELL OLD CAR BARNS.

Judge Mayer Orders Block of Railway Property Sold.

An order signed yesterday by Federal Judge Mayer authorizes Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, to sell the property covering the block between Park and Lexington Avenues and Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets, used as a car barn by the Madison and Fourth Avenue Railroad before it was separated from the railway system. The Guaranty Trust Company holds mortgages on the property. Judge Mayer fixed the price of the property at $2,500,000.

The Railways Company also owns the car barn property which occupies the block between Fiftieth and Fifty-first Street and Sixth and Seventh Avenues, and the old cable building, at 621 Broadway. Orders authorizing the receiver to sell these parcels will probably be signed soon.

CAN DISMISS UNION MEN.

District of Columbia Judge So Rules in Old Dominion Railway Case.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Application for an injunction to prevent discharge by the Old Dominion Railway Company of certain employes because of union affiliations was denied today by Justice Siddons in the Supreme Court, District of Columbia.

The court held against the contention of counsel for the railroad that the line was not accepted, as in interurban connection, from terms of the Transportation act. While not passing on the validity of the act, the opinion added that if the legislation "undertakes to restrain the power of employers to discharge their employes for joining a labor union the act would then appear to come within the denunciation of such legislation in the opinion of the Supreme Court."

The right to labor was an individual right which carried with it the right not to work, Justice Siddons held, the opinion adding that the Supreme Court of the United States had upheld also the right of the employer to "impose conditions upon those who seek employment."

"It may be asked," the opinion continued, "what becomes of the right of employes to organize if, as a consequence of doing so, the employer may exercise his right as recognized by the United States Supreme Court? The answer may not be easy to formulate, but this court is not called upon to answer the question. Its duty is to give effect to the authoritative opinions and decisions of the supreme tribunal, which give the company the right to dismiss its employes if they join a labor union."

Counsel for the men expressed satisfaction with Justice Siddons's ruling that the road was not excepted from the Transportation act. This, it was said, would permit the dispute to be brought before the Railroad Labor Board at Chicago.

Acceptance by the Labor Board of the case, legal authorities said, would mean setting of a precedent for adjustment of all such disputes by the board.

COLORADO GROWTH DROPS.

Gain of 140,325 Is About Half That of Previous Decade.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—With a numerical increase of 140,325 in the last ten years the State of Colorado showed a growth since 1910 of only a little more than half of that made in the previous ten years. The Census Bureau's announcement today gave the State a total of 939,376 inhabitants. Colorado's rate of growth in the last decade was 17.6 per cent., compared with 48 per cent. in the previous ten years.

Other population figures announced were:

Troy, N. Y., 72,013, a decrease of 4,800 or 6.2 per cent.

Denver, Col. (revised), 256,491, an increase of 43,110 or 20.2 per cent. Previously announced, 256,369.

Boulder, Col., 10,989, an increase of 1,450 or 15.2 per cent.

The population of Havre, Mont., and the State of Vermont will be announced tomorrow.

ESCAPED CONVICT RETURNS.

Waives Extradition So Family Can Keep $800 Saved While Free.

Edward John Van Tassel, the escaped Dannemora prisoner, who was arrested at Jersey City yesterday through information given by a former fellow convict named Al J. Smith, left yesterday for Sing Sing. Van Tassel had waived extradition, saying that he would rather his wife and two little girls at Wappinger's Falls should have all of the $800 he had saved up since his escape than that any of it should be used in a probably futile fight against extradition.

Van Tassel was sentenced in November, 1917, to serve four years for forgery, having forged a check for $100 to help his family, he said. He escaped in November, 1918, upon receiving a letter from his wife, who was in great need. Since that time he has been living an honest life, he said, working on railroads and saving money.

WOULD OUST CONSTANTINE.

Venizelos to Ask Swiss to Expel Ex-King of Greece.

ATHENS, Sept. 1 (Associated Press).—The Government organ Estia published today an interview with Premier Venizelos, who stated that the Government proposed to approach the Swiss Government in an effort to secure the expulsion from Switzerland of former King Constantine.

The ex-King and his followers, he said, "are seeking to disturb public order in Greece."

Lifting the Lid

I WAS told yesterday that if I announced my price this Fall at $3.85, it would turn the hat industry upside down and inside out—but I'm going to lift the lid and take the consequences. I'm going to sell hats without profit this Fall, and give the final wallop to the High Cost of Living in the High Price of Hats.

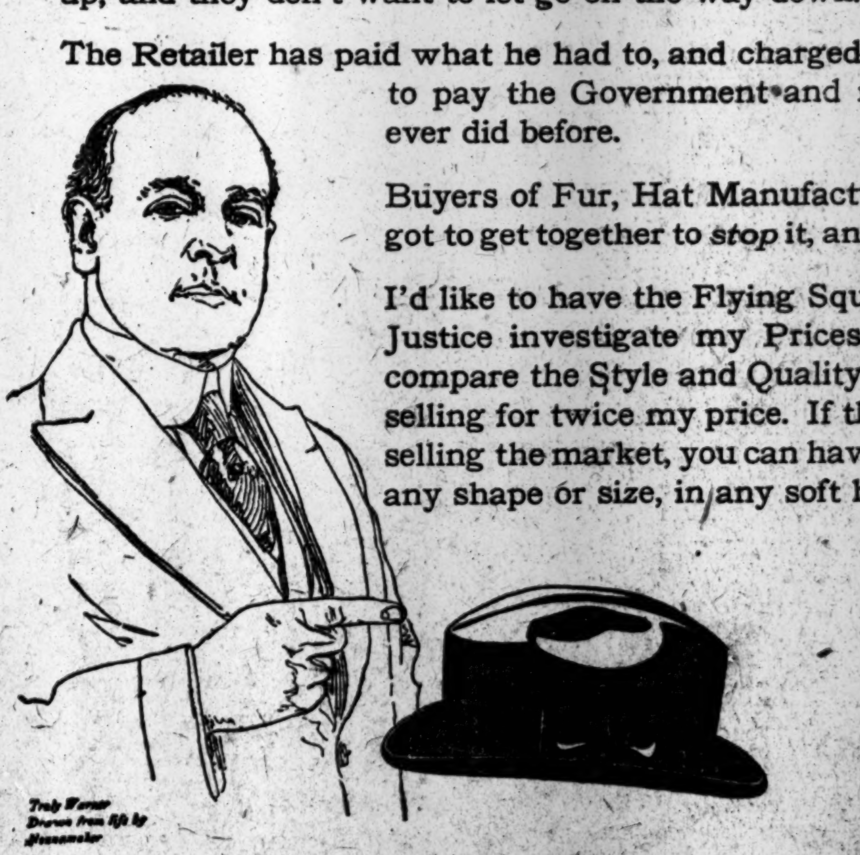
The public have been on a "Buying Spree" for the last couple of years, but they're on a "Buying Strike" today. I'm going to break that strike by breaking the price of hats.

If you'll help me bring 100,000 new customers in my stores this month you'll see the High Price of Hats begin to tumble, and you can get under cover right now for $3.85.

In the first place, the Fur Market is fictitious. The rabbits in Australia don't know anything about the price of fur in America. The fur that I bought four years ago at $1.50 a pound, is now quoted at $11 a pound, and there is no rhyme or reason that can justify this price.

Manufacturers whose raw materials advanced as the market went up have figured fur at the "peak" and quoted prices accordingly. They got "theirs" on the way up, and they don't want to let go on the way down.

The Retailer has paid what he had to, and charged what he wanted to, in order to pay the Government and make more money than he ever did before.



Truly Warner Drawn from life by [illegible]

Buyers of Fur, Hat Manufacturers and Retailers have all got to get together to stop it, and someone has got to start it.

I'd like to have the Flying Squadron of the Department of Justice investigate my Prices and Profits this Fall, and compare the Style and Quality of my hats with other hats selling for twice my price. If they don't stop me for underselling the market, you can have any new Fall color or style, any shape or size, in any soft hat or derby, at $3.85.

They're all one Price $ 3.85
